Architects chosen to revamp college

by George Spaeth

On Tuesday, March 27, campus improvement plans were presented by the architectural firm, InterDesign Group.

The InterDesign Group has contracted with Marian College to provide their services and implement their plans. Marian has budgeted one million dollars to complete this project.

The firm promises to include students, faculty, and administration involvement in the development of all final plans.

The InterDesign Group was chosen by the Marian College Strategic Planning Committee because it best addressed the college's concerns. Those concerns include the development of a student activities center, an expansion of the current cafeteria area, perimeter changes, expanded utilization of Stokely and Fisher mansions, and the suspension of all plans to build new buildings on campus.

The plan calls for the most efficient use of available square footage.

Among the ideas proposed were the following:

- By the spring of 1991, Alverna would be converted into the new student activities center. The garage would be converted into a dining/dance area with a capacity of 150-200 people. Included in Alverna would be a snack bar and a bookstore. Many of the walls on the top floor would be torn down to increase available area.

- The front entrances to Marian and Clare Halls would be reversed so they face the center of campus. The parking circle, which now stands on the north side of Marian and Clare would be converted into a parking lot.

Total parking would increase to 815 spaces.

- The Cafeteria would be expanded to include the corridor and offices on the north side of the dining area. Total seating capacity would increase to 332.

- All entrances to the college would be closed except for the 30th Street entrance to Doyle Hall and the Cold Springs Entrance just north of the Admissions office. A road would be built which circles the entire campus.

- The Marian College sign at 30th Street and Cold Spring Road would be replaced by one made of brick.

- Lastly, the center of campus would have more trees planted and a fountain built. Sidewalks would be constructed connecting the major buildings.

All designs are on display in the library.

Student recognition planned

by Karen Murphy

Many outstanding students will be recognized at the Student Achievement Program at 2:00 p.m. on Sunday, April 29. This program, to be held in the Marian College Auditorium, was made possible by a donation from First Indiana Bank. The event was planned by the Student Affairs office.

Seventy-six awards will be given to 100-125 students. These awards stem from outstanding achievement, talent, and/or leadership in academics, clubs and organizations, athletics, or Christian service.

The recipient of each award receives a certificate bearing the college seal.

However, there is one top award, given to a senior, which entails much more. This is the Alumni Association Distinguished Senior Award. The recipient of this award will receive a plaque and a cash gift of at least $250.

The senior will be chosen according to grade point average, extracurricular involvement, student leadership, and service to Marian College.

The Student Affairs Committee will choose a recipient. The Alumni Association has final approval.

Award recipients can celebrate a "spring carnival" in Allison mansion following the program. Included will be art, music, and refreshments.
Correction: In Sr. Sue Bradshaw’s letter about Women’s History Month, the first sentence should read, “Every people deserve to know their history.” We are sorry for any inconvenience this may have caused.

SENIOR COMMENCEMENT?

Graduation is rapidly approaching and we are virtually left without a clue! As class officers, we were elected to represent the class. A duty that the administration is not allowing us to do in regards to our commencement.

Take for example the selection of Lee Hamilton as the commencement speaker. Hamilton is fine, but no one asked us if we had any suggestions. (Yes, we did.) Then Lucy Griner, president, wanted to release the information concerning the speaker at a MCSA meeting, but was asked not to. Denise Perry, director of public information, asked her to wait until the school was ready to release the information to the local press.

Lucy waited because she had been assured that she would be allowed to make the announcement first. Yet, without contacting her, the administration released the information in the Magnet which is sent to parents and alumni.

Occasionally, Lucy receives phone calls from various administrators informing her that of plans they have made, but never asking if the class has an opinion, preference, or suggestion.

We understand that the college has some investment in graduation, but then so do the seniors.

The normal administrative policy of apologizing and breast beating (mea culpa) will not resolve the situation.

We suggest that a committee be formed that consists of both administrators and the senior class officers to plan commencement. Since senior class officers are elected in April, this should be done right away, so that next year’s officers can begin meeting with the administration.

Lucy Griner, President
Scott Van Alst, Vice President

Beth Mauer, Treasurer

Everyone is unique in their own special way, with their own special talents. Senior Raymond List breaks all the conventional molds.

List has been in a number of activities during his years at Marian. He has been involved in the following: Campus Ministry Committee, theatre productions, Spring Formal Planning Committee, Blood Drive, the Carbon, and the Transition Center.

List was in the Ms. Masculine Contest his junior year under the name “Roxanne”. He was also in Mock Rock in his junior and senior years. Both were winning combinations, with “Leader of the Pack” and “The Lonely Shepherders.” List came in second in the jalapeno eating contest this year.

In his sophomore and junior years during Spring Break, List went to Appalachia with Campus Ministry.

The senior has also made the Dean’s List. He is a member of Psi Chi and also the Newman Association, which stands for all Campus Ministries all over the state of Indiana.

List was a member of the Jazz Band in which he played trumpet. He is now taking voice lessons.

List is one of the ten graduating seniors in the honors program. He also received the honor of being named to Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

In his free time, the Spanish minor states “I like to read up on current events and the comics.”

He lives off campus. The Kentucky native lives and works at the mortuary on 10th street.

List commented “It is quiet.”

One of eleven children, List explains his reason for coming to Marian, “I wanted a small school, I came and toured and thought the people were friendly.”

He also states, “The Psychology Department is one of the best around”.

Another contributing factor was the girl/boy ratio which was three to one.

List has applied to a Ph.D program and a Master’s program in clinical psychology. If not accepted, he will work at the mortuary one more year and work as a Counseling Technologist at a mental health institution. His goal is to become a chemical dependency counselor.

List, in his advice to the students of Marian, stated that his biggest regret was never becoming deeply involved in things.

List states, “Become involved. Everyone has potential to make a difference and help you find the talent within yourself. Realize the difference you can make.”

The best part of Marian to List is the professors and the students.

The senior would like to extend his thanks to the following: Dr. Plascak-Craig and Sr. Olga, for their guidance and direction; Sr. Rosanne, for her deep insight into the Spanish speaking world; and his friends, for their support.
This week the young campers were looking over the camp's fall offerings, and to their amazement found a walking course called WFF 101. Sally and Jane were deciding if WFF 101 would fit into their busy schedules when Joe walked over to them from the campsites.

"Hi, Sally, hi, Jane," he called, "What are you two doing?"
"Just trying to decide if WFF 101 will fit into our busy schedules. Have you seen this course offering: 'walking around the 114 park-like areas of Camp M'?" What do you think we'll be doing, taking a hike every day?"

"That's not what I hear this course is really about," said Joe. I've heard that you will learn how to measure your pulse rate, how to figure your maximum heart rate to see if you are exercising right, and some real technical stuff."

"Gee," said Sally, "I thought it was going to be a real stupid class. Guess I was wrong."

"Yeah," Joe said, "I talked to the coach about it before I made a dumb statement like the one you just made. But, live and learn I always say."

"Yeah, guess I am a little immature," said Sally. "I better go sign up for the class, before it's filled up. I just might learn something!"

And the Head Counselor looked on.

A letter from the president

This is a copy of the letter sent from Dr. Daniel Felicetti to Sr. Norma as an April Fool's joke.

Dear Sister Norma:

Please let Annata and all our Sisters in Oldenburg know that although their temporary absence is regretted, the College is moving along adequately. Just a few changes have been made in conjunction with the expedited actions of a bare quorum of the Board of Trustees:

1. In response to urgent pleas of the Public Relations Office, the "a" vs. "o" tension stemming from our county of residence has been finally relieved. Handsome signs are being constructed. They will read: MARION COLLEGE.

2. The long awaited Student Center is being built from within an existing facility: our Chapel. Students seem especially pleased by the number of square feet available for dancing; they have already requested replacement of the organ with a voluminous moog synthesizer.

3. One of the two new Sisters Residences has been sold by the Chief Financial Officer to a group known as "Well Heeled Educational Entrepreneurs" (WHEE). They appear to have abundant resources and a missionary zeal about them. Their reported intention is to convert all neighbors to an appreciation of value-free instruction through exuberant outdoor seminars beginning at midnight.

4. In an unanticipated sudden move, inspired by our progress in Indiana, the trustees of Harvard and Yale decided to merge under the name “Marian IVY University.” They named me President. In a somewhat indignant response, Marian College Trustees selected a new Interim President. His name will be revealed later. All the Board would say is that he is known for his military prowess and budgetary expertise.

These are just highlights. Chairman Farris, in an uncharacteristically phlegmatic mood, commented that the many remaining actions promulgated ought to be brought to your attention “at a later date.” The sense of the meeting was that news of progress, while exciting and constructive, ought to be released slowly enough to be properly assimilated.

Hope your gathering goes well and, although we certainly miss you, please don’t hurry back on our account.

Sincerely,

Daniel A. Felicetti,
President Emeritus

Seniors plan for the future

by Stacey Nicholas

During the spring semester, the minds of seniors turn towards graduation, graduate school, and getting a job. Many seniors are still waiting to hear from prospective employers. Meanwhile, some graduate schools are still processing applications. Spring semester can be a tense time.

But seniors should not give up hope because some among them have found jobs or have been accepted to graduate school.

Shelly Leman, English major, is working for Douglas and Gayle Limited, a production firm. The company is responsible for taking a publication and putting it into finished form. Leman was hired to do desktop publishing. She already works 20 hours a week for them and is "enjoying it thoroughly."

Beth Mauer, biology and psychology, received a $10,000 fellowship from the Indiana University Medical School to study medical neurobiology. The program emphasizes the study of the human brain and how it effects behavior. In a phone interview she commented, "I am so excited. I can't wait to get started."

Senior class vice president Scott Van Alst will attend Medical Technology School at St. Francis Hospital.

"Then I may go to graduate school," Van Alst added.

D-Tech, a manufacturing corporation, hired senior class president, Lucy Griner, as an accounting manager. Her first job will be the development of a receivable systems.

Griner commented, "While I'm working, I want to get my MBA."

Some members of the senior class have plans to join the Peace Corps or to do missionary work.

Michelle Scheidt, English, has given a one-year commitment to do volunteer work with Hispanics. Her experience as a missionary helped her decide on volunteer service.

"This summer doing missionary work in Mexico was a deciding factor. I had been thinking about it for a long time."

Spring Break Alternative succeeds

For the third straight year, Campus Ministry again sponsored a Spring Break alternative to Appalachia.

Participants this year included: Mary Ann Hermann, Yassir Karam, Lucy Griner, Shannon Harvey, Michael Rinard, and Sr. Jean Gabriel.

Their trip to Owingsville, Kentucky began on Monday, March 12, as they departed from Marian College at 9:00 a.m. With a couple of stops for food and gasoline, the group of six arrived in Owingsville in the early afternoon.

Receiving a warm welcome from Glenmary Sister Kathleen and postulant Donna, the group was shown to Mrs. Banker's house, where the ladies would be staying. After cleaning Mrs. Banker's windows, Sr. Kathleen directed the group back to her house for dinner.

The next few days, the volunteers were kept busy cleaning up yards, tearing down an already falling down shed, cleaning the church basement, and restocking the clothing store. Also the volunteers spent time talking with each other as well as with the people with which they were working.

All in all, everyone seemed to enjoy their trip to Owingsville and Appalachia. Lucy Griner said, "I think it was a worthwhile experience. I wish I would have gone before I was a senior."

Michael Rinard had this to say, "This is the second year I have gone to Appalachia. I feel that we could do the same type of thing right here in Indianapolis. It's good to help people; however, charity begins at home."

Little Sibs Weekend plans finalized

by Dallice Hesselandgrave

On March 27, at the Student Board meeting, Tina Kunkler, social planner, presented the finalized plans for Little Sibs Weekend.

Included will be movies, a carnival, and several other activities. These plans have been sent to resident students, as well as posted.

The senior class announced that Congressman Lee Hamilton would be the commencement speaker. He will be receiving an honorary degree, as will be Janet Gottschalk, a Medical Missions Sister, and Alvin S. Bynum, university division dean at IUPUI.

The Board is taking suggestions on what to do with the money allocated to St. Francis. Cable television is still an option if an agreeable price can be found. Other ideas included new curtains for the lobby and carpeting for the lobby and the Student Board room.

Publications reported that the Carbon bought a new computer with a full-screen monitor. They also reported that the Carbon will be printed on newsprint the last three weeks of this year. The Fioretti is undergoing work and should be out by the end of this semester.

The Biology Club asked for and received money to buy trees and trash cans for their Earth Day projects.

MCSA has proposed a new leadership award to be given to an outstanding member of the Board. If accepted, the award will go into effect next year.

The Board also reported that the new officers would conduct the April 10 meeting, while the current members assisted them. They are to officially begin their terms on April 17.

Jim Meer, treasurer, reported $17,059.06 in the general fund. The MCSA fund contains $1,143.93.
Music plans spring tour

The Marian College Music Department and Office of Admissions has announced April 19 as the date for the annual spring music travel show to Lake County, Indiana.

Marian's Chorale, Chamber Singers, Swing Choir, and Campus Ministry Octet will perform at Gavit High School, Hammond; Munster High School, Munster; and Griffith High School, Griffith.

Each year the departments team up to travel to high schools in the midwest. Admissions counselor Jeanette Findley, tour coordinator, and Sara Reid, vocal director, will accompany the students on the trip.

The students will attend a dinner and reception at the Star Plaza Theatre Resort, Merrillville, after completing the day's performances. Representatives from athletics, financial aid, administration and other departments will present the program at the reception.

Honorary degrees conferred

Three honorary degrees will be presented at the May 13 commencement.

An honorary Doctorate of Public Service will be awarded to Sr. Janet Gottschalk, a Medical Missions Sister. Sr. Janet is a professor of international health at the IU Medical Center, and is currently a visiting professor at the World Health Organization Center for International Health at the University of Texas. She is also a member of the Indianapolis Peace Center's advisory board.

Most recently, Sr. Janet was selected as an official election monitor for the presidential election in Nicaragua. She was invited to apply for the Roman Catholic observer delegation sponsored by Witness for Peace, a faith-based group that has coordinated the visits of more than 3,500 citizens to Nicaragua.

Alvin S. Bynum, University Division Dean at IUPUI, will also receive an honorary degree. Bynum is an adjunct professor of Afro-American Studies, and Sociology.

He has published a book and several articles in the fields of youth development and higher education.

A member of the Marian College Board of Trustees, Bynum has served on the boards of several civic organizations including the Family Service Association of Indianapolis, Catholic Social Services, and Salvation Army.

The third recipient of an honorary degree is Lee Hamilton, who will be the commencement speaker (see Carbon, March 29).

Honors papers presented

by Susan Schuppan

A formal presentation of the senior honor's papers will be held from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Monday, April 23 in Allison Mansion.

Of the ten seniors participating in the event, all have topics chosen and rough drafts completed.

"Eumenides and the Haunted" is a comparison of two modern and ancient tragedies using the Jungian approach as researched by psychology major Andrea Suding.

Another paper to be presented is Julie Herbstrith's "A Theoretical Model to Increase the Effectiveness of Prison as a Form of Rehabilitation."

Half of her paper reviews literature on past rehabilitation programs and why they have failed. Also it is a look at prison environment and the socially induced strain toward deviance.

The other half of her presentation consists of her social and psychological model. Of the ten seniors participating, half are psychology majors. Four are English majors and one is an art major.
