Debaters Trade Verbal Blows
On Presidential Candidate Duel

Democratic and Republican teams vie with each other for political supremacy during an assembly, Oct. 23, opening an intercollegiate season planned by the Debate Club.

Judges voted Democratic team members Diane Bomkamp, Dave Allison, Carolyn Schelle, and Jim Johnson victorious against GOP standard-bearer Barry Spitzer, Shella Kemnedy, and Bob Campbell.

Republican concerns centered around Kennedy's precariousness, for, in the past two years, Spitzer cited Kennedy's absenteeism as a definite subcommittee member. African affairs, disarmament, and anti-communism were topics that failed to attract a single meeting among any of the subjects. Such paucity in these fields is directly opposite to promises he is now making.

In rebuttal, Johnson stressed that Nixon, during his tenure as vice-president, has been present only ten per cent of the time as compared to 70 per cent of Kennedy. He added that while "the theme during Theodore Roosevelt's administration was 'who's soft' and enter a big stick,' the theme of the Eisenhower administration has been 'I'm pulling.'" Continuing his criticism of the present administration, Johnson said there has been Indochina and lack of leadership. Paraphrasing Winston Churchill he concluded "Never have so few succeeded in so much so well."

Returning their decision on the debate were: Sister Florence Marie, Father Constant Zief, Gilbert V. Tutungi, and Mr. William Sahn. Announcer for the program was Carol Welches with Vince Koons presiding as moderator.

Why Study Outside Your Specialty?

"What are you specializing in?" is perhaps the most frequent question asked a student of any kind. The answer is, probably, the same: "for what it may be later used in this world, or to make a better mark, and get a diploma, though, without a general culture.

Specialization is certainly a key word in business, industry, scientific research and educational endeavors. This also holds true in education, since the body of acquired knowledge has grown so vast that it is almost impossible for anyone to master one field. But specialization is not education if not integrated in the unifying whole of culture. I am thinking here of the mathematician whose sense of aesthetics is buried under stacks of calculations, of the philosopher who never wondered in awe before the mystery of life; the science major with no concept of history; the business aspirant who fails to grasp the loftiness of philosophy. And so on.

The question of synthesis: that a center of learning should produce minds whose interest extends from the tiny atom to the far away galaxies; from the evolution of a language to the great currents of history, which shape all mankind, from the behavior of the genes to the conduct of international politics. We need people, who, besides their specialization, are equipped with a comprehensive culture, people to whom no human being is alien.

In the complexities of the modern world, just as we need people who can grasp in their thinking the total significance of man's activity and behavior, who would not only consider social, political, and economic repercussions when making great decisions, but who are also guided by principles and moral values. We need to regain the sense of the universal, and the unity of knowledge, in order to live rationally in this era of differentiation, of conflicting ideologies, and of pluralistic values.

Specialization will be with us, but compartmentalization should not. Sometime in our lives, we might be obliged to make important decisions which could have repercussions beyond our specialized fields. Are we equipping ourselves for such a task?

Program Issues Call for Leaders

The Student Affairs Program marks a milestone in student life at Marian College this year. Initiated as a project, born of a pressing need for greater student awareness and participation, the program is now an established part of student life at Marian.

Responsibilities of a student are not limited to passing his courses alone. Every student is part of a community whose members present the only requirements are eagerness and ambition. Opportunities for self-assertion will be abundant. Have the courage to follow your own convictions, not the convictions of the "crowd", be it political or social. And then feel it your duty to express these convictions on election day, not from prejudice or group pressure, but from individual sincerity. Think for yourself.

Opposing Views Take Spotlight in Party Preference Arena

by Thomas Dickey

What party do you favor? And why? This was the question that came to students. Their reaction to this question has resulted in a variety of opinions.

The biggest problem of choosing a candidate is trying to find someone. Those parents and students who con­centrate solely on one candidate may miss the opportunity to have an educated opinion.

The United States is a nation of people who believe in democracy. It is a place where we can vote for the person we think will represent our best interests. This is why it is so important to take the time to find out about the candidates before we make our decision.

The following statistics giving the favor Mr. Kennedy in the upcoming election. If this is the result of Catholic prejudices, it is a sad state of affairs. More so, since in college should be in a better position to overcome prejudices. It is scholastically thought that the more highly educated a man is, the less prejudiced he tends to be. Being oriented in Catholic scholasticism, we should feel obligated to recognize our prejudices and conquer them. Are we doing so? When you voted in the mock election, did you think of this?

Mr. Gillean Speaks On Foreign Policy

Business department host, Mr. David Gillean, addressed the Board of Directors of the Bankers Mortgage Corporation of Indianapolis, Oct. 12, on problems confronting housing establishments abroad. Mr. Gillean recently became a member of the American Foreign Service.

He explained that United States banks which are working principally occupied with social and economic factors, if they were ever true, but must have the other representatives of the American government and people. They must be able to answer all questions asked them about American habits, customs, and thinking.

Mr. Gillean also suggested that the United States, the number one power in the world, must also quickly understand the significant interests and desires of all other people in the world so that the help given by this country can be as effective as possible.

Sodality, CSMC Study

Sodalists and a CSMC study group, two activities of the current Catholic Youth Week (Oct. 27-29) are striving to promote the Catholic's only Moslem scholar.

According, his only Moslem scholar.

This is only within the last 65 years that the Navajos have become acquainted with Christianity. This is the opinion expressed by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Doyle of the American Foreign Service.

Speaking, he continued, "The American is important." This was followed by the question, "Will America ever have a position of leadership in the world?"

Stokely-Van Camp, Inc., discussed the following statement, he continued, "Although I cannot speak with authority after only a month's stay, I feel that anything spent in the service of America will be worthwhile.

Class distinction is so great that "either you are a servant or a master," said Mr. Gillean. He added that "street vendors and beggars are neither conscious, and many others carry work on their backs."

Educational Contracts

Poverty in every country accounts for the classroom attendance of the majority of children on a half-day basis. In the cities, Msgr. Doyle noted, "56% of the students attend high schools, some of which are Catholic. This is explained by the fact that "every one of my students sends his child to a private school."
Boosters Mobilize To Back Knights

The Booster Club, organized last year, formed the function of choosing hubs to finance home games.

Other projects will be to sponsor dances following home games, to help provide transportation to out-of-town games, and to cooperate on the Homencoming Week.

Officers of the club, Nilles' sister, Karen Persson, urges the support of every Marian student and the attendance at club meetings.

Rams Hold Slight First-Place Lead; Five Battle for Lead in Scoring Race

By Mike Nones

Oh, my aching forecaster. Here we are midway through the intra-mural season and my predictions of last month have been as successful as the satellite flights at Cape Canaveral.

The Rams, who were forewarned to occupy the cellar slot, are leading the league at this time. However, the margins of separation between them and the second place Colts is only a half game. A game back in third, the Cards are staging a valiant drive for first.

At the end of four weeks of play, the standings read:

There is also an interesting battle shaping up for the highest singles scorer. The Colts' Polski Cunningham leads with 20 points. O'Bright follows closely with 19.4 points. A trio of Rams, Bill Byers, Jim Rolles, and Jim Waterhouse, have quantities of 21, 22, and 24 points. However, the last place Rams, Mike Nones, are the only one of the outlaws and Bob Leppert of the Cards.

Twelve Enthusiasts Master Water Ballet

Under the supervision of Art Stagman and Janet Weyer, twelve students are participating in a synchronized swimming class.

Meeting once a week, the group is currently working on stances to improve gracefulness in the water. Various stunts will be perfected by the class during the first semester in the hopes of presenting a water ballet show next year.

Members of the class are: Karen Dooley, Josephine Staib, Mary Southwick, Lash Place, Kathy Curtiss, Mary Ellen Boyd, Rose Bryan, Donna Tolman, and Kathy Doup.
