"PROCESS OF POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS"

by Stacey Nicholas

The three candidates seeking the 10th district congressional seat -- Fred Peterson, Andy Jacobs, Jr., and Jim Eynon -- gathered in the Marian Library auditorium to debate the issues. Depending on party platforms, the deep flowing themes of the evening ranged from the rights of the individual to "government has lost its responsiveness to the people.

Dr. James Divita chaired the debate and Chris Worley, Jeff John, Michelle Scheidt, and Stacey Nicholas composed the student questioning panel.

Democratic incumbent Andy Jacobs, Jr., reinforced his opposition to the 1986 tax reform bill because he is confident that the bill hurts the poor and businesses. When questioned on whether or not the space shuttle should be part of the defense budget, he expressed his opinion that the shuttle program is as full of waste as the Defense Department and his favoring of unmanned deep-space probes. Jacobs predicts that the Supreme Court will rule mandatory drug testing is unconstitutional because it interferes with the American conviction that a person is innocent until proven guilty. He favors sanctions against South Africa for its policy of apartheid. In regard to federal waste Jacobs places the blame on the administration that runs the federal departments. Yet, he is opposed to the line veto, which some feel would enable a balanced budget to be produced, because Congress can regulate bills better than the President.

Libertarian Candidate, Fred Peterson, followed his party's

Eynon accused Jacobs of being a "career politician" who has been in Congress for 20 years without chairing a committee or a sub-committee, for being an ineffective legislator, with a poor bill passage record (of 342 bills presented in Congress by Jacobs only four have passed), and for the enormous growth of the federal government while Jacobs has been in office.

"National Mule Appreciation Week is an example of the type of bill that we can do without," Eynon said.

"Mr. Jacobs proposed a bill prohibiting a representative from retaining a seat for more than 10 years in any 12 year period. Mr. Jacobs should practice what he preaches."

Congressman Jacobs, responding to his opponent's charges, stated that Republican Senator Richard Lugar of Indiana has been in office with him when all the Federal growth Eynon is complaining about took place.

Jacobs continued that the President, as Chief Executive, is in charge of controlling the size of our government. When Jimmy Carter was in office, he was accountable for the growth that took place under his administration. Now, a Republican is in office, but Reagan isn't being held accountable as his predecessor was.

SPIRIT OF RELUCTANCE

by Kelley Ross

Marian is bursting with potential; it has talent, it has promise. Yet it also has an aura of reluctance, and we fear this reluctance belongs to the very ones who have the power to release that potential—or suffocate it. We are reminded of the child who is too possessive of a toy. The child has complete control and is very unwilling to share or, much less, give up that control.

A few incidents serve to illustrate this aura of reluctance. The most recent was the congressional debate here on campus. When we first asked permission to host this debate, we received a "go ahead" but no encouragement. Fine, we thought, maybe they don't think it will come to be. Our plans were met all the way with warnings: "Don't be biased." "No hecklers at the debate." "You can use this if you don't ruin it." Hey! Wait a minute! We were doing this for several reasons, but one of these reasons was to boost Marian's image. We want people to know we're exciting, to realize that we've got something to offer. But, we discovered, we had to convince certain members of the administration first. And we don't think we've been successful. That awful reluctance is still bearing down upon us.

Working together, trusting another to go out and do, mutual cooperation, celebrating and respecting different points of view—a these are waning and, in some cases, are nonexistent here at Marian. But that doesn't mean these ideals can never be.

Then the debate itself came around. A United States Congressman walks on our campus. Channel six and channel eight are here. Newspaper reporters are here. Was Marian here? Dean Woodman was the only member of the administration to show. The Magnet, the yearbook, didn't even think the event worth photographing or reporting on.

Marian had a great opportunity but let it slip by. We can't allow this. We've got too much to offer to allow differences of opinion or apathy to keep us from working together to build an institution for which we are all responsible. Come on! Let's smile and trust one another. Reluctance stifles, and it is killing our spirit. Maybe the problem isn't this simple, but maybe the solution is.

platform of isolationism when questioned about South African sanctions and Contra aid. He believes that the current tax structure is unfair and that the 1986 tax reform bill was introduced only because it is an election year. "Just juggling around the numbers will not change the tax structure." The Libertarians support the 'Warren Plan.' With this plan the federal government would assess each state depending on its per capita income. The state would then be responsible for collecting the money any way they want. This program would abolish the IRS. Peterson considers mandatory drug testing an invasion of privacy. To combat the drug problem, Peterson believes the profitability must be removed from it. His proposal to legalize drugs would do that.

Jim Eynon, Republican candidate, basically adheres to the Republican platform. Eynon is in favor of both mandatory drug testing and Contra aid as measures of prevention, drug testing as a deterrent to the increasing drug problem and Contra aid to prevent the spread of communism in the Americas. He would work to keep the space shuttle on a separate budget and for the program to continue despite its recent setbacks. By gaining some 'business sense' and allowing private business to run some federal programs, Eynon trusts federal waste can be cut drastically. When questioned about South African sanctions, Eynon favors "balanced" sanctions that would not push a violent revolution. A violent turnover may result in the new government walking on a communist platform.

Throughout the debate, Eynon re-enforced his belief that Jacobs is a useless "career politician." After being questioned by a member of the audience, Eynon stated that a career politician is one who has served in Congress for 10-12 years "and Andy Jacobs should practice what he preaches." This remark was in regards to legislation that Mr. Jacobs has sponsored that would limit the number of consecutive years a person may serve in the House. Jacobs rebutted with the explanation that the bill was to help break down House seniority rules. Peterson had the final laugh when he simply stated, "If he (a congressman) is doing what I want keep him: if not, get rid of him."

MARK BOLINE
DOYLE HALLS NEW

by Brad Landwerlen

Who’s the new RD at Doyle? For those who still haven’t met him, he’s Mark Boline, a 1986 graduate with a B.A. in Communications and a major emphasis in public relations from Millikin University in Dekatur, Illinois (also his home town). A Kappa Sigma from Millikin, he was the president of the chapter from 1985-1986, delegate to the national convention in 1983 & 1985, and chairman of various committees there from 1982-1986. At Millikan he also served as Rush Chairman, Treasurer of his fraternity, Student Senator, Hospital Corps Member, University Executive Committee Member, and an Orientation Committee member. So what did he do in his spare time when he wasn’t doing this and working at Musicland in Forsyth, Illinois? He also worked to promote scholarships for his fraternity and spent his summer supervising lifeguards at a beach in Illinois. He won the Illinois State Scholar Award in ’82, was on the Homecoming Cart in ’84, won the W.W. Wykoff Leadership/Scholarship Award in ’85, and won the Most Distinguished Greek award in ’86.

At Marian, he serves as a student counselor, as advisor for the Doyle Hall Council, is in control of maintenance, supports and promotes activities within the dorm, is a main source of communication between the Dean and the residents, and let’s not forget the ever-popular discipline.

He’s a part-time student at IUPUI (in a two-year program) where he’s majoring in College Student Personnel Administration, and after graduation he hopes to get a job in the student services field. He also enjoys as hobbies swimming, weight-lifting, biking, reading and writing.

Here on campus he hopes to communicate more with the students and is willing to listen to any problem, complaint, need or compliment anyone may have concerning the hall and the school as well. His office extension is 350 and his apartment extension is 375 “so feel free to call anytime.”

THANKS FROM JENNICE
by Trisha Miller

Two weeks ago, many of the R.A.’s conducted meetings in which they asked the people living on the Marian College campus to donate money for Jennice Chaney, an alumna of Marian who is suffering with leukemia. Between faculty, staff, students, and alumni about $1200 was raised, for which the surprised family is very grateful.

Jennice graduated from Tri-West High School in Pittsburgh, Indiana, in 1982. While at Marian, she participated in volleyball, basketball, and sometimes softball. She was also a high honors student who received phenomenal grades.

The middle of last January, Jennice was diagnosed as having leukemia. She had to quit basketball, and sometimes she was too sick to go to class. The college and teachers were understanding, and therefore she was able to take tests when she was feeling better. Jennice graduated last year with a major in Allied Health and Radiology, and she earned her certificate in Radiation.

At the present time, the hospital and Jennice are starting the process to get ready for her bone marrow transplant which should start some time this week. They are trying to kill off the old bone marrow, so that they can replace it with new uninfected marrow.

Because it is easy for Jennice to become infected, she is living in a bubble environment which is kept perfectly clean. But Jennice is also lucky, she is blessed with five brothers and sisters of which two are perfect matches for the transplant. It only depends on whether or not Jennice’s body accepts the new bone marrow.

Her body is getting stronger, and her coach, Audrey Satterblum told me that she is doing "as well as can be expected." Everyone I have spoken to has said, "Jennice is a real fighter.

Jennice and her family thank the staff, faculty, students, and alumni for the donations and prayers.

(This article is dedicated to all those who have had family and friends suffering from cancer, and especially to the memory of Kevin C. LaReau.)

Fred Peterson, Libertarian candidate, emphasized strengthening the individual rights guaranteed under the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution. He argued that the federal government is working for the good of the collective as opposed to the good of the individual, something that he wishes to change. Peterson also stressed that the federal government should be reduced in size and change the concept on which it is based.

Replying to the first question from the student panel (consisting of Michelle Scheidt, Chris Worley, Jeff Johns, and Stacey Nicholas) concerning tax reform, Peterson said that the U.S. Government should return to the form of taxation that was employed before the Civil War. The Federal Government would assess each individual state and it would then be up to the state to raise the money by any means it sees fit, whether it be by lottery, sales tax, or by other means.

Mr. Jacobs stated that he was against the President’s Tax proposal because it allowed the rich to remain untaxed while the poorer classes bear the brunt of the expenses.

Eynon added that our present taxation system is inadequate and unfair. The newly proposed bill lowers individual taxes to the constituents in the 10th district by 6.1%, while it raises the revenue of the federal government. Eynon is in favor of any simplification of our system of taxation.

The most diversified views of the candidates were on the question raised by Stacey Nicholas concerning the federal government’s use of mandatory drug testing. Peterson replied that not only is drug testing in violation of the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution, but that drug use should be legalized across the board.

Jacobs disagrees with drug testing because a person is innocent until proven guilty. He feels that on a legal basis the policy will be declared unconstitutional.

Eynon replied that the Federal Government has “every right in the world” to administer the test.

In closing, Peterson stated that he would like to return to the fundamental liberties guaranteed by the Bill of Rights and called for the slaying of the massive monster of our government.

Eynon asked for the retirement of Jacobs so that he may live up to the terms of his own legislation, ending with a cry that “enough is enough.”

Jacobs requested to return civility in the campaign. He also vowed to “stay out of Central America.”
You may or may not know this, but there is a new nun living at the Convent who has hair all over her face -- in fact, all over her body! This new nun at the Convent is none other than a three-month-old puppy named Sugar Franks. She has been living in the Convent since she was dumped on campus on August first.

Since several interviews with new faculty members have appeared in the newspaper lately, The Carbon has arranged an interview with Sugar through her “mother” Sr. Joel and her “sisters,” Sisters Adele and Vivian Rose.

Sugar, as you may expect, is a thoroughly devout dog, as she must be to live in the Convent. When asked if Sugar has taken any vows yet, Sr. Joel said that the puppy is living in the Convent since she was dumped on campus on August first.

Aunt Adele commented that she sometimes has problems getting the mail out of the mailbox because Sugar is often in there reading her own mail, addressed “Sugar Franks c/o Joel Franks.”

Sr. Joel says that Sugar’s room is bigger than hers and that Sugar “leads a nun’s life.”

Although Sugar is currently very busy, preparing to take a major in Accounting, she does have time for fun. Some of her hobbies include watching dog food commercials and listening to the music that goes with them, watching Monday Night Football, and rolling around with Aunt Adele’s sandals.

When asked what Sugar’s favorite foods are, Mother Joel said that she liked all kinds of people food, especially ice cream. However, Sugar is currently satisfied with Milk Bones because Sister (Aunt) Ruth Ann pretended like she was taking bread sticks out of a bread stick bag that were actually Milk Bones.

Since Marian College is basically a dry campus, most residents don’t know much about alcohol but when Aunt Vivian Rose was asked what kind of beer that Sugar enjoyed, she said, “Do you think we’d feed beer to a dog?” Then she laughed and told me not to print that remark.

Too late! In total seriousness, however, Mother Joel said that Sugar is a wine cooler dog and she won’t be able to have beer until she eats pizza, which she hasn’t tried yet. Mother Joel is also proud to announce that Sugar will be teaching a class next semester—Obedience 101.

So, we welcome you to Marian College, Sugar! Anyone wishing to leave Milk Bones for Sugar (or pizza, ice cream, wine coolers, etc.) just drop them off to Sister Joel in the Business Office.
MRS. WATERS

by Debbie Eacret

Saying good-bye to Mrs. Ruth Waters will not be an easy task. She will have been at Marian for twenty-two years come November twenty-second. That's a long time to be working and away from home each day. She plans to stay home and catch up on things that have been neglected for the past twenty-two years.

When asked, "Do you think you'll miss Marian?" she responded with a very positive, "Oh, I know I will!" Making plans to come back and visit, she says it won't be hard because "my car will naturally want to go west (toward Marian)!

Mrs. Waters began working in the president's office, then Monsignor Rhiney, doing secretarial work concerning college business and the board of Trustees. After the president's retirement she moved to her present Marian Hall office, working under Sr. Karen. Here she began her contact with the students and she has enjoyed it ever since.

Working with students has been her greatest reward at Marian, and that's what she'll miss the most. "I even miss them at Christmas break, and I'm always ready to welcome them back."

When does she plan to leave? October first was set as a tentative date, but it really depends upon when the administration can replace her. Time to get things in order is also needed. She doesn't want to leave a mess.

So next time you pass through the first floor of Marian Hall, don't forget to stop in and say Goodbye to Mrs. Waters and wish her luck on her "journey from home."

PACKAGING YOURSELF FOR SUCCESS

by Brad Landwerien

Yes, it's that time again -- time for the 4th annual interviewing skills seminar called "Package Yourself For Success." On the evening of Wednesday, October 1, the Home Economics Club and the Office of Career Planning and Placement are happy to present to all who are interested the free seminar which will present the facts which equip one with a winning edge when it comes to the interview situation.

The show will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a couple of speakers stressing the appropriate clothing for the situation, then move on to an in-depth look at interviewing techniques, and then wrap up the evening with a mock interview with a graduating Marian College Senior.

Ms Deb Thornburgh and Mr. Rob Lukemeyer, both buyers for Rodrick St. John's at Glendale Mall, will discuss the best clothing for the interview for women and men, respectively. They'll have some samples to show, as well as many interesting and reassuring tips to help the interviewee go in looking fit for the job.

Mr. Donald Planigan, Personnel Director for National Starch and Chemical Company, will then take to the stage to dissect the interviewing process and explain exactly what the interviewer expects and wants of an interviewee. After he's explained this, he'll conduct mock interviews with Marian Basketball Player and Business major Ron Wituski. Dave Roberts, Director of Career Planning and Placement here at Marian, stresses that this may be the only chance we'll have to see and hear a pro in an actual interview situation (speaking of Ron Wituski, of course). He also pointed out that interviewing is a practiced and learned skill, not just luck, and that this program could be the key to your future.

So, keep in mind that the Marian College Library Auditorium is the place to be on Wednesday, October 1, at 7:30 p.m., if you're serious about getting the job you desire after graduation or this summer.

NURSING UPDATE

Further information has come to the Carbon desk regarding the events planned by the ADN Student Nurses Association.

The Association is sponsoring a party for all non-traditional students October 18, 1986, at the Allison Mansion. According to Diana Middendorf, President, the party is being held in hope that the non-traditional students at Marian College can be united and thereby find an effective campus voice.

The ADN Student Nurses plan to fund this party by a bake sale to be held October 2 & 3, in front of the Book Store. Any who wish to contribute to the sponsoring of this party are invited to donate baked goods for the sale or just buy the ADN Student Nurses Association goodies to help sponsor the party.
TENNIS: NEW BEGINNING

by Michelle Scheidt

Having competed in five matches, the Marian Women's tennis team is well into the new season. The Knights, coached by Marian graduate Brad Kolter, are a very young team and have had little experience in college-level competition. However, the team is improving greatly as the season progresses and they gain experience.

Coach Kolter says that this season is a "new beginning" and a testing of the team and the women's tennis program. He views this year as a "learning season" and sees his team taking "steps up the ladder" to better playing. He knows the women have made some big strides and expects even more improvement further on in the season.

The Knights are showing a lot of hard work and dedication to their team: 7:00 a.m. practices can be very demanding. The members of the women's tennis team are: Katie Lynch, Bobbi Tucker, Jerri Lynn Harlond, Suzie McOmber, Lora Netherton, Sharon Flynn, and Natalie Lake.

CC OVERCOMES OBSTACLES

by Stacey Nicholas

Last weekend the cross country team ran the extremely tough course at the Taylor Invitational. The course was not "a true test of an athlete" because it contained water jumps, narrow paths, and log jumps. Due to two previous days of rain and 152 runners, there was also the problem of bad footing.

In spite of the hardships, two out of our three returning runners bettered their times from last year. There was nothing to compare the freshmen's times to.

Coach Roberts feels the team has lost some ground this year, based on their showing against the same teams they met earlier in the season. Marian "should have kept pace" much better than they did, he felt.

The cross country team beat the same teams they had beaten previously at the Grace Invitational, however.

Looking towards the future the team is planning on defeating Earlham, St. Joseph, Goshen, and Depau in coming meets.

CRUSADE CONTINUES

by Michelle Scheidt

The Knights volleyball team beat IUPUI in five games last Thursday.

The first game was notable for its fast-paced action until the very end; Marian broke a 14-14 tie and won the game 16-14. The third game also had high tension; IUPUI edged out the Knights 15-13.

Aggressive front row blocking kept IUPUI players on their toes throughout the match. Amy Bekham aided the win with an excellent spiking.

INTRAMURALS IN THE NINTH INNING

by Michelle Scheidt

The big news for the week in the world of intramurals is that the R.A.'s finally won a game! They beat "Who Cares" is in the 5:30 league Monday. Good news for dorm residents - life should be tolerable for the new week or so.

A new team has been formed in the 5:30 league. The "T-Birds" made their debut Monday evening. "Fi-Fo" and "Fubar" are back in action after a one week rest period. Things are looking good for the teams in the 5:30 league!

The 4:30 league is still very competitive. The records are close and the action is fast and furious.

Tournament time has arrived! Both leagues will participate in tourney play Monday and Wednesday. Look for a full report on the tournament next week.

A question for all softball players: What is a "U.B. Illin" anyway?
