JACOBS SURVIVES EYNON BY 5% OF POPULAR VOTE

by Kelley Ross and Scott Reinhardt

Incumbent Congressman Andrew Jacobs, Jr. won a closely contested race for the 10th district House of Representatives Seat.

Congressman Jacobs received roughly 20,000 or 5% more votes than his challenger, Jim Eynon.

Eynon spoke briefly to hundreds of fellow Republicans gathered at the Murat Temple Shrine Tuesday night. Eynon expressed great thanks to the many volunteers who contributed to his campaign.

Eynon stated that "I am in no way closing any doors, but right now my wife and I would just like to get away for awhile."

Eynon also congratulated all the Republicans who were victorious Tuesday night. All other Marion County candidates defeated their Democratic opponents.
PORNOGRAPHY AND FREEDOM OF CHOICE

by Dr. Steve Kristoff

When I was first approached about writing this article I immediately jotted down a few references I thought might be helpful in developing my ideas. Such documents as the recent report by the Meese Commission on Pornography, local anti-pornography statutes (including those which treat pornography as a violation of women's civil rights), and copies of crime statistics from countries with varying degrees of anti-pornography legislation are examples of such references.

It occurred to me, however, that the issue of censorship (which is, after all, what this is all about) goes beyond government commissions, legislation, and crime statistics. I believe the heart of the controversy lies in the question "What does it mean to be human?"

Is it human to view a visual image of naked humans and become excited to the point of loss of self-control? Is it human to become so self-righteous that the opinions, feelings, and beliefs of others become trivial? The answer, in both cases, is "yes." These behaviors are only two of the infinite number of possibilities for human experience.

Are such behaviors right or wrong? The answer to that depends on who you ask, which actually means that neither behavior is right or wrong. All behaviors and experiences are simply human.

Many of those in favor of censorship believe that exposure to pornography predisposes a human to committing violence. All the people you've come to know in your life can only reveal a small fraction of the possibilities of human personality. With an infinite number of possibilities, how is it possible to know who will be violent and who will not? The easy rejoinder is that if even one person is spurred to violence then pornography should be banned.

This brings me back to the issue of human-ness. It is my belief that what separates humans from animals is our ability to make judgments based on past experience, present environment, and abstract beliefs. Without this capacity we are simply another vertebrate. Censorship is nothing less than denying a human the right to make his or her own judgments concerning what to see, to hear, or to read. It is denying another human their humanity.

Many proponents of censorship use the Bible as a source for their convictions. It is my understanding, however, that the main thrust of Jesus' teachings is love. Not necessarily love in the physical sense, but true, universal love which requires a deeper understanding of and tolerance for the differences that make us all unique beings. The traditions tell us that Jesus had little to do with the self-righteous Pharisees who would impose their will on the Israelites. Jesus was a friend to the common people. He associated with lepers, prostitutes, and beggars; people who would have been rejected by the Pharisees as 'unclean'. Jesus' message of love is that these are people, too.

In the individual quest for a higher morality, it will probably happen that the seeker will reject pornography simply because it represents a baser form of human experience. But the must occur on a personal level. It is obvious, in a historical sense, that attempts to legislate morality only lead to cultural stagnation or even regression. I cite Iran as a case in point. It would be a step backwards to allow censorship to happen here.

ALUMNI:
PHONE HOME

by Pat Webb

Have you ever wanted to donate money to the Alumni Fund but you didn't know how to do so? Well, through the Phone-A-Thon, run by Ms. Laura A. Gantner, the director of Alumni Services, interested parties can give as much money as they so desire to the Alumni Fund. Fifteen thousand dollars of the money collected from the Phone-A-Thon will go for scholarships with the remainder going to the general operating fund which consists of everything from lights to salaries. According to Ms. Gantner, as of now, the pledged total is $15,877, with one pledge actually having been made for $5,000! Last year, the Phone-A-Thon, which is the major way that the Alumni Fund gets money, made $15,000 for scholarships and $54,000 for the general operating fund.

Alumni groups that are phoning are the two reunion classes of '61 and '81. Different clubs on campus are also helping to phone, such as freshman girls, the junior class, MACAPHER, the girls' volleyball team, the Doyle Hall Council, the sophomore class, FCA, the Clare Hall Board, and a group of nurses and commuters. The two teams that obtain the most money will each receive $25.00.

Ms. Gantner finds this Phone-A-Thon, which is the first one she has worked on, to be a very fun and informative experience. She commented, "We're finding out a lot about the changes that need to be made in the alumni mailing addresses. We also have a good time and the kids are terrific and are really hard workers."

PHILOSOPHY:
DR. VEATCH

by Scott Reinhardt

World-renowned Aristotelian scholar Dr. Henry Veatch was on campus last Wednesday to speak at an informal luncheon sponsored by the Theology/Philosophy Department.

Dr. Veatch, as one-time Philosophy Department Chairman at Georgetown University, spoke to members of the Theology/Philosophy Department along with several other faculty members and students.

Dr. Veatch commented on the decline of philosophy majors across the nation. According to Veatch, "Philosophy remains an interest because of general education requirements."

Re-enforcing the fact that Philosophy is an important aspect of education, Veatch said, "The Natural Sciences should have every reason to be interested in Philosophy." Veatch added that all learning should be aimed at the betterment of human beings.

Veatch commented, "The very thing colleges should get students to come to understand is what their end (purpose) is."

In answer to the question of what the basic purpose of human life is, Veatch said that from a theological aspect, "all that matters is to love and enjoy God"; however, this in no way lessens the importance of the philosophical life: "it isn't enough for a human to go through life unquestioningly--he needs, as a rational animal, to gain wisdom and understanding."

From beginning to end, Dr. Veatch was an interesting lecturer. He was very quick-witted, often quoting Leviticus, Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle from memory.

Closing, he added that "the good life is the intelligent life; humans, according to Veatch, should follow the principle that "all education should contribute to self-knowledge."
MARIAN COLLEGE HAUNTS

by Brad Landwerlen

The Marian College haunted house went over well again this year despite the last-minute change of location from the traditional "spooky-spot" (the old gym), to the Clare Hall Basement. The senior class, having less than a week to set up, quickly went to work on Sunday with the assistance of the Theatre Department, Mrs. Potash (the senior class advisor), Mr. Henderson, and maintenance. By opening day, the haunted house was ready.

The tour began as a witch, (Monica Durnin, Cheryl Kolar, Kate Stannifer, or Jill Baker) or Paul Teal (the worlock), greeted you at the door to guide you through the experience. With no time wasted, you were in "The Tomb of the Mummies", (Bryan Nichols, John Joven, and Jeff McClure). After this, you were introduced to the "Talking Dead", (Ann Volk) and her assistants Patty Munmies, Randy Canada as Count Dracula. Next, there were three witches at the door, (Monica Durnin, Cheryl Kolar, and Ann Volk) and you passed Greg Lee, who is chained to a log and being whipped by Steve Johnson. Next, there were three witches at the door, (Monica Durnin, Cheryl Kolar, and Ann Volk) and you passed Sam Greiman, who is chained to a log and being whipped by Steve Johnson. HALLOWEEN BALL

A SUCCESS

by Christopher Lowe

The Halloween Ball sponsored by the Doyle Hall Council was labelled a success this weekend. The lobby of Doyle was jam-packed with many students dressed in creative costumes for the occasion, highlighted by a group dressed as chickens. The latter took first prize in" best group" and "best overall" in the costume contest. Doyle Hall would like to thank Mike Luebhehusen and Kim Carrico for their help in decorating and cleaning up. The Student Relations Committee was also thanked for their help in setting up and playing the music. They also would like to thank everyone involved in set-up and clean up, and especially the faculty/staff judges.

TAX REFORM SHUFFLE

(To the tune of "Super Bowl Shuffle"
* Lyrics by James Baker III)
The other day I was walking up and down the wings of Andy's Ark at the IUPUI campus. Even though Andy's Ark has sandwiches in the outer deck and no candy, or anything else, on the lower deck, it's still a pretty nice ark to live in. I couldn't believe it, however, when a small dog started running up and down the Ark until he sniffed out one of the Ark Rangers, B.V. Fartington. Then, Fartington said, "Hello Woody, are you ready to go and sniff out Cokes in everyone's bunks?" Woody barked and Fartington said, "I know they're not allowed on the ark but can't the sailors have a little fun every now and then?" Woody proceeded to growl at the hapless Ark Ranger for over 2 hours until the "second-in-command" decided to take her rightful place in charge since the president of IUPUI was at the National-Tulip-Tree-Planting-Contest-While-Playing-Hide n' Seek. The "second-in-command" told Woody to sniff out all the Cokes and they found 526,000 full cans. All the cans were turned in to Kyle the Crocodile and R.J. for inspection. R.J., however, along with a 69-man construction team, was busy fazing candy into the lower deck, so Kyle the Crocodile took inventory of the cans. Meanwhile, the "second-in-command" and Woody were threatening all the sailors with swamp gas when, all of a sudden, the "second-in-command" grasped at her chest, screaming. She then passed out. (to be continued at the IUPUI Baby Delivery Room at some later date)

It's homecoming time again here at Camp Marian and that means (yes, you guessed it!) it's time for the Variety Show. This year's show will have even more variety and new faces to enjoy. With these new talented people in addition to the "regulars" from the last several years, this year's show promises to be one of the best that Marian has seen in a long time.

Included in the Variety Show this year are such diverse acts as the "Knight Moves" (Marian's own swing choir!), a jazz ensemble, several guitar selections, a skit by T.A.G., vocal numbers, and a dance selection. Although there isn't room here to print all of the tremendous acts in the Variety Show, I will mention a few specific ones: The Swing Choir will perform "Varsity Drag," Susanne Lorenz and Lisette Shattuck are going to play a jazz arrangement of Bourree' by J.S. Bach, and watch out for Natalie Lake's HOT dance set to the pop song, "What Have You Done For Me Lately?"

Also included in the Variety Show during intermission is the crowning of the Homecoming Queen. Come out and see who the Homecoming Queen will be for 1986!

With all the Variety Show has to offer this year, it should definitely be an event that nobody would want to miss. So make sure you show up for a fantastic evening!

IT'S BEEN A LONG TIME...MAYBE TOO LONG

by Chris Worley

It's here! The long awaited third album from Boston! Or is it? Well it is...and it isn't. The album cover says "Boston," "Third Stage" and depicts a slick futuristic space concept (like the first two albums). Also, Tom Scholz and Brad Delp are back, and one listening reveals that that unique Boston guitar and vocal style are present.

But there are some elements missing. Noticeably absent are three of the five original band members; the percussion just isn't the same without Sib's powerfully distinct drum technique. Also missing is the raw spontaneity of the first album. That friendly humor on the cover -- explaining how the album came to be -- is there, but it seems somehow forced. Also, the sound seems a bit too slick and yet awkward.

So what happened to the band astray? Perhaps the biggest problem is the amount of time elapsed from conception to completion of the album: six years! As Scholz says on the cover, "Time to record an album is usually measured in months. After the first two or three years, I began to lose perspective of the months ...." He also lost perspective of the music. His songs are overworked and have all the spontaneity of a Hallmark card. There are too many after-thoughts and awkward transitions. The best example is the song "Hollivudd" which was written and rewritten, recorded and re-recorded in 1980, '81, '82, '84 and '85 for release in the fall of '86.

Another basic problem seems to be that Scholz violated one of his own tenets. In 1976 Scholz stated that musicians cannot let technology control the creative process of music-making. The first album was recorded in about four months in Scholz' basement on second-hand equipment and some gadgets that Scholz himself (a graduate of MIT) built. On the contrary, "The Third Stage" utilizes a box nicknamed and patented, "The Rockman" to "generate the Boston guitar sound," as Scholz proudly admits. Furthermore, over one-hundred reels of music were recorded and dubbed and redubbed and spliced and ... you get the idea ... for over six years.

But what about the album itself? Side One is a concept beginning with the radio burnt-out love song "Amanda." From there the songs make up a journey through space which serves as a metaphor for human experience. The Journey begins with "We're Ready" and continues through "The Launch," "Cool the Engines" and returns with "My Destination" to a variation of the "Watchful" theme. Although awkward, side one works best.

On side two, the band moves through six songs, each of moderate quality, but it seems that Scholz isn't sure how to get in and out of his tunes. There are hesitations, sudden change-ups and apparent lack of compositional confidence.

One last gripe: Why does the band feel the need to mention at least six times that "No Synthesizers were used to record this album"? "Listen to the Record" was much easier to swallow.

And yet, despite the flaws, this is a worthwhile album. If one were to approach the "Third Stage" with an unbiased listening (having never heard the first album) he would likely be astonished by the obvious talent and sincerity of the musicians. The music is good. It's just not what a Boston fan expects; it's not GREAT.

And so, let us hope for the fourth album. May it quickly arrive to resurrect our confidence and respect for Tom Scholz and his super-group, Boston.

HELP SISTER SHIRLEY HELP US

As an organization of Marian College, Clare Hall Board is donating $10 to Sister Shirley. We are challenging all other clubs, councils, and organizations to do the same.

The money donated will help Sister Shirley reach her goal of $300. This money will be used to help pay for the expenses of attending a Bookstore Convention in California. This in turn will help improve the Marian College Bookstore on its selection and variety.

We ask that everyone take the challenge and match our $10 donation.

NETTERS DISTRICT
by Michelle Scheidt

The Knights Volleyball Team enters into district competition Friday night against St. Mary's. The top 8 of 22 teams in the state are competing in these play-offs. Marian is ranked third in southern Indiana. St. Mary's, with a 22-7 season record, is ranked second in northern Indiana.

The Lady Knights are entering into the tourney with a record of 25-12 for the season. The regular season ended November 1 with a loss to Oakland City and a final win over Vincennes. Coach Audrey is very enthusiastic about the season: "This is probably the most enjoyable and cohesive team since I've been at Marian."

Intramural Football Leagues are in full swing, playing games on Wednesdays and Sundays at the Wetlands. All teams will play this Sunday: the Women's League at 3:30 and the Men's League at 4:30.

The new teams have been formed with many new and interesting team names. The Women's Division is made up of "The Muggers", "San Francisco 49ers", "Bud Lite Crew", and "Ferns." "Ferns," or more appropriately "Fern's Mystery Team", looks promising, (if they ever show up for one of their games).

The Men's Division consists of "Shlonker's Stompers", "No Jock's Required", "Masters of the Universe", "Shank's Stealer's", "The Jovens", and "Dog's Dogs".

MARIAN'S VISITORS
by: Trisha Miller

Last week, 47 students visited the Marian College campus. Only 28 of those students left applications, but Donald French, Director of Admissions feels that several of those students had already applied.

The reasons for coming to Marian varied. The ones that are most popular are: location, relatively modest tuition, atmosphere, and the caliber of some programs.

The comments from the students who visited here are good. Many of them were impressed with the beauty of the campus and the friendliness of the students and the faculty. Mr. French feels that enrollment for next year could go up. Financial aid will be a large factor as to whether this is true or not. At the present time, Admissions is pleased with recruitment which could not be done without the excellent group of Golden Knights.

CC UPSET
by Christopher Lowe

Inclement weather didn't hamper the running Knights in their final meet of the season at Wabash last Saturday; two over-zealous runners did. Collegiate cross country meets are 8 kilometers, which is approximately 5 miles. The secret to success is to establish a pace over the bulk of the race, and then finish strong. Freshman Brad Bechler and junior Christopher Lowe broke this rule for success by running the first mile in a sub-5 minute pace. The two over-winded Knights then proceeded to fade back with Bechler dropping out and Lowe finishing last in the race.

Wabash easily won the meet and probably would have won even if Bechler and Lowe were even without the excellent group of Golden Knights.
BLOOD DONATIONS NEEDED

by Stacey Nicholas

Imagine how you would feel if a life-saving tool was not around in time of need. Blood is such a tool. On Wednesday, November 12, Campus Ministry will be sponsoring a blood drive in the Clare Hall Lounge. They have been sponsoring a blood drive twice a year for the past three years. Everyone is encouraged to give blood. When a donor comes for his appointment, he will be asked to fill out a questionnaire. Next, his blood pressure will be taken and a small blood test will be administered. If anyone missed signing up for an appointment, don't worry, walk-ins are welcome. A person can not contract AIDS by giving blood. The needles and equipment used during the drawing of blood are disposed of after one usage. Marian collects an average of 70 pints of blood each drive.
