DOYLE CHALICE DEDICATED

by Jenna Morrow

In the presence of several faculty, Dr. Louis C. Gatto, college president, was presented with the chalice and paten of the late Monsignor John J. Doyle on March 27, 1987. The chalice and paten were last seen as part of a floral arrangement on the Monsignor's casket in Marian's chapel, from which he was buried, on March 25, 1985. In the Monsignor's will, he passed his prized possession over to the Archbishop of Indianapolis. But in February of 1987, Archbishop Edward T. O'Meara decided that Marian College was a more fitting place for the chalice and paten.

Monsignor Doyle had served as first chaplain and a faculty member of Marian from 1937-1969. In his years at Marian, the Monsignor taught a variety of subjects from philosophy and logic to economics and sociology. Those who knew him "remember a man whose intellectual preoccupations always took precedence over mere material concerns and personal appearance," Dr. Divita noted. But his chalice and paten were more than material; they were symbolic of the consecration of the bread and wine in the Eucharist and also a family heirloom. The sterling loving cup once belonged to his uncle, the Reverend John W. Doyle. Upon the Monsignor's ordination by Bishop Chatard on May 17, 1921, his mother presented him with his uncle's loving cup refashioned into a chalice, gold plated, and suitably inscribed.

THANK YOU

If you took a trip to the canteen lately, you may have noticed that the menu has changed somewhat. There are two sizes of salads and other goodies.

For those of us who are diet conscious, this is a great change!

BUT! Still no paper plates to put your sandwich on while heating, no pepper to spice up the necessarily bland foods sold in the machines, and the microwave still reminds me of an airlift in Cambodia.

We'll take what improvements we can get, even though we feel more can be done, especially since ARA has the monopoly on food service. From the commuter students, THANKS!

BUT----!

Pillow Students of Marian College:

I, Dave Guerretaz, am seeking your support in my bid for President of the MCSA. As its Treasurer over the past two years, I have reorganized and clarified the Student Association budget system. Also, I have been a part of many effective changes in the Student Association. But much more remains to be done. We, the students, still have many needs that must be met and questions (like what is the true role of the MCSA at Marian?) answered.

I believe next year, when our college celebrates its 50th anniversary, will be a golden opportunity to revitalize the Student Association and create a sense of excitement and pride in the MCSA as well as Marian overall. Now is the time that we all unite and work together! I thank you for allowing me to serve you as your Treasurer over the past two years and hope you will allow me to lead us in a productive and successful '87-'88 year.

Thank you,

David A. Guerretaz

I am writing to inform you of my intent to run for Vice President of Student Board for next year. As Vice President, I would encourage everyone, residents and commuters, to get involved and work with the faculty to improve Marian. As chairman of the Publications Committee, I would make meetings several times to discuss issues of concern with the Carbon, Yearbook, and Floretti. I would work with those groups to recruit quality writers for campus publications.

A year of experience as Secretary has enabled me to learn how Student Board is run. I could fill the role of Parliamentarian because of experience with Parliamentary Procedure in high school. I would like to help organize activities with nearby schools and try once again to organize a MC Day at Union Station.

We have an excellent school, and a strong student government is essential to improve it. Some people see the position of Vice President as a "do nothing" position, but I assure you, I wouldn't see it that way! So remember to vote for the new Student Board officers with experience who will welcome students' suggestions and will get the job done.

Sincerely,

not be a hindrance to the college community. I can understand wanting to allow this to Becker, especially if they do it themselves and don't expect Marian to foot the bill, but the teachers who use the auditorium should at least be consulted. I have no preference as to what is done, as long as it benefits Marian College. I believe the final question will be this: do we lose the money and Becker and keep our campus suited for those who use it now? or do we allow for some adaptation and hope it works out?

RESPONSE TO REMODELLING

A very difficult decision is now facing Colonel Joe Ryan and the rest of the Marian administration. They have to decide how the remodeling of the Library Auditorium for Becker CPA will affect the school. Because Becker is a big account and has been here for some years, Marian is trying to accomodate them. However, this accommodation should...
SENIOR PROFILE

SENior PROFILE

by Brad Landwerlen

Senior Ben Glen was born into a military family which has already given him a world of travelling and homes, including Florida, Maryland, Kansas, New York, and Utah. His older brother, like his father, graduated from West Point. He also has one younger brother and four sisters.

Ben has become a familiar face to Marian students, faculty, and administration alike because of his involvement in the school. Ben is President of the Marian College Student Association (Student Board) and has been coordinator of Blood Drives and Fasts, as well as being an active member of Campus Ministry, and Swing Choir. He has also helped with and participated in many of Marian's plays.

Ben is not your average 4-year student, but will be completing his 4-year Elementary Education major in only 3 1/2 years because of his dedication and thanks to the help of his advisor. He hopes to get a job in a school system in one of the communities surrounding Indianapolis; he feels that teaching elementary school children is definitely his call.

In his spare time here at Marian, Ben enjoys raquetball, swimming, bicycling, and making money, not to mention a love for gambling whenever he gets to visit his family in Nevada.

Ben says, "You can get what you're looking for here at Marian, including a good education. Also, school goes faster and is more interesting when you get involved." Ben has made the Dean's List twice -- both times while working on a part-time job.

The Carbon wishes Ben good luck and prosperity in all of his endeavors.

The Monsignor's chalice and paten can be viewed in the glass cabinet by the Registrar's, so everyone can appreciate its beauty and the Doyle family's century-long, intimate connection with the Church of Indiana.

The words engraved upon the chalice, "The Eternal Priesthood," can sum up the man who had such a great effect upon this college. May this chalice and paten be a reminder to us all.

EDUCATING THE WISE

by Kini Huckaby

Every Tuesday, you may see a lot of older citizens dining in the lunch room. These people are involved in the "Mature Living Seminars" offered by Sister Miriam Clare. Each Tuesday between 65 and 80 "chronologically gifted" citizens meet in room 251 of Marian Hall to listen to guest speakers and share ideas and experiences.

Last semester, the series' theme was "Intracultural Experiences." The participants talked about religions, women in world cultures, world art, the memory system, genetic endowment, and other worldly topics.

This semester's theme is "Intercultural Experiences." This series offers topics dealing with other lands and cultures, Russian history, life in Israel and China, living with American Indians, and a peek at the Pan Am Games. Not only do the older adults listen to lectures on these topics, they also participate. These people are curious and offer much affirmation to those who lead the lectures.

Odessa Holdcroft, a participant since the seminars started in 1974, under the direction of Marie Witte, said, "The seminars really get my mind working again. It's hard to say what I like best -- I like it all. Well, except some of the political stuff. But the seminars make it interesting and I can ask questions. I think it's important to learn about other governments."

The series is intended for those adults who are 55 and older. A donation of $10 for the entire series (or two dollars a day) is appreciated to help with expenses.

If you see some of these older adults at lunch, why not share some ideas with them? They have a lot to offer.
FIGHTER SIDE

by J.T. the Wildest
and Pat the Partyer

Has God returned? Some of the guys at Doyle Hall believe he has and in the form of Steve Alford. At least that was the consensus Monday night. Ask Devo if you don’t believe me. Hoosier hysteria went “out of control” that night. Some campers were not content at cheering the Hoosiers on at Camp M, so they road tripped to the scene at I.U., and what a scene it was. People running naked in the streets and beverages flowing like a river all over the campus. Our own roving reporter Pat the Partyer made the scene to get an eyewitness account of the activities. “It was a madhouse, I didn’t think I’d make it back alive. It was almost as wild as some of the parties at Marian College”.

But while the majority of the college campuses in Indiana were raising their glasses of cheer to the championship Hoosiers, other pranksters are being pulled at Camp M, but these are in the form of the MCPD firing squad. “Move your car or we’ll shoot!” But don’t worry baseball fans, they’ll probably drop their gun and shoot themselves in the leg. We pay good money to go to Camp M and if we want to cheer the team on, and in the center field, so be it. Or should we say, “Remember the Alamo!”? Oops! Wasn’t this mentioned last week? Who cares? This is important. How you can say we’re REPETITIVE too, as well as conservative and boring. But hey, that’s life in the big city, and anyway it’s the American way; two for one!

Remember, they “say” the meek shall inherit the earth.

Elevator Club meeting Saturday from 6-7 p.m., Marian Hall.

GILKEY: SCIENCE AND FAITH
by Linda Thackery

On March 24, thirteen representatives of the Philosophy/Theology Department traveled to Purdue University to hear Langdon Gilkey speak on Creationism. The lecture was part of a special series on Science, Technology, and the Christian Faith sponsored by the Wesley Foundation.

Prof. Gilkey, from the University of Chicago Divinity School, spoke on his experiences with a trial that took place in Little Rock, Arkansas, in December of 1981, dealing with Creationism versus Evolution. He was asked to express his views on the subject as a theologian.

One of the main concerns was the "Equal Treatment Law" which roughly states that if either evolution or creation is taught, the other must be given equal treatment. Along with this, there is a problem with the government trying to define religion, which involves the separation of church and state. Gilkey stated that "the state has no business defining religion for us."

The judge at the trial stated that the sole issue was concerned with the First Amendment. Although a witness for the evolution side, Gilkey was there to argue for religion and not science. It has been said that science is located in its factual content, but Gilkey holds that science is science due to the theoretical structure. "The appreciation of theory is very important in our culture."

At the end of Gilkey's presentation, there was a brief response by Dr. Sydny Callahan and a question/answer period.

RECITAL SOUNDS FINALE
by Shelly Leman

Stokely Mansion hosted a Student Recital on Friday evening, March 27. The audience filled all of the seats and people were spilling out into the hallway as instrumentals as well as vocals were performed for their enjoyment. The participants were students of Cheryl Eiszener, Sr. Mary Gloria, Sara Reid, and James Lerner.

The program began with a duet "Sound the Trumpet" sung by Kelly Harvey and Donna Mayer. Lisette Shattuck showed that she could play the piano and also participated in a flute duet with Patrick Kiley later in the program.

Vocal soloists were Melissa Peters, Jodie Robertson, Michelle Probst, Cindy Kopenc, Kelly Harvey, and Karl Palma. All of the singers gave professional and beautifully done performances.

Instrumentals were done by Natalie Lake on tenor saxophone, and pianists Peggi Seifert, Melissa Billman, and Laura Netherton. It was obvious that all of the performers worked hard in preparation for the recital.

The ensemble performance of Kierstan Hurst on French horn, Tim Hearn on guitar, Mike Aikens on percussion, and Greg Hurst on drums and sequence programming finished the program.

Thanks goes to the three accompanists -- Ann Grubb, Sara Reid, and Sr. Mary Gloria -- for their invaluable contributions of time and effort. All of the performers should feel good about a job very well done. Congratulations!

TOBACCO ROAD:
LONG & HARD

by Michelle Scheidt and Stacey Nicholas

Tobacco Road, the dramatic version of Erskine Caldwell’s novel by the same name, opened Friday, March 20, on Indiana Repertory Theater's Mainstage.

The play centers around the Lesters, a degenerate farm family in the Depression-ravaged Deep South. The parents, Jeeter and Ada -- played by Frank Raifer and Carolyn Cope -- are living on the old family homestead, which they have not had enough money to farm for years. There is clearly a strong link between the two main characters. One can feel the bond; these people have been through alot together. Of the seventeen children they raised on the farm, only two remain at home. One of their biggest worries is getting their last kids -- Dude and Ellie May -- "married off."

Jeeter continuously toys with the idea of hauling a load of wood to earn money, but his car stands in the yard -- a useless skeleton. Ada worries about Pearl, the favorite daughter, who is happily married to a local man, Lov. Sister Bessie, the local "preacher woman," arrives on the scene urging everyone to repent. She adds a note of dark humor to the otherwise dismal life. As Act I closes, Captain Jim is mentioned for the first time. One is left with a feeling of hope, for this man may lend the farmers enough money to begin rebuilding their farms.

As Act II opens, Sr. Bessie is persuading Dude to marry her. She eventually bribes him by promising to buy a new car and the two get married. Shortly after the wedding, Pearl returns to the household: she has “run off" from her husband. Dude and Bessie leave to search for Tom, one of the 17 children, who may give them money to help save the farm.

In the closing scene, Captain Jim and his colleague Mr. Payne arrive from the bank. Jeeter delivers a moving speech which shows the stark reality of their poverty. Captain Jim says he would love to help, but he himself is deep in debt.

At intermission, one is left with a dismal view of the family. There is, however, one gleam of hope: Tom, the long-forgotten son, may be able to save the farm.

During the third act the audience comes to the realization that poverty has no silver lining. The plot takes a number of turns for the worse, one of which is Tom not giving Jeeter and Ada any money. The play ends with Dude running over Ada with his all but demolished car. Ada had run into the road trying to help Pearl get away from Jeeter who was going to sell her back to Lov.

Tobacco Road is a dramatization about economic depression leading to the depression of people's morals. The actors at IRT are to be commended for doing a marvellous job with a difficult and depressing storyline.

GERMAINE MILLER

by Chris Beals

The art exhibit of Germaine Miller is running now through April 17 in the library. Miller is an Art Therapy student with a psychology minor. She picked Marian because of its association with the American Art Therapists; Marian is one of only two colleges that offer the art therapy program.

She had to put in over 300 hours of volunteer work and a practicum at Community North Hospital for her major. She plans to continue her studies to obtain her Masters Degree.

Miller enjoyed all of her classes, in particular "Psychology of Education" and "Philosophy of Art and Beauty." She likes pastels as a medium but enjoys most all mediums of art.

While at the library, make a note to view her favorite paintings from thematic painting class. These are huge canvases that are an abstract art portrayal of Christ. Make sure to attend this art show -- it is one of the best of the year.
ELECTIONS NEARING

by Lucinda Griner

Election time is here. Class, Student Board, Art Club officer elections are coming up soon.

Student Board elections are April 6 and 7. The deadline to run for any office was Wednesday, April 1. The offices to be elected include President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Social Planner, Academic Affairs, and Student Affairs.

Class election dates vary for each class and are set as follows: Senior Class, April 6; Junior Class, April 16; Sophomore Class, April 14. The deadline for anyone who wishes to run for class offices is the Wednesday before each election. The class offices available include President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Student Board Representative.

Clare and Doyle Hall Board elections are April 14 and 22 respectively, with deadlines also being the Wednesday before each election.

Club election dates are not in yet, as many clubs have not set their dates. Sandy Gatto said she "would really appreciate clubs to get their forms and dates in," they can turn them in either to her or to Mr. Henderson in the Student Board Room.

The criteria for holding any office are as follows. The student must be a full-time Marian College student. A GPA of at least 2.00 must be held and the student must be in good academic standing without any probation. Students must have completed a set number of credit hours by the first semester of next year; these hours are: sophomores 30 hours, juniors 62 hours, and seniors 94 hours. The student must be a member in the Student Association for at least one scholastic year. Lastly, a student must be in good social standing.

If any student wishes to run for an office, candidate forms are available in the Student Board Room. Sandy Gatto says that things are "going slow this year and we need to get more students informed."

TUTORING COURSE OFFERED

by Pat Webb

As students here at Marian prepare their schedule for next fall's semester, they should be aware that there is a new course being offered. That course is ED 102 "Experience in Academic Support." This will be a class to train students to be tutors, sponsored by Dr. Rosalie Rohm, the director of the Transition Center.

Dr. Rohm got the idea for the tutoring class by visiting and looking into other learning centers across the state that had similar classes. An article in Purdue's newspaper, The Perspective, about a similar class for peer counselors, in particular caught Dr. Rohm's eye. Although Marian's new course will teach students to be tutors and not counselors, Dr. Rohm liked the ideas that the article promoted about well trained peers teaching their peers different information.

According to Dr. Rohm, the first objective of the class is to teach paraprofessional skills to the students, since they will be working professionally with other peers. Another objective is to show the students how to teach academic skills, since the tutors will need to know how to communicate with the student in a clear manner the concepts concerning a particular field of study. The tutors will also be taught how to ask questions to the students to test them and how to reward them when correct responses are given.

There is a two-fold reason that this course is being offered, according to Dr. Rohm. First, there is a certain amount of training required for the student to become the tutor and acquire paraprofessional skills. The second reason is that since, up to this point, all tutors have been volunteers, this class will be a form of quality control -- a way to make sure that the paraprofessionals will be good and dependable.

This course will give the student a one semester-hour credit on activities and organizations and a recommendation by a faculty member and sophomore standing are

by J.T. the Wildest

Hey there sports fans! The intramural volleyball season is reaching a climax... oh! It just started. Well, we have a full field of teams but a few are already showing that they want to be #1. The winner of Wednesday night's games were: US, Vitale's Brick Team, Last Chance, Sh_h Happens, and the 2K's. There was an unexpected yet honored guest at both matches. Shamu flew up from Florida to help Dawg and his Ladies out but even his expertise wasn't enough. Sunday rolled around and the winners were close to consistent. They were: Aloia's Frosh, Sh_h Happens, Last Chance, Vitale's Brick Team, and the 2K's.

Dawg and his Ladies tried to be fashion conscious, but that didn't even psych out the opponents. Yours truly decided to partake in the excitement, but my team, Not Sure, just couldn't get it going. Well, we're not sure what the hell we're doing. Another team, Licenced to Ill, couldn't seem to make it to 15 points, because they had too many at Dalt's (off campus, of course) before the game. But hey, it's not whether you win or lose, it's how much fun you have doing it.

The excitement starts up again Wednesday night, and I hope everyone shows up to see if Kevin Conley really wears pink shoes. Stay tuned in for next week for more of the wildest sports on campus.

In reference to remodelling the Library Auditorium, Controller Joe Ryan was reported as saying that if it is not for the good of Marian College, we will not do it. After reviewing the facts, the Library Auditorium remodelling appears to only wholly benefit Becker CPA Review. Twice this past year, the students have proposed the question of remodelling in areas that they feel would benefit the entire student body, first with the Doyle Hall game room and then with the Marian Hall Canteen. Although the administration agreed that these areas desperately needed remodelling, action was not taken. These projects could not receive the funds because they had not been previously budgeted.

The college community has been reassured that Becker would pay for most of the remodelling. Notice, they would not pay for all this construction which would be completed in the summer. Was Marian's portion of the payment pre-budgeted?

How many generations of students and their money must pass through Marian before the Student Center becomes a reality? Will it be realized after three or four remodelling jobs?

The Library Auditorium is the only speakers' auditorium on campus. By contrast, Marian Hall Auditorium is a theatrical auditorium and does not adequately accommodate a speaker. By remodelling the Library Auditorium, the campus gains only another classroom.

One may suppose that the only hope to be found is that "the final decision has not been made" at least not officially.

--S.N. & H.S.

According to the front page of the March 27 Carbon ("Auditorium Remodeling Proposed") another decision has been made which will affect the whole college community. Apparently that decision was made by the Administration without input from students or faculty (who, together, constitute a rather significant fraction of the community). Those who have been here a while realize this is not the first time this has happened.

Quoting from the Constitution of the College Council, "The purpose of the College Council is to provide a forum in which issues concerning the college community may be discussed and the collective interests of this community may be promoted." The Constitution also states that "... the College Council shall have the power to consult and advise on matters of financial affairs."

The excuse for not consulting the faculty in the decision process was "they do not use the auditorium". If amount of use by a group is the important factor in who decides, I'm not sure any group has that right.

I would like to suggest that all members of the community make use of the forum provided by the College Council before important decisions are made. This would contribute greatly to combating divisiveness and towards generating a sense of real community on campus.

Respectfully,
Steve Kristoff

The views expressed on this page are not necessarily the views of The Carbon or its staff.

No doubt most of the students are very upset, as are many of the teachers, that we may lose the full use of the Library Auditorium.

Let's look at both sides:
1. In order to run any business, and education is a business, it is necessary to make sure that income exceeds, or at least equals, outgo. The administration is to be commended in doing all it can to be sure that alternate means are used to pay the expenses of the school.

But:
2. It should not be forgotten that the reason the school is here is not primarily to balance the budget, but to train students for future jobs. If the budget can be balanced without changing the use of the Auditorium -- good. If not, are there alternate choices for either balancing the budget or for class use of the auditorium? Whichever direction the decision goes, the overriding purpose in mind should be the training of the students.

-Jim Ridenour

The only qualifications, Dr. Rohm is stressing sophomore involvement. The times for the course are to be on an arranged basis.

So, if any student is interested and will be of sophomore standing next semester, acquire a faculty recommendation and get in touch with Dr. Rohm at the transition center. Dr. Rohm comments, "I would like to have quality, paraprofessional student tutors."
SUGAR ROTS
by Angela Huckleberry

Refined sugars come in a variety of forms such as white or brown sugar, honey, molasses, maple syrup, and corn syrup. There are some misconceptions that honey, brown sugar, and molasses are more nutritious or "less fattening" than table sugar. But, the only significant difference between these substances is in appearance.

Sugar, whatever the form, may contribute to obesity and tooth decay when consumed in excess. The problem with sugar is that it is basically "empty" calories. It provides energy but little else. Bacteria in your mouth act on sugar to form an acid on the surface of your teeth, which can help erode tooth enamel.

Sugar is added to a number of processed foods. If you would like to cut down on sugar, read the ingredients list carefully. Some products that claim to be "sugar free" may contain another type of refined sugar other than table sugar. Other than cellulose, most ingredients ending in -ose found on food labels are refined or simple sugars. Examples include dextrose and maltose. If sugar appears first on the ingredients list under one of its aliases, then that product is high in sugar.

With the evaluation of the day's activities, the Leadership Program came to an end. Each student was challenged to take back what they had learned to other students at Marian College.

Deanna Doyle, Sophomore Class Secretary, said of the workshop, "I think everyone enjoyed themselves and learned a lot."

Jerry Bessler commented, "I feel that it was an interesting approach in how to keep the interest of people alive and I think the program would be enjoyed by anyone who ever plans to be in a leadership position."

OUR SIDE OF PARADISE
by Janice Potash

When Father Bryan asked me to conduct a Passover Seder Meal for Marian, I was a little apprehensive. I had never conducted a Seder before, but I have been attending them all my life. So Marian's Seder was set for Thursday, March 26.

Passover marks the celebration of the Israelite liberation from Egypt. The Seder is a ceremony conducted the first two nights of the eight day holiday. During the service, the story of the Exodus from Egypt is told. As the story unfolds, many symbolic items are revealed, impressing upon us the true meaning of the tale.

To talk about Passover is not enough; one must live Passover. Throughout the week, special food regulations and ceremonies are followed to make vivid the reality of the holiday. The most well-known ritual is eating matzoh, a cracker-like food, instead of bread. Many other foods are certified by rabbinical authority so that they may be used during the holiday. ARA did an excellent job of preparing some of these foods for Marian's Seder.

Despite my quivering lip, Marian's Seder was quite successful. Approximately 20 faculty, staff, and students attended. All seemed to enjoy themselves. Now that I am "experienced," I would welcome the opportunity to conduct another Seder in the future.
