The first Faculty Council meeting of the 1973-74 academic year was held on Tuesday, October 10. It was announced that Mrs. Meet would be the new Krause Secretary of the council.

In the administrative area, Sr. Nomie Rocklage, Academic Dean, reported that people would be on campus in the next few weeks to determine if there is any interest among students in reinitiating a cooperative ROTC program with Butler University. She also stated that the two volunteers named by the Commission on Higher Education are now available in her office. She mentioned that the Board of Trustees had made much progress at their first meeting since the SEA constitution by December 5.

Under the discussion of Academic Affairs, it was brought out that two new, 3-hour physical education teaching courses would be introduced in driver training. These courses would not be major requirements. The second semester of Experimental Psychology has been made a 200-level course, and a new academic concentration in Special Education is being considered. The Academic Affairs Committee also stated that Marian would need no additional accreditation needed to grant associate degree plans for the counseling program.

Gary Yehle reported that there were two new people in Admissions, Bill Russell and Paul Hammerstein. Six persons have been accepted for next year. The Athletic Committee re- reported that prices for ads and patrons in the basketball programs will be the same as last year. The use of these monies was discussed.

Faculty Affairs has elected Dennis Kelly its chairman and Joseph Kemph its secretary. They have discussed the unwritten policy on long term disability insurance and will meet with Colonel Wagner to get full details.

Dr. James Divita is chairing the Library Committee. The committee said it felt there was a need for greater publicity on library holdings, a need to encourage use of the library, and suggested that departments notify the program when they plan speakers. It was brought out that the academic speakers are not included in departmental budgets and that the burden of these speakers would fall on the Program Committee. St. Patrick's plans for new year.

“...and the rest of the budget, toward department speakers. It was brought out in the Religious Affairs Committee re- port that this program would involve the whole community. It was proposed that it might be an idea to give a community feeling if some faculty members would be sometimes published in the Saturday and Sunday services.

The Student Services Committee plans a meeting for the week and the Teacher Education Committee has met once to discuss its actions.

The new business for discussion was the proposal to establish an academic concentration in Special Education for elementary education majors. The present proposal is 24 hours/semester in the junior and senior years, plus one summer camp session of 4 weeks between the junior and senior years. Tuition would be paid to Marian College at the standard rate/credit hour, and students may enter the program as freshmen, sophomores, or juniors with a certain amount of make-up courses required of students entering later than their freshman year. No additional monies are to be used.

A survey of student interest in Air Force ROTC primarily among sophomores and juniors this year is to be conducted by members of the Butler University AFROTC department during the next few weeks. The survey will be conducted through meetings with students and by questionnaires.

Besides surveying student interest in Air Force ROTC, the survey will be available to explain the primary benefits and objectives of AFROTC program.

There are three important reasons why young men or women are interested in Air Force ROTC.

First, AFROTC is one of the main routes into aviation careers. Young men interested in becoming pilots or navigators can do so by completing an AFROTC program in conjunction with their usual degree requirements. After graduation, these pilot/navigator candidates are commissioned in the Air Force and proceed directly to flying training. After flying training, these young men gain valuable experience as flyers and managers in all aspects of aviation until they reach the end of their obligated tour with the Air Force. At this point, those who do not desire to pursue aviation careers in the Air Force can easily transition into the civilian aviation industry in any of the hundreds of career areas ranging from airline management at very attractive income levels. Indeed, the main source of personnel to commercial aviation fields is from the military aviation programs of the three services.

The second reason students enroll in AFROTC is for financial assistance. For qualified pilot and navigator candidates, a full tuition scholarship which includes full reimbursement for lab fees and books and a $100/month tax-free allowance is widely available. The basic requirements for this scholarship include a passing score on Air Force Officer Qualifications Test, and a minimum 2.0 GPA. For qualified freshmen, the scholarship starts in the sophomore year, and for sophomores, in the junior year.

Another source of financial aid comes to all members of the AFROTC program in the junior and senior years in the form of a $100/month tax-free allowance. This amounts to a $2000 grant to all AFROTC students in their last two years of college.

The third reason students enroll in AFROTC is for guaranteed placement in an interesting career field, possible commissioning after graduation. The starting salary of unmarried students going into flying career fields is $38,204/year and after 3 years it is $12,949/year. For those going into non-flying career fields, the starting salary is $11,210/year, and after 3 years. Furthermore, income continues to increase at regular intervals. For example, after four years an unmarried pilot makes $16,588/year. The pay figures given here are better than most college graduates can expect to make on the current job market. Also, it is for the high income that many young women enter AFROTC.

Other benefits of the Air Force ROTC program include free flying lessons to the private pilot license in the senior year for pilot candidates and a draft deferment for all AFROTC students.

Noteworthy members of the AFROTC program in the nation include students who have been in the recent Miss America Pageant and the Olympic Gold Medal winner who got his start at Miami University.

Students at Marian College interested in AFROTC through the Butler University program can obtain additional information by contacting Sister Norma.

The meeting was adjourned and the next meeting set for November 14.

New members of this year's Faculty Council include Mr. James Goebel, Sr., Adele Zahn, Sr., Robert Whitacre, Sr., Michael Eoff, and Mr. John Van Hoose.

Marian - Butler make AFROTC arrangements

A team of Navy officers will appear on the Marian campus on October 18 to discuss special officer programs being offered by the service.

The officers-Lt. John F. Burnett, Richard L. Bacht, and Robert F. Howell-will be in the Union from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. They will be prepared to discuss and answer questions about Navy officer programs in Naval Aviation, nuclear power, Officer Candidate School, and the 4000 dollar Navy Civilian Scholarship and the 1000 dollar Navy Civilian Scholarship.

The additional information will concern the new program being offered for nurses.

Lt. L. Bacht, a 26-year old graduate of the University of Kentucky who became officer programs officer for the Navy Recruiting District, Indianapolis, after serving aboard the Navy aircraft carrier U.S.S. Kennebec.

A pilot of the Navy’s A-7 Corsair II Attack Squadrons, Lt. Bachta became one of the district’s aviation programs officers when serving with Attack Squadron 46 based in Jacksonville, Florida. He Is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Lt. Howell reported to the district’s Aviation Programs Officer Sept. 15 after serving as a naval flight officer with Tactical Electronic Warfare Squadron 130, based at Whidbey Island, Washington. The squadron flies the EA-6B Skywarrior jet attack aircraft. Lt. Howell is a graduate of Miami University, Ohio, Ohio.

Patty Banmer and her sister are nuns over the happenings at the “bad luck” party held Friday. The event was one of several planned activities for “little sis” weekend.

Conference on aid planned

Each year the regional U.S. office of education in Chicago sponsors a series of meetings through the states in Region X to assist financial aid administrators in preparing their applicants for federal funds. Such a conference will be held in the library auditorium, the archives room, and seminar rooms all day on Tuesday, October 24.

Applications to be discessed is known as the Tri-Part Application because most institutions participate in all three college-based federal programs—Education Opportunity Grants, National Defense Student Loans, and Work Study.

The Tri-Part Application Conference is held late in October; the application must be in Washington by November 3.
It happened again the other day. An official non-event occurred at Marian. It produced a large turnout and widespread curiosity. People talked about it casually, and seemed to enjoy themselves. The event I’m talking of is the Clare Hall non-fire.

It is impossible to schedule a fire every weekend. Even if it were possible, I feel it would begin to suffer from the same deficiency that the Marian events experience. The missing ingredient is spontaneity.

I feel the steady diet of dances and coffee houses go over poorly because people know what to expect. There is a familiar procession of events. Dance always seem to have a faceless rock band playing Three Dog Night songs. Coffee houses all seem to have similar patterns of development.

If a weekly fire was scheduled, it wouldn’t be long before people would nudge each other in mid-yawn and say “oh well, now they’re gonna take the hose out again.” People would soon be observed leaning against the fire engines picking their teeth in apathy. Occasionally someone would trip over the hose, and a little life would be restored. Essentially, it would be the same as watching summer re-runs.

Ordinary life is a banquet of spontaneity. Conversation is colorful and unrestricted. In the dorms, things needn’t be planned. They just happen.

Open invitation has allowed the natural atmosphere of dorm life to be shared to an extent. Ideally, however, the new-born atmosphere should stretch beyond the confines of the dorms. The PerC. In my opinion, it has the potential to house a constant non-event through the weekend. It has been virtually empty as of late.

Why can’t the PerC become an extension of dorm life and be recognized by students as a place for multiplicity of activities? If someone-wants to study, he could go over to the PerC and use a classroom. The important thing is being there. People make atmosphere, and the PerC is just minus the people. Card games and board tubes alike could be moved there. People could simply do their living there on weekend nights.

When people graduate from Marian College, they leave with an array of memories. I believe that most people will not remember the Homecoming Dance so much as the unpredictable things that happened. No one can sit down and plan a spontaneous activity. We can, however, provide a conducive atmosphere.

They’ve not yet found a way to harness time but they will, as sure as they have shot the crow and killed the whippoorwill. As sure as they have muddied up the stream, it would seem they’ll learn to kill the wind.

The time is 5:05 p.m. Tuesday, October 10, 1972. It was a usual weekday at Marian with students getting ready for night classes, resting from a hard day’s work, practicing basketball, or just enjoying the food and company at supper when someone noticed smoke coming out of Clare Hall’s trash chutes.

The first reaction to a fire would naturally be panic but oddly enough this did not happen. Except for a few concerned individuals, too many treated the incident too lightly. While it’s true that the fire alarm did not ring in the cafeteria, certain kids did let it be known to the people eating that there was an emergency and some did get up and leave the building while others could not manage to tear themselves away from their meals. It seems so strange that people could do without meals to watch a baseball game but when an actual emergency happens, food comes before everything else.

The excuse of not knowing about it cannot be given if half the people in the dining room got up without their trays. Granted that it was a small fire but what if it had been of a chemical nature and the fire couldn’t have been easily controlled? would people have waited for burning beams to fall on their heads to realize the gravity of the situation?

But it wasn’t only the people in the cafeteria. The fire alarm could be heard everywhere else in the building and still it was a task to get people out of their rooms.

One resident assistant complained that when she asked some guys to help put out the fire, only one responded to her request.

The matter was handled very well by those who did something about it, and they should be commended for it, but what about those who jokingly say, “what fire?” Maybe they should get a medal for their bravery and “coolness.” Maybe that will be enough to fight the next fire.

Letters to the editors

Dear Editors:

Clare Hall Board, representing the women residents of Marian College, voted to temporarily close the lounge to visitors. The lounge will be open to make on the weekends from 7:30 Friday to midnight Saturday. If conditions remain at their present level this privilege will also be revoked. This action went into effect Monday October 16. It will be enforced until such time that the conditions which prompted the closing of the lounge are bettered.

The reasons for the Board’s action are: 1. lack of concern for the appearance of the lounge; 2. lack of respect for the property of others, such as broken furniture, rearrangement of furniture, scattered papers, lack of responsibility of those using the lounge, and failure to maintain its appearance, the consumption of food and drink in the lounge; 4. use of affection to such an extent as to cause embarrassment to those in the lounge and to discourage others from using the lounge.

Clare Hall wishes to maintain a formal lounge where all people will feel comfortable. If this situation cannot exist with the lounge open, then it will remain closed.

New faces have many varied interests
by Ellen Dugan and Ray Mader

Five new members of the Marian College Freshman sophomore class bring a wide range of academic studies and interests outside the classroom. Honors College students are to be a part of the Marian College community.

James Goebel, assistant professor of English, comes to Marian College from University of Detroit. Following successful completion of his preliminary examinations he will write his dissertation for his Ph.D. from Purdue University. He is a 19th century British literature.

While a year absence has untried the spirit of Marian College's student body, it is seen that they are very concerned about improving themselves.

This semester Goebel is teaching English communications seminar and shares the teaching duty in the Major Literary Movement classes. "I find the students have a definite attitude toward learning," he said.

Sister Rosemary Stewart, instructor in the English Department, comes to Marian College from the University of Cincinnati where she taught at the demonstration school. Sr. Rosemary's educational background includes a B.S. in education from Marian and a Master of education from Xavier University. An endorsement for children with behavioral disorders and learning disabilities, she said.

Sr. Rosemary commutes to Marian from Holy Trinity School where she is in residence, "I find it easy to be kept aware of the problems of the elementary school. I come in contact daily with elementary teachers and their situational problems. In this way I feel that my college-level approach to teaching can stay in touch with reality. I want to avoid concentrating on theory rather than practice," she commented.

In her spare time Sr. Rosemary likes to experiment with cameras. "I feel there is a wealth of untapped resources in photography. I like to play around with a camera after finishing a long day," she said.

Dynamic would be the word to describe Ken Elmdorff, new faculty member in the Economics Department. Mr. Elmdorff received his Bachelor of Science, M.A. in Economics and completed his first year graduate work at Ball State University. His second year of graduate study is currently in progress at U.I. U.P.I. in Indianapolis.

Before entering college, Mr. Elmdorff was an engineer at General Electric Co. until the time he entered the United States Marines, in which he spent four years. One year was spent at Platoon Commander in Viet Nam during which time he was awarded the Purple Heart and received two Bronze Stars for Heroic Achievement.

Currently Mr. Elmdorff and his wife N.J. are students of J. Rupe, a black belt karate expert. Mr. Elmdorff has as a hobby and part-time job, ventriloquism. He has appeared at various locations in the city. (His dummy's name is Elmer Doft.)

Mr. Elmdorff is commenting on his impressions of Marian College, states, "The thing I like about Marian is its smallness, classes are small, therefore better communication exists between teacher and student. In this way the student is able to learn more in a better atmosphere. The facility has been especially helpful and considerate in the short period I have been here at Marian.

Returning to the Marian campus for the third time is Mr. David White, the newest addition to the philosophy department.

White has taught two previous times at Marian while working toward his Ph.D. degree at the University of Toronto. He received his bachelor and master's degrees from DePaul University in Canada. Presently Mr. White is a candidate for his doctorate in philosophy.

His outside interests include indoor sports, especially basketball. He comments, "I'm looking forward to playing intramural basketball against all of my students, though they beat me in practice games now."

Comments on the past and future of Marian College are clearly made by Mr. White. "I would hope that the enrollment will return to its former level, since the college, as I have seen it in the past has done a fine job educating students to become people."

To this he added, "I would also hope that the atmosphere and free inquiry which I had always found to be one of the college's strong points, would continue to be so in the future."

Mr. White has high regard for the members of the philosophy department and feels his stay at Marian College will be a pleasurable one.

Dr. Robert Jefferson, new addition to the history department, has his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of California at Berkeley, his Master of Arts from the University of Oregon, and his Doctorate from the University of Utah. During his studies at Utah Professor Jefferson received a research grant and travelled abroad through Europe to research European studies and present them at a conference in England. Before joining the teaching staff at Marian, Dr. Jefferson taught at the University of Evansville.

Dr. Jefferson has much praise for the newest entries into Marian, "The freshman class in particular, are the best any group I have encountered." He also stated, "Marian has done a great deal for all students even though not all take advantage of it. I am impressed with the off-campus activities available to the students. I wish I could help in his education. I am very much impressed with the advanced course and the great interest shown on the part of the faculty concerning student needs. The campus, visually, is the most beautiful I've ever been on. The extensiveness of ground is unique among small colleges. I also think highly of the relatively informal atmosphere. All of these things influenced me to want to teach at Marian."

"The Hostage" Redeemed by cast members
by John Costerison

Under the direction of Jack O'Hara, the Marian College Theater Department last weekend presented "The Hostage," a riveting performance of Brendan Behan's "The Hostage." Set construction and all the present civil strife, the play depicts the imprisonment of a young Irishman, captured in a house of ill repute and how this imprisonment affects the already questionable dignity of the house.

Kathy O'Rourke's portrayal of Mgr., the aged whore, and keeper of the house, was certainly the most praiseworthy of the performance. The audience was in awe at the sight of her and the remarkable performance.

The most compelling was the performance of Miss Gilschel, the Irish soldier, Leslie, who was credited to the antics of the English social worker. Stage manager also outdid himself with his portrayal of the IRA soldier, Feargus, who used his gun as a gun and was commendably persevered against nature's way.

Of Charlie Kishman and Jo-Anne Johnson, though they had minor parts, two lines in Polit's and propping up a cat, they added to the success factor created by certain members of the cast.

Others noticeably lagged behind these members of the cast. Gracie Nash was hesitantly to live what could have been a comical character. This could be attributed to first night nervousness, and this critic hopes, in the future, for better improvisations.

"The Hostage" falls into a middle category. Through the beauty of its performance, it is prevented from going to one extreme, and through the success of others saved from the other extreme.

Four teams post pigskin victories

by Ken Hornback

Amid close and exciting Women's Intramural Volleyball games this week, a few surprising victories cropped up, leaving the Volumptuous Vollies and Warzuri undefeated.

Monday night saw previously undefeated 8-Pak Plus One for the Road suffer a loss at the hands of the Main Ingredient. The Volumptuous Vollies continued their wins downing East Road, giving the Vollies the coveted win. The Blue Yarn strung out another victory, defeating Flischel's Farm Outs and the Marsh-Mellows were pressuring into a victory over Volley.

for the Elders, caught three touchdown passes for a new club record in a 28-6 victory. Putz, aided by a strong defensive line that enables the quarterback to make his patterns well and has what is known in the business as quick hands. Calvin Mitchell, War defensive back, pilfered two extra points to stop the Lords, but this wasn't enough as his team fell 15-0 despite a brilliant defensive effort. Calvin's long arms proved to be a definite advantage for his role as a defensive back.

by Mary Beth Blankman of the Dolls. Gagan's Gangsters recovered from their first defeat to outlast the Indiana Bombers while 3M won by forfeit over Brand X, and Bruno's Raiders conceded their game to give a victory to Squatty and Friends. The big match Wednesday night pitted the undefeated Volumptuous Vollies against the strong 8-Pak Plus One for the Road, giving the Vollies the coveted win. A major upset was seen as the Volley of the Dolls 1 and 6, laboriously overcame the threatening Main Ingredient. Warzuri kept rolling along, this time winning the battle with Squatty and Friends, the Blue Yarn smoked out L&M, and Gagan's Gangsters gunned down 3M, the Marsh-Mellows flattened Flischel's Farm Outs, the Indiana Bombers held East Wing, the Snatches outflanked the Red Hot Mamma's, and Brandu's Raiders and Brand X each received a loss by forfeiting their game.
