Felicetti named new president

by Tina M. Kunkler

"The one position that I always wanted to hold for a long period of time was as president of a small college," said Dr. Daniel A. Felicetti, appointed president of Marian College June 21.

The appointment marked the end of a national search begun last fall after the announcement of Dr. Louis C. Gatto’s impending retirement.

Formerly the vice president for Academic Affairs at the University of Detroit, Michigan, Felicetti has held administrative positions at five colleges or universities.

Felicetti, 47, earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science from Hunter College of the City of New York in 1963. He holds a Master of Arts degree and a Doctor of Philosophy degree in political science from New York University.

Bain J. Farris, chairman of the Board of Trustees for Marian, said, "We believe Dr. Felicetti has unique abilities and experience which fit nicely with our vision for the future. Not only will he be a strong leader for Marian, but he will be a very positive addition to the Indianapolis community.”

When asked what his goals for Marian are, Felicetti said, “My primary goal is to learn this institution as effectively as I can before I put it on a particular course.”

Felicetti said, “I have been struck by the upbeat attitude of everybody I’ve met,” during his first few days at Marian. In his address to the freshman class, he described the college as having the best of two worlds; the first being the world of academic intimacy and community; and the second being a pluralism and diversity of the people and programs of the college that resembles that of a larger university?

Having officially started his position as president Aug. 15, Felicetti will begin regular office hours Sept. 11. He and his wife Barbara, a free-lance writer/editor, are in the process of moving to Indianapolis.

Carbon welcomes new advisor

by Stacey Nicholas

As Carbon readers glance through this week’s pub box, they will undoubtedly notice the single name under the advisor’s listing. Dr. Brian Adler joins the newspaper staff as the full-time advisor.

Adler has a background in writing and English. Previously he taught composition and critical thinking classes at both the University of Tennessee and the University of Georgia.

Looking towards improving the newspaper, the English professor spoke about a number of goals. A priority is to establish independent financing through an increase in advertising volume. He plans to help the staff departmentalize its writing and possibly add new columns on subjects such as the library holdings and business news. Newsprint should be a reality, too, if Adler’s goals are achieved.

“I would like to increase the sense of professionalism in the job of writing, creating the sense that we are in a journalistic endeavor.”

Increasing the staff size will enable Adler to make some of his goals a reality. “It would be nice to increase the size of the staff to get people who are interested in doing one type of story... new blood will help shape the college community. A reporter, more than anything else, is creating perceptions. That is important because the reporter, in a sense, is defining the truth.”

Besides working with the Carbon, Adler will be teaching an American Literature class, Newswriting, and English Composition.
Editorial

by Tina Kunkler

Here we are once more, back at the books and into a new school year. Another change in our lives; lives that somehow never stay the same.

"I would just like to be settled," commented my suitemate, as we moved in on Sunday. I agreed, but as I did I realized that change is a part of the growth process.

We all changed over the summer. Hair color and style is the most noticeable; short to long, long to short, brown to blond, straight to curly. But the more I talk to people, the more I see that the inside has changed, too.

Marian College is currently in a state of change. So many things are happening so fast. A new president has taken office. The old Park School Gym, formerly in the center of campus, has been reduced to bricks and mud. New dorm space has opened in St. Francis Hall. Many new faculty and professional staff members have arrived. The Carbon has acquired a new advisor. The class of 1993 began their first classes at Marian this week. And the list goes on...

Change can be negative, but it can also be positive. The above changes have marked new eras of development. We must learn to adjust our lives to those changes. As the famous quote asks, "God grant me the Serenity to accept the things I cannot change, Courage to change the things I can and Wisdom to know the difference."

Upperclassman tips for frosh survival

by Mark McLean and Tina Kunkler

1. Throw away those headbands.
2. When doing laundry, separate whites and colors. Don't bleach colors.
3. Use napkins and utensils.
4. You don't get mail, unless you make mail. Keep in touch with friends and relatives.
5. Watch Arsenio Hall.
6. Go off campus when you can. Indianapolis has a lot of culture to offer and the mall is not far.
7. Get involved. Classes can get boring and extracurricular activities make life interesting.
8. Remember... all is legal unless you get caught... and you probably will be caught.
