Excitement is different things to different people. To the members of the Drum & Bugle Corps excitement is the biggest, most exciting day of the year—a day that is anticipated for months in advance. As this is the biggest, most extensive trip taken by the Corps, I feel very confident that it will be one of the most successful performances in the Corps history. "The Mardi Gras trip this year will be the most extensive trip taken by the Corps. I feel very confident that it will be one of the most successful performances in the Corps history," Jerry Herbe, vice president and drum major of the Corps, has said.

Six ounces of tomato juice, one raw egg, a dash of Worcestershire and one jigger of vodka— a perfect cure for the post New Year’s Eve hangover. Ringing in the year brought it a host of parties of jubilant celebration, but underneath all the revelry was a tone of apprehension.

America, one year away from her 200th birthday is beginning to show the wear of age. Unemployment is hovering around the 3% mark, the highest since 1929. Pollution is not only endangering our natural surroundings, but is also costing each American $200 (roughly) a year (estimated by President’s Council on Air Pollution). The “honest Abe” image of the presidency has been negated by the Watergate scandal. A host of shortaged projects, social security, and other economic oriented aids. Of course, the situation today is more complex but with our wealth of technology, it seems governmental legislation is needed to put these into effect.

So far President Ford is he related to Edsel?) has managed to instill confidence in the people by appeasing them with the promise of fast cash in his tax-relief-oil tariff program. Needless to say, playing with money is fun. But on such a large scale! Issuing a rebate to cover the estimated eight cents a gallon price is not the ingenious solution Ford claims it is. Consequently, he has caused the government to lose the redistribution of funds, by a member of the press. His dictator-like action on Jan 23, in proclaiming $1.00 a barrel import duties on oil was certainly uncalled for.

There are other alternatives to the current dilemmas but Congressional action along with Presidential cooperation are needed to put these into effect. The current congressional attempt to bring about gas rationing is a drastic measure, but could tide America over until technological advancements can be made to cure the oil problem among others. An immediate halt of the space program would conserve materials and provide the scientists and engineers to develop either high mileage, solar powered or electric cars of economic practicality. Those out of work in auto plants could be put back into work as assistants. Mandatory conservation and recycling would create a job market for those unemployed in recycling plants and working on weekly collection routes, besides conserving our resources. Pollution controls could be made mandatory for factories.

These are just a few measures which could help cure the present hangover conditions. Hopefully Congress and Ford will forget about being re-elected and take the people seriously. Only if we work together will we be able to solve our problems.

As the economy of the country in general, and that of Marian College in particular shows a marked increase and more depressed, I feel it is time that we looked at our school objectively.

I very often hear negative comments about our school and its apathy, its lack of life, its limited facilities, and other such complaints. Needless to say, nearly all of us have been guilty of this sort of negativity at one time or another. The shocking thing is that when we are critical of Marian College we are, in fact, critical of ourselves, since we are Marian College. Instead of saying, nearly all of us have been guilty of this sort of negativity at one time or another, I feel it is time that we looked into this negative feeling and make the kind of “Gutsy-temporarily unpopular” moves presently in order.

The surprising thing is that while inflation has ballooned to 12.2%, in the first quarter of 1975 brought with it a host of parties of jubilant celebration, but also costing each American $200 (estimated by President’s Council on Air Pollution). The “honest Abe” image of the presidency has been negated by the Watergate scandal. A host of shortaged projects, social security, and other economic oriented aids. Of course, the situation today is more complex but with our wealth of technology, it seems governmental legislation is needed to put these into effect.

I pondered long and hard to find something to write an editorial about. Then it suddenly came to me. I would write about graping. No, I am not going to write about classes, homework or the weather. My gripe is a personal one (of which I am ashamed to admit that I am one.) During the first week back, very few people always talked about the good things happening—or a good vacation except on the first day back. Later in the week there were graping on classwork, schedules, dorm rooms and best of all, a concerned gripe on people’s attitudes by someone other than myself. We all know there is something to gripe about, and I do not want to say that it is unhealthy. Yet in a place where most of us do the major thing together, that is, attend classes, do homework (maybe) and try to learn, why should we gripe about something we are obviously here to do? As far as everything not going well, has it ever? We should try to give some thought to finding something NOT to gripe about. I am trying, not to prove a point, but to live with myself. I finally found myself considering graping for an entire day on something which was clearly no fault of anyone’s but my own. Why should I subject people to my grays when I am only graping about myself?

Letter praises Prof. Friedman’s lecture

To the Editor of The Phoenix.

At the most recent Indianapolis Economics Club luncheon (on Jan. 9th), I was delighted to hear Prof. Milton Friedman identify so unequivocally that the only real causes of our inflation and recession are unbalanced government budgets which require the political expedient of a hidden form of “taxation” (which is in fact the whole inflation-recession spiral is all about).

By explaining so simply how the Federal Reserve System creates inflation by the monetizing of government debt, he completely destroyed the many prevalent myths that hold the free markets responsible for current conditions.

I would like to congratulate the Economics Club of Indianapolis for bringing such thinkers as Prof. Friedman to Indianapolis.

Sincerely,

Richard W. Smith

Art majors display work

Libraries are noted for volumes and shelves. Lately, Marian College's Library has been boasting the art work of one of its most talented students, Theresa Belles. Theresa is a senior who has accumulated both works and notebooks of ideas during her four years here at Marian. Her work will be on display until the 11th, the entire art department will be available for viewing until February 7th.

Upcoming attractions will include another one woman show in the library by Diana Ryker which will be available for viewing until April 11. After the 11th, the entire art department will decorate the library with the fascinating work of its students. These will include examples of all the art mediums, displayed to attract attention to all angles of the pieces.

College leaders meet at Ball State

Seven Marian students and Sister Susan Bradshaw, college representative of the Newman Foundation, will attend a Campus Leadership Conference at Ball State University on January 31-February 2. Taking part will be: Kathy Klingensmith, Donna Bruns, Linda Carbonit, Denise Gernonpier, Terri Densinger, Mike Scheider and Jerry DiFrancesco.

A special multimedia presentation on the day-to-day function of various campus offices will be given Friday evening, followed by a movie festival.

Participating campus ministers have designed a liturgy for Friday afternoon, a lidlunch and a Lindo dinner and dance festival.

Newman Centers are Catholic campus ministry centers on state university campuses throughout the nation. Campus ministry includes a broad spectrum of student life—spiritual, intellectual and social action.

AVAILABLE

Two graduate students in the Counseling Program at Indiana University will be at Marian College this semester. Linda Castler and Bonnie Allin will be on campus Mondays from 12:00 noon to 6:00 p.m. to assist students in solving personal problems.

Linda Castler did her undergraduate work at San Diego State College in psychology. She attended graduate school at the University of Illinois for three semesters and was recently transferred to Indiana University to complete her program in counseling.

Bonnie Allin was a French and English major at the University of Kansas. She is beginning her fourth semester at Indiana University in the Counseling Program.

Two cures for 'Senioritis'

In less than four months you will be graduating. Some of you will go on to graduate school, some will have employment and some will be seeking employment. Whatever your choice, or desire, you should be making plans now. If you are thinking about grad school you should be writing to schools and sending information. If you plan to travel and relax for a while, you should be giving some thought to what you will do afterward. If you will be seeking employment, start making a plan now.

Set some priorities for yourself and set a game plan. Some of the services that the Placement Office provides to aid you in your efforts include:

- providing vocational counseling and job-related information to students
- summer on-campus interviews with employees
- listing job vacancies as they are reported to the office
- helping students prepare resumes and letters
- serving as a permanent depository for students' references and credentials
- helping students get contact leads.

The first thing you should do is register for the Placement Services Office which will help you get the job offers you are looking for. If you have questions or need assistance, call the Placement Office at 262.

... from friends

Need help deciding what to do after graduation? The '74 summer job opportunities for college students look good this year. Summer job placement coordinators at Opportunity Research (SAP) report that despite national economic tourist areas are looking for people who may not go for the big paycheck, experience. If you will be seeking employment, help students get contact leads.

European in '75?

Wouldn't you rather come with us?

Last year over 200,000 students summere in Europe. And the travelwise few in Europe say that it costs about $500 per person per week. Last year over 100,000 students came to Europe by 25-3 weeker $597. And its $576, for over six weeks from New York (That's what the airlines say now. Last year there were two unconformities.

Not only do you fly with us at half, but you can just about have your choice of flights: 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 week duration during the summer. And all you have to do is qualify your reserve seat now by sending $100 deposit, plus $10 registration fee. Under recently new U.S. regulations we must submit all flight participants names and full payment sixty days before each flight. You will be the June 27-August 19 flight to London for example, deposit reserves your seat and April 15 you set the $199. balance. Just one price for all flights which you pick a week of worth $5 per extra fare (new in Europe on the regular fare) on peak season package surcharge date.

So send for our complete schedule, or to be sure of your reservation now, mail your request for one of our 50+ weekly departures from June through September. Just specify the week you want to travel and for how long. You will receive your complete trip schedule. All our flights are via fully certificated, U.S. Government standard jet and all first class service. Some of these flights go to many countries and all passengers on the passenger of the continents, frequent departures and many at 2/3 off the regular fare.

TELEVISION—the "Hitler" of our society

Where else can you run from an earthquake, leap from a burning building, fly in an "unpiloted" airplane, and become totally bored, within eight hours? None other than Indianapolis, the Crossroads of America.

In speaking of the current flux of worthwhile (one exception) movies which are now playing in town, one wonders what we did to deserve the following: (Clean living?)

Challenge II

What? Challenge I - a week-end experience where you will have the chance to come face-to-face with yourself.

Call some it a retreat but it is more than that. It is a going into yourself, your relationships with others — your future.

Conducted by young adults for young adults.

Ask any participant of Challenge I and find out that it is well worth the time, sacrifice and cost.

Challenge II - Call Father Patrick O'Neill, director of Youth and Campus Ministry of the Department of Education of the United States Catholic Conference, will deliver the keynote address on Saturday morning. His talk is entitled "Current at College, in Life, and with God."

Workshops will be given in liturgy, communications, education, Third World, alternative life-styles and all aspects of charity, charismatic movement, space utilization, social action and Student board supervision of campus ministries.

Participating campus ministers have designed a liturgy for Friday afternoon, a lunch and an Indiana dinner and dance festival.

Two accepted in med school

The road to becoming a professional doctor has its many "chuckholes" along the way. Perhaps the first is the taking of the M.C.A.T. test. Following, of course, are the interviews and anticipation of the coveted Med school acceptance letter.

For two Marian College pre-med majors, the second of the chuckholes was readily patched up when they received letters of acceptance from the Indiana University's School of Medicine. Joe Rea, a senior from Indianapolis, and Mike Wieghard, a junior also from Indianapolis, received acceptance letters to the Chemistry Department on the second and first calls, respectively. This is quite an honor to be among the first on the list for the incoming class of '75. Best of luck to these dedicated students.

Charlie Peters, a chemistry major from Indianapolis, has finished his undergraduate requirements at Marian in three and one half years and is now studying chemistry at Xavier University, while serving in a teaching assistantship position.

Speaker at meeting

There will be a program meeting of the MC Home Ec Association on Tuesday, January 26, from 12 to 1 p.m. in room 128 of Clare Hall. A representative from Merle Norman Cosmetics will be the speaker. Anyone interested in skin care is welcome to attend.

Freshmen raise funds in sales

The freshman class is announcing two money-raising projects during January and February. These are the sale of "Lil' Brown Jugs" and raffle tickets for a free dinner for two at the Red Lobster Inn.

The "Lil' Brown Jugs" can be ordered in Marian Hall until January 31. The jugs range from 4 to 64 ounces and will be engraved with the college emblem. They can be used as a souvenir or to store one's favorite beverage. Prices will vary according to the size of jug ordered. The 4 oz. size will cost $1.75; 8 oz. — $2.10; 16 oz. — $2.80, 32 oz. — $3.15, and the 64 oz. — $3.50.

The sale of raffle tickets will begin on February 3 in Marian Hall and the grand drawing will take place on February 14 so the winners may use the free dinners for the Sweetheart's Ball. Details on prices for the tickets will be available when the tickets go on sale.

The Admissions Office of Marian College along with Student Serdices is currently finalizing preparations for the three separate programs which are soon to be initiated. Each program centralizes on one initial theme. The programs are "all a part of the college's effort to recruit and retain students," as stated by Carol Bean, Special Projects Coordinator for Admissions.
Campus visitations offer a firsthand outlook on the qualities of the college. The Admissions Office is sponsoring a Campus Weekend for prospective students the weekend of January 31 and February 1 and 2.
The program will be highlighted by a Career Development Workshop directed by Gary Hall, Director of Counseling Services.
The workshop will concentrate on three areas: investigation of individual career interests; a comprehensive study of the job market; and exercises for improvement of decision-making abilities.
The Holland Self-Directed
Search, a self-administered test, will be taken by all students attending the workshop. The test deals with a personality inventory as it is related to careers. Upon scoring the test, a formula will be devised to derive the careers most suitable to each individual student.
The students will also have the opportunity to tour the campus, meet with faculty members, view the Drum & Bugle Corps, and reside in Clare or Doyle Halls. The visiting students are invited to attend the evening performances of ONCE UPON A MATTRESS, a musical comedy directed by Don Johnson.
Another means in which to contact prospective students is through team visits to area high schools. Each team is comprised of eight admissions counselor, two faculty members, and two college students. The teams visit the schools during the lunch hour to talk to high school juniors and seniors. Currently, there are 14 schools scheduled for visits.
A new project coordinated by Carol Bean is the Big Brother-Big Sister Program, which will be initiated this semester. Marian College freshmen, sophomores, and juniors will have the opportunity to correspond directly with newly-admitted students.
Students will be chosen on a voluntary basis and will be matched with the newly-admitted students by means of common interests, locality and field of study.

Spring basketball bounces to booming start

BY PAUL KERN

The 1975 version of Marian College intramural basketball made its debut last Sunday (on which, incidentally, you can get up to a $500 rebate if you buy before Feb. 30th).

In the first game, the all powerful HERD hoarded themselves into the gym to face the well rounded ALL THE MARBLES. In the first half ALL THE MARBLES (or as they are better known in basketball jargon, ALL THE MARBLES.) rolled over and had the lead by only a 20-11 margin. After the half the HERD tried to hang together but the MARBLES collected themselves and hung them separately by the score of 66-21.

Then the BS& T bounced itself onto the floor to play a dapper, debonair LADIES' CHOICE team. The BS& T were down at the half by 12 points but kept their faculties about them (get it?) and only fell behind by 11 more points before the game ended; score 46-28 in favor of the LADIES.

The mood changed as APATHY trotted onto the floor to play the WAZURI team that was decked out in new uniforms. (Some spectator named Bruce told me he thought their new uniforms were much too busy.) The game was close from the start with the score 16 all at the half. WAZURI pulled out to a brief 3 point lead in the second half but was then outscored 12-4 and could never catch up, losing 44 to 30.

The next game was delivered by WELLS FARGO who went against the ALL THE MARBLES. (Bruce felt that their uniforms were not too busy.) The SISTERS, who are only one player shy of “taking it all”, one player like . . . maybe . . . a . . .

When the MOTHER TRUCKERS REVIVAL diesel into the arena, the MEAN MACHINE knew it had to put itself into high gear. For awhile the strategy worked and at half they only trailed 21-16. Then the TRUCKERS put the MACHINE into high gear and the contest was just a quick truck stop on the highway of games, 56-47.

Finally, the VIKINGS, an ear of a team, faced a sporty PERC until. The VIKINGS were trailing by 6 at the half 25-19, however they moved into ramming speed and pillaged the PERC with a final surge, yachting awes 47-44.

In Wednesday’s action, WAZURI, on the comeback trail (after an apathetic loss) took the full measure of BS& T, (finding them to be exactly 26.5”) and 61-52.

Following that, the irresistible SISTERS OF LOVE stormed onto the court to force immovable ALL THE MARBLES. Unfortunately, the MARBLES proved to be more immovable than the SISTERS were victorious and won 80-38.

And finally, the MOTHER TRUCKERS REVIVAL drank up quite a bit of WHITE LIGHTNING before the WHITE LIGHTNING heroes were forced to pass out and then drain away 68-28.

Next week’s games will feature many wide and varied action-packed contests as another episode of the exciting Marian intramural basketball 75 unfolds. Be here, ALOHA!!

Knights victorious despite sparse bench

BY CURT STOLL

The New Year brought on a new look for the Marian basketball Knights. The new look featured a nine-man roster instead of the familiar 15. Six players had been declared ineligible during the transition from first to second semester. Remaining experiences would have the outcome on the season were soon to be seen.

The remaining nine tightened their belts and started on the last half of their schedule. They quickly took two victories from St. Francis and I.U. Southeast and were able to choose to concede his job to a single successor. (I must say good

A farewell, a promotion an addition to staff

BY ANNE MONNOT

Greetings once again women sports fans. It’s that time to report the wonderful world of women’s basketball. This year’s edition contains a Marian first. Players Main Lampkin and Collette Stark also fulfill the duties as coaches. Talking to Coach Main after the squad’s first loss of their opening games, Main told me that Coach Main considered, “the game was good experience and we’ll work on our weaknesses in the future.” Coach Starkie was unavailable for comment.

Playing a nine game schedule this year, other players on the team are: Seniors Pat Eder, Chris McGillicuddy, co-captains; Deb Clay, Junior Joan Mills, Sophomore Linda Nies, and Freshman Alisa Monnin, Elaine Bachman, Holly Brun, and Jan Stark.

Our next game this Wednesday, Jan. 29, 6 p.m., Clare Hall gym is against I. U. Southeast. Come and watch our women in action.

The Phoenix staff wishes to thank Lynn Shewmaker for his efforts as co-editor this past semester. Due to a certain circumstance, marriage, Lynn’s time was limited, and subsequently he chose to concede his job to a single successor. (I must say good judgment was used in placing his successor.
