Student Board announces 89-90 budgets

by Dallice Hessiglave

On September 19, 1989, Student Board met and approved the following budgets for the 1989-90 school year. The current allocations do not include funding for club activities that did not have the necessary information to be approved (dates, etc.). On October 5 Student Board will amend the budgets of clubs who turn in the required information. Also at that meeting, Psi Chi's budget will be voted on. It missed the earlier deadline.

Jim Meer, treasurer of Student Board commented on this year's budget, "Most of the cuts were basic, standard cuts. We went in with the idea of giving money away." Many of the organizations received close to what they asked for.

Not happy with the results was Mikki Poynter, President of Booster Club, "We [Booster Club] feel that the Budget

by Tina Kunkler

A new chairperson took the helm of Marian College Council at the Sept. 19 meeting.

Sister Monica Zore, associate professor of mathematics, was elected last spring to chair the council meetings. Her duties include preparing an agenda for each meeting, running the meetings efficiently, insuring that people are heard and seeing that committee reports are presented at council.

Zore will also be a representative to the president's cabinet to communicate from the council, "I think it is important that I strive to reflect the council's concerns and positions."

A 1970 alumnae of Marian, Zore has been a member of the Mathematics/Computer Studies Department for seven years, chairman of the Admissions and Financial Aid Committee, a member of the Faculty and Staff Affairs Committee, and a member of the Alumni Board.

Doctor Daniel Felicetti, president, addressed the council at Tuesday's meeting, outlining the governance of the college as the first of his five major aspirations as president of the college. He is still studying the important documents of the college in an effort to learn the operation of the college, as well as meeting with his constituencies and minimizing confusion on governance issues.

Felicetti outlined six points of governance that he hopes to achieve: provide

by Kimberly Blair

There are some new things happening at St. Francis Hall. The lobbies are now open twenty-four hours for St. Francis residents and their guests and during visitation hours for all students.

The residents will be getting mailboxes soon that will be placed in the reception area of the lobby. Laundry machines from Alverna will be added to the laundry room. The pool table from Alverna will be placed in one of the lounges. A television will soon be available for the students, as well.

There are three lobbies in St. Francis: 1. as you enter the hall, on the right; 2. the room next to the snack machines; 3. the study room marked "Library."

Catholic liturgies will be held Thursday nights at 9 p.m. in the St. Francis Chapel. The first one, a guitar mass, was celebrated last week with over 40 people attending.

No official word has been released on the Knight Club snack bar completion date. Outside contractors were hired for the job. The offices in the hall are being filled slowly. Campus Ministry has officially moved over from Clare Hall and Student Board meets each Tuesday night in their new space.

Cathy Bickel, Director of Residence Life, says that she admires the work that has been done in such a short time.

Response on Liturgies

As Chaplain, I need to acknowledge Sr. Monica Zore's letter to the Carbon (Sept. 21, 1989), "Lip service from the pulpit" left no room for doubt. Sr. Monica never attends weekend liturgies here. She doesn't live on campus and I seldom see her in the faculty lunch room, so our paths don't often cross. However, I hear only the best about her and her teaching, so I respect her and I'm trying to take her remarks seriously. I just don't like the way she made them. There are better ways to initiate dialogue with someone than by an open letter to the Carbon.

Like Sr. Monica, I also see problems in the Marian Community. I might not agree with her on their origins or solutions, but I welcome specific suggestions from her or anyone, preferably in a less confrontational way. This does nothing for the morale of students and staff who work very hard for Campus Ministry. Many offices have two or more personnel to take care of the various needs of the college. Yet, Campus Ministry, which is responsible for the spiritual needs of the students, doesn't even have a full-time position. This is ludicrous! To begin with, it is extremely unfair to expect an individual to do a full-time job in a part-time position. What is worse is that the administration is cheating the students by not recognizing the importance of this job. Meeting the spiritual needs of the individual is a tough and time-consuming job that requires the work of two or more full-time personnel. To claim that the spiritual development of the students is a part-time job, is entirely ridiculous. It is time that the administration open its collective eyes to their negligence and give the necessary support to Campus Ministry. The students have waited much too long.

There has been a lot of discussion lately about Marian's identity as a Catholic college. Many people are asking such questions as, "What does it mean to be a 'Catholic college'?" or "What influence should Catholicism have on the goals of Marian College?" With all this debate it is important to remember that Marian, as a Catholic college, recognizes that people are spiritual beings as well as rational ones. Therefore, Marian is dedicated to the development of both the intellectual aspect and the spiritual aspect of the student. This, then, is the basic identity of Marian as a Catholic college; to support and encourage the growth of the student both intellectually and spiritually.

Unfortunately, the spiritual growth of the students has been sadly neglected for a long time. This is evident in the administration's lack of support for the Campus Ministry. Many offices have two or more personnel to take care of the various needs of the college. Yet, Campus Ministry, which is responsible for the spiritual needs of the students, doesn't even have a full-time position. This is ludicrous! To begin with, it is extremely unfair to expect an individual to do a full-time job in a part-time position. What is worse is that the administration is cheating the students by not recognizing the importance of this job. Meeting the spiritual needs of the individual is a tough and time-consuming job that requires the work of two or more full-time personnel. To claim that the spiritual development of the students is a part-time job, is entirely ridiculous. It is time that the administration open its collective eyes to their negligence and give the necessary support to Campus Ministry. The students have waited much too long.

Senior profile

by Trisha Miller

“I can’t believe that we’re seniors!” said Don Vogt as he looks forward to graduation in the spring. Vogt is an English major, Physical Education minor with a coaching endorsement.

The small friendly atmosphere is what attracted the Francesville, Indiana, native to campus. Also, Vogt had the desire to leave the rural setting of West Central High School. The other wish was to play basketball.

Once at Marian he became “over-involved” in activities such as F.C.A., English Club, and the Carbon. He has served two years as an R.A. at Doyle Hall, and two years as the student coach of the men’s basketball team. Vogt has also served as the co-editor of the yearbook, co-editor of the Fioretti, secretary of Student Board, and is current secretary of the Senior class.

Off-campus he worked one summer for REM Indiana as the Activities Director. These and other activities led Vogt to comment, “I’ve had a lot of good memories with good friends too numerous to mention.”

Vogt plans to teach after graduation which has been his goal since high school. After attaining his Masters in Sports Administration, he wants to be an Athletic Director and basketball coach.

He advises freshmen to get involved in activities. Vogt believes that “anything is attainable” if you work hard. He wishes everyone “the best of luck,” and the advice, “Go out and do it to it.”

It rained for forty hours and forty minutes and Lake Francis appeared out in the wilderness of Camp M. The Head Counselor called the Assistant Counselor and instructed him to build an ark. "Right," said the Assistant Counselor. "What is an ark?" asked the Assistant Counselor.

"An ark, I used to know what that was, oh yes, it looks like a big boat," answered the Head Counselor.

"Right," said the Assistant Counselor. "You will need to build it 100 cubits, by 50 cubits, by 30 cubits," said the Head Counselor.

"Right," said the Assistant Counselor. "What is a cubit?" asked the Assistant Counselor.

"A cubit, a cubit, I used to know what a cubit was, oh yes, it is something like a unit a measure. You know, like a yard," answered the Head Counselor.

"Right," said the Assistant Counselor. After the ark was built, the Head Counselor said to the Assistant Counselor, "Take into the ark two of each living thing, one male and one female."

"Right," said the Assistant Counselor. The Assistant Counselor dutifully did as he was instructed. The Head Counselor closed the doors of the ark and the rains began to descend upon the ground. It continued to rain for forty days and forty minutes. The ark was tossed upon the waters and as the waters went down, the ark came to rest on the shore of Lake Francis. The doors of the ark were opened and all of the creatures were permitted to leave the ark. Thus, all the animals were saved from the drains backing up and flooded basements, and today they still can be seen to wander Camp M.

Alumni Office plans annual Phonathon

Each year the Alumni Phonathon relies on volunteer student callers. This one event brings in almost half of the donations from alumni each year. Pledges in the phonathon, almost entirely, go into the current operating fund at Marian and are entirely for projects and expenses of the 1989-90 budget year.

It is very simple, the more money raised in pledges, the better financial state the college will be in during the current school year. The more money in the current operating fund, the more the college will be able to do during the 1989-90 school year.

During October, students will be calling from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. Calls will not be made during mid-terms. Each caller is provided with a list of names to call and there are cash prizes each night to individual callers.

Also, at the end of the phonathon, the club, class or group who generated the most money in one night of calling will receive a cash prize of $50. There will also be a cash prize of $25 for the club, class or group that made the most calls.

Each night pizza and pop will be provided for volunteers. Each volunteer is also given a five minute phone call to anywhere in the continental United States, plus many other incentives.

On Sept. 28 and 29, volunteers will be solicited from the student body at large and assigned to the remaining calling dates of their choice. Individual callers may call more than one night and training is provided each night for all callers. Be sure that you have a substitute available if you cannot attend.

Sign up now for the Alumni Phonathon -- receive free phone calls, free pizza, and cash prizes!
New faces join faculty and staff

by Dallice Hesselgrave

William Watts is an assistant professor of English this year at Marian. The medieval literature specialist is teaching full-time in the U.S. for the first time. He has previously taught at Boston University as a graduate student and also taught in Central China for one year.

Having been out of Indiana for sixteen years, Watts considered Marian College for two reasons--it's small and the chance of coming back to Indiana.

Watts had an interesting education. During his sophomore year of high school, he studied in Norway as a foreign exchange student. Upon returning, the school would not accept his credits from Norway, and so required him to graduate a year later than he should have. Because of this, Watts dropped out of high school and took a year of schooling at I.U. After that year, he transferred to Carleton, a college in Minnesota from which he graduated. He then went on to get his masters and Ph.D. The Boston University graduate would be happy to speak to anyone on campus who knows Norwegian.

Having moved out of Indiana, as well, Denise Perry was ready to move back to be close to family. The Indiana State graduate is the new Director of Public Information and Media Relations. The work atmosphere of Marian is what enticed the mother of two to try for a job. She smiled, “I am always excited when I get here.” Perry also enjoys the spiritual atmosphere of the college.

Prior to being hired at Marian, Perry was working on her Ph.D. at the University of Arizona. She would like to either complete her Ph.D. or perhaps work towards another advanced degree.

What does the Zionsville resident like to do in her spare time? Well, this past spring she travelled to Austria to do some Alpine skiing. She says, “I might have to do some travelling if I want to keep that up. There really aren’t too many ski slopes in Indiana.”

Measles outbreak hits area campuses

by Pat Schmutte

An outbreak of measles (Rubella) is being experienced on the campuses of Notre Dame and Ball State Universities. Measles, also known as old fashioned measles, hard measles, or 10 day measles can be a very serious, even fatal disease. Complications can be ear infections, pneumonia, and more rarely, encephalitis. The risk of death is known to be greater for infants and adults. Measles during pregnancy increases the risk of early labor and miscarriage.

People catch measles by breathing the measles virus an infected person spreads by coughing, sneezing or simply talking. Ten to fourteen days after exposure a susceptible person may begin to show symptoms of measles: high fever, rash, runny nose, watery eyes, or cough. If you experience any of these symptoms contact your physician or the Health Center.

People born before 1957 are considered immune to measles as a result of having had the disease. However, the U.S. Center for Disease Control, the American Academy of Pediatrics and the Marion County Board of Health recommend that persons born after 1956 who have never been immunized or who were immunized before 1980 should be re-immunized.

About one out of every five adults vaccinated will get a rash or slight fever one or two weeks after the shot, lasting for a few days. It is possible that one out of a million people who get the shot may have a more serious reaction such as inflammation of the brain (encephalitis).

There is no need for panic at this time, however, we urge students to contact their family doctors at their earliest convenience and make arrangements to be re-immunized.

For those students who will not be returning home reasonably soon may wish to call the Health Center, ext. 310, to (please see MEASLES, continued on page 10)
Baseball starts fresh -- new coach, new team, new season

by T.J. Woodring

"Our kids can compete." That's what the new head coach of the Marian College baseball team says about this year's young squad. In December of 1988, Brett Shambaugh was officially named head coach after Coach Lynn Morrell announced his retirement from baseball. Shambaugh is familiar with the Knights' baseball program. He started playing as a student in 1981 under Morrell and in the fall of 1984, he started as the assistant coach. Shambaugh and his team have some obstacles to overcome before they can beat the bigger, and perhaps, better teams they face this season.

The biggest obstacle is to get the new men and the seasoned players to play as a complete team. The team lost five starting players last season with two of them going on to sign with professional baseball teams. Shambaugh has 18 new players to get into shape before conference games begin.

He has some very promising freshmen to help him get things going, including three local frosh who played with the Knights this summer, Tim Ketchem and Ottie Hofmann from Roncalli and Blake Tipps from Warren Central. All of the new freshmen are going to help the team and see a lot of playing time.

There are three outstanding returning seniors, including one of the best players in the district, Mike Kersey, whom Coach Shambaugh is looking forward to starting a lot this season.

Two other freshmen are going to help the Knights overcome the second challenge - getting the pitching to come around. Chris Sobieszczyk, a pitcher from Chicago, and Eric Flinn, a catcher from Bedford, will be working together with 14 others on the pitching staff to get it back into shape after losing last year's starters.

The Knights have usually had proven pitchers returning to the team. If the pitching staff becomes solid, Shambaugh feels Marian College could win it's conference this year.

But Shambaugh could not get the team in top shape without the help of his assistant coaches, Jeff Castner and Stan Lay. "If I'd lose either one of them, this ball club would be hurt," stated the coach. The two assistants put in a lot of extra time to get Shambaugh's plans in motion.

If there is one thing Shambaugh would like to prove to the college during his first year as head coach is that the young men playing this year are gentlemen... not renegades or trouble makers as some of Marian's baseball players were in the past.

CC team braves the elements

by Jim DeMien

The first full day of fall was a cool, blustery day, but the mighty Marian CC Knights braved the elements by showing a terrific effort.

The team was led by Brian Boyle. He finished with an all time personal best with 27:58. The next two finishers for Marian were ever promising freshman Aaron Graeb and sophomore Jason Bridwell. Graeb and Bridwell both set a personal best for themselves. Graeb's time was 29:06, while Bridwell's was 30 minutes flat. Steve Bailey and Steve Stitzman rounded out the bottom five.

The officers for the St. Francis Hall Board have been elected recently. Mark McLean is president, Cari Osborne is secretary and Cindy Kopenec is treasurer. McLean is impressed with the accommodations at St. Francis including the furniture, lobby space, and 24-hour laundry facilities. The board will be working on their constitution and plan to "see that all the plans become realities," according to McLean. He hopes to "establish a reputation as a special place on campus."

Campus liturgies
by Tina Kunkler

In her letter last week about the liturgies held at Marian College, Sister Monica Zore pointed out publicly the action/reaction manner in which liturgies are carried out. She suggested an interactionary format where the entire community plays a role in the celebration of the Mass.

Thursday, Sept. 21, marked a step in that direction with the first of future weekly celebrations of liturgy in the St. Francis Hall Chapel. Over 40 students, faculty and staff attended the service at 9 p.m.

A feeling of community bonded the group together as one voice in the singing of hymns. The homily about Matthew, the tax collector, and the acceptance of other people and their positions was given by Father Frank Bryan and well-received by those gathered. Thanks was offered for the decision to maintain the chapel as a place of worship.

The organizers of the Mass expressed a sense of accomplishment after the final song. Instead of immediately filing out of the chapel, many people stayed to talk and offer ideas for future Thursday nights.

This night, more than any other night at Marian, made me feel a part of the community. Positive steps were taken to accomplish a long-sought goal. As a member of the Marian community and a resident of St. Francis, I would like to extend a welcome to everyone to attend the Thursday liturgy.

Budgeting and Field Day
by Dallice Hesselgrave

Since Student Board has a policy of not funding events where alcohol will be present (excluding regulated events) they felt they could no longer legitimately fund an off-campus Field Day, knowing alcohol is present every year. Booster Club still received money to hold Field Day, but if the event is to be held off-campus, the rental fee will have to come from another source.

I think that Student Board has taken a responsible position through this act. I hope that Booster Club, as well as the rest of the Marian community, will see the wisdom in this decision and act accordingly.

As the event is Marian’s Field Day, the students are representing Marian College and should uphold its principles and policies, such as no alcohol, whether on-campus or off.

I also think that an off-campus Field Day does not lend itself to keeping the students together to enjoy this day of recreation. Not all students are able to attend this event -- students without readily available transportation are likely to not make the effort to go.

Having Field Day on-campus would take care of both of these problems and unite the school for a day of relaxation and fun before Finals Week.

CHB sponsors "Big Sis"
by Beth Peter

Clare Hall Board is sponsoring a new “Big Sister” program this year at Marian. The purpose is to help Clare Hall freshmen become better acquainted with upperclassmen, the dorm and college life in general.

A meeting was held Tues. Sept. 19 in which interested “Big Sisters” randomly chose names of freshmen. Most upperclassmen received two names.

The initial contact period will be for two weeks in which “Big Sisters” will send notes and small gifts to their “Little Sisters.” Their identity will be kept secret during this time. After names are revealed, Clare Hall Board hopes to arrange meetings and social events for the new friends. Participants are also encouraged to keep up contact with each other.

Paula Schendel commented, “I am really excited by the enthusiasm! In order for this program to be successful and become a tradition at Marian, we must have continual interest on the part of upperclassmen as well as freshmen.”

Diane Raver, President of the Clare Hall Board said, “I hope this will open up communication between freshmen and upperclassmen.”

What are you doing for lunch today? If you could give an hour at lunch to visit with a patient while she or he eats lunch, just your being there will help them feel less lonely. They'll eat more and heal more quickly. For more information please call Volunteer Services Department at Methodist Hospital of Indiana, Inc., at 929-8758. Thank you.

Visiting with patients takes on special meaning for volunteers when the patients are struggling with head injuries. If you are a person who is calm, able to be firm and interested in playing a vital part in the recovery, please call Volunteer Services Department at Methodist Hospital of Indiana, Inc., at 929-8758 for more information. Thank you.

ATTENTION PSYCH MAJORS, BIG PSYBS/LITTLE PSYBS: Monday, Oct. 2 at 9 p.m. is Subway sandwich night at Julie Herbstirsh's apartment. If interested, sign up on the list by the Psychology office. The cost is $2.00 per person. You must sign up if you wish to attend.
