Meer to be honored in "Realizing the Dream" project

by Dallice Hesselgrave

On Saturday, October 28, 1989, at the Omni Indianapolis North Hotel, sophomore James (Jim) Meer will be honored as Marian College's choice for the new "Realizing the Dream" project. Funded by a $149,400 grant from Lilly Endowment, Inc., the project seeks out high-achieving college freshmen whose parents did not go on to college, to honor them during their sophomore year.

"Our goal in this project is to encourage members of families with no prior history of participation in higher education to consider going to college," Project Director Dr. Louis Gatto explained.

Thirty-two students will be honored, one from each of the Independent Colleges and Universities of Indiana, with a $500 scholarship to the general scholarship fund of the college in the name of the outstanding student and a plaque. Also to be honored will be a teacher chosen by each student. Each teacher will be awarded with a $500 grant for use in professional development.

Project director, Gatto, comments on honoring the teachers. "We are trying to highlight not only role models, but also the significance of faculty influence on students."

Accounting/Business Major, Meer tells what he thinks about the project. "I feel it's good that the teachers are recognized because so many times a good teacher is not recognized for what he or she has done for students."

The MCSA treasurer chose Leslie Fenimore as the teacher who most influenced his going to college. Fenimore is a science teacher at Rushville Consolidated High School. "From day one when I met him, (please see MEER, continued on page 4)

CARD Committee plans Marian College Alcohol Awareness Week

by Beth Peter

The Marian College Alcohol Awareness Week is scheduled for the week of October 23-27. The preceding week is National Alcohol Awareness Week at which time Marian is out of school for mid-term break.

The CARD (Concerned About Responsible Drinking) Committee of Marian hopes to send the message to students, faculty and staff that there are alternative ways to have fun besides drinking alcohol. Presently, CARD is made up of about eight members, including professional staff and students. Doug Daugherty, chairperson of CARD, expressed hopes that eventually the group will be an all-student run committee.

The goals presented by CARD include: decreasing drunk driving of the immediate community (Marian students, faculty and staff), increasing involvement in alternative leisure activities, educating on the topics of alcohol and drugs, providing the chemically dependent with information of treatment and support services, and working with the Indianapolis community in a "give and take" relationship which will benefit area schools, substance abuse centers, and Marian College.

A contest is currently being held between now and Oct. 23 to see who can design the best logo for CARD. Entries can be turned in to Doug Daugherty or (please see CARD, continued on page 5)
Alcohol Awareness Week

As you may know, National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week (NCAAW) will be observed by the Marian College community during the week of October 23 to the 27, 1989.

During NCAAW, many activities will take place to celebrate the theme for the week, “Celebrate Sober.” For instance, on Tuesday, the 24th, there will be a booth set up in St. Francis Hall where you can make a contract, like a SADD Contract, with a friend to insure that each of you have sober ride options in the event that you are unable to drive, or are with someone who is unable to drive.

But the point of this is the members of the Concerned About Responsible Drinking (CARD) Committee, who are responsible for planning the activities around NCAAW, are asking all the students, staff and faculty of Marian College to refrain from using alcohol from 12:01 a.m. to 11:59 p.m. on Wednesday, October 25th. This day, we have chosen to call “All-Campus Drink Out and Convocation Day.”

On the evening of the 25th, a convocation of speakers will be present at the Marian Hall Auditorium. Speaking that night will be Rick Tennent, Larry Baca and Indianapolis Indian baseball star Razor Shines. As was done last year, Indianapolis Pacer tickets will be given away.

So please, plan now on a fun, informative and important week on the Marian College Campus.

Gentleman Baseball Player’s Fan

In response to the letter from the “victims” of the baseball-playing “gentlemen.” Coach Shambaugh may have stuck his foot in his mouth when he stated that this year’s baseball players are “gentlemen” in comparison to past players who were “renegades” (remember Coach-you’re an ex-Marian College baseball player), but he is speaking the truth for at least a few of the players.

I happen to know a current baseball player who is far from being a “renegade” - he does not consume alcohol, participate in fights, or take advantage of naive and/or not-so-naive girls. He makes baseball his life, studies hard, and follows the rules.

I find your comments insulting and degrading to this baseball player, so please get your facts straight before making future stereotypical judgments. Believe it or not, but there does happen to be some baseball players who are “gentlemen” at their best.

MICHELLE: Last week I was asked by Tina Kunkler to write Julie's Senior Profile. Then we decided that since Julie and I have been roommates for four years (a rare occurrence), we should write a joint profile. Over the past four years, Julie and I have shared more common academic pursuits and similar interests than we ever thought we would when we first met as freshmen.

JULIE: Michelle is a French and English major and I am majoring in Psychology. This combination has made for quite a few interesting intellectual as well as typical 'roommate' conversations. We are members of the revised Honors Program, and we have enjoyed the involvement and enthusiasm shown by professors who have taught our Honors classes.

MICHELLE: Not only is Julie smart, but she is active in athletics as well. She has played Varsity Volleyball for four seasons, and every spring, Julie is a member of the Softball Club. I, however, am not so athletically inclined, and have involved myself in other extra-curricular activities.

JULIE: Michelle is a familiar face on campus to many. She has held the positions of Golden Knight (campus tour guide) and Tour Coordinator in the Admissions Office. She has also been active on the Traffic Assessment Committee and as a tutor for French students. Michelle now serves as president of the English Club and as a Teacher's Assistant in the English Department.

MICHELLE: Besides being an avid participant in athletics, Julie takes an active role in the Psychology Club/Psi Chi as treasurer this year. When she is not studying or playing volleyball, Julie spends her time tutoring other students and working on her applications to graduate schools.

JULIE: Speaking of graduate school, I hope to be accepted into a PhD program in Industrial Psychology next year. Although Michelle is still uncertain, she is considering law school, or a graduate program in literature.

BOTH: One reason we have remained friends and roommates in the last four years, is that our philosophy about Marian is the same; Marian College and the Marian Community are only as rewarding as each student makes them. As seniors, we feel fortunate to have had such strong academic support from our respective departments; we would like to express our gratitude for the positive influences they have had on us.

Have you ever awoke from a deep sleep only to find that your world, as you know it, was filled with darkness? Well, if you were on campus last Friday morning at about 1:30 a.m., then you knew that your world was full of darkness.

Now, you may ask, and rightfully so, how could a prestigious camp as “Camp M” have these little blackouts? Investigation reveals that “Camp M” does not have any backup system for handling such emergencies. Furthermore, campers are also cut off from communications with the outside world. How, pray tell, does one contact the proper people to deal with such emergencies?

Informed sources told us that the blackout was the work of the terrorist group, Black Sabbath. Black Sabbath, as most of you may know, was responsible for the ice storm that hit “Camp M” two years ago and shut down the camp for a whole day. This terrorist group has now claimed responsibility for blowing up the power plant surrounding “Camp M”.

How does one deal with such groups? The Head Counselor has the following suggestions to deal with such groups, “lock your doors, lock your windows, don’t let anyone in the door that you don’t know, and above all, don’t tell anyone about flaws in your security system.”

While this may not prevent any further terrorist groups from threatening us, it may make it safer for us to survive terrorist threats.

First convocation scheduled for Oct. 17

Dr. Dan Brown, Marian College class of 1963 (B.S. in Chemistry and Mathematics), will speak on the “Social Impact of Alcohol & Drug Abuse” on Oct. 17 for the first convocation of the semester.

Brown received his Ph.D. in Toxicology from Indiana University in 1968. He has been an Assistant Professor of Toxicology at Indiana University and Southern Illinois University, and is currently the Chief Forensic Toxicologist for the Illinois State Police.

Brown has done extensive research on the effects and implications of alcohol and marijuana abuse.

Convocations begin at noon on Tuesdays in the Marian Hall Auditorium.

Full-time students on baccalaureate degree programs are required to attend 12 of the 16 convocations offered over a four year period. One-fourth credit is earned per year for attendance for a total of one semester hour applicable toward degree credits.

Full-time students on associate degree programs are required to attend six of the eight convocations offered over a two year period, for a total of .5 semester hours applicable toward degree credits.

planned activities of the day include:

* campus tours
* basketball & baseball games

any resident director.

The theme for the week this year is "Celebrate Sober." There is also a theme for each day of the week. Monday through Friday, daily activities are planned reminding the community to be aware of alcohol and its effects.

Monday, Oct. 23 is named "Day of the Dead." The week will start by looking at the serious issue of drinking and driving. There will be a crashed car on campus and crosses placed around it symbolizing all the victims of drug- and alcohol-related auto accidents. The car will be filled with aluminum cans. A contest will be held to see who can guess closest to the number of cans in the car.

Tuesday, Oct. 24 will be "Contract Between Friends Day" in which students can get telephone numbers of friends they may need to call in emergency situations when they need a "Sober Ride." This is similar to the SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) contracts with which many people are familiar.

Wednesday, Oct. 25 is "Drink Out Day." All faculty, staff and students of Marian are asked to not drink alcohol for 24 hours, from 12:01 a.m. to 11:59 p.m. on this day. A convocation will be held at 8:30 that evening. It has been confirmed that the speakers will be Larry Baca of MADD, Rick Tennent of the Koala Center, and Razor Shines of the Indianapolis Indians. Also, there will be twenty tickets to the Pacers' opening game raffled off at this session.

"Knight Life Encore Entertainment" will be held Thursday night, Oct. 26. This event takes place at Stokely Mansion from 9:15 until 11 p.m. The idea is to create a night club atmosphere. There will be students from another college serving "mocktails," live student entertainment, and a video projector displaying music videos. The headline act will feature the band, coheris, a Christian contemporary and jazz musical group which will play two sets of twenty minutes. Chi Chi's is supplying a half barrel of chips with salsa and Coca-Cola is donating pop. Daugherty said this will probably be the best and most fun event of the week.

On Friday, Oct. 27 we end the week with "Poster Day" at which time special attention will be drawn to the Poster Display throughout Marian Hall. These are the art work of students from Cold Spring School and St. Thomas Aquinas School. Marian is grateful to Indiana National Bank, Subway, Rax, Wendy's, Chi Chi's and Coke for helping to sponsor the events by donating cash, food and coupons as prizes.

The CARD committee would like to thank the administration for their support of this week's activities.

A special invitation goes out to commuter students, all staff, and personnel to participate in the activities that are planned.

Broadcasting visits DINFOS

The absence of broadcasting facilities at Marian College will not keep students of SP220 Techniques of Broadcast Appearance from getting a real-world look at radio and television and some hands-on experience.

On three occasions this semester, the class will visit the broadcast facilities of the Defense Information School (DINFOS) at Fort Benjamin Harrison. The school, which recently celebrated its 25th Anniversary, trains journalists and broadcasters for the worldwide Armed Forces Radio-TV Network.

Instructor Richard Cassin, also a member of the DINFOS faculty, coordinated with military officials for Marian students to meet in the school's broadcast complex. Cassin is in his third semester at Marian, having previously taught Introduction to Broadcasting and Writing for the Electronic Media.

Next semester the Speech-Theatre Department will offer a fourth broadcasting class, TV Criticism. The 3 credit hour block will look at the literature of television through the made-for-TV movie.

STOP DRINKING FOR A DAY

Wednesday, Oct. 25 faculty, staff, students challenge yourself not to partake of alcoholic beverages from 12:01 a.m. - 11:59 p.m. to honor N.C.A.A.W. sponsored by C.A.R.D.

In search of a 21st century perspective

by Dr. Louis Gatto

Now that the recruiting season for the 1990 Freshmen Class is in high gear, attention will again focus on those criteria judged to be the better predictors of ultimate college success. To admit a student with virtually no potential for achieving a degree is at best a disservice, at worst unconscionable. Conversely, to deny admission to an applicant who through no individual fault does not have the academic background to score reasonably well on standardized examinations but does have the native aptitude and motivation for postsecondary achievement--provided campus support services are available--is equally deplorable.

There may have been a time when little doubt existed regarding the correlation between intellectual ability as measured by the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and the fulfillment of college aspirations. This is not necessarily true today. The SAT has its critics--notably "FairTest," a Massachusetts-based organization, which maintains that the SAT is biased in favor of males and the more affluent test-takers. In essence, Donald M. Stewart, president of The College Board which sponsors the examination, concedes the criticism and attributes the poorer SAT showing of women and minority students to educational inequities.

The latest nation-wide report released by The College Board verifies the existence of a race and gender disparity. White students in the 1989 high school class attained a combined average score of 937, exactly 200 points about that of minority students. For women, the average was 875, 59 points below the 934 achieved by men.

To these biases, the third should be added for Hoosiers--that of a regional disadvantage. Indiana has consistently placed near the bottom of the states in both the percentage of high school graduates entering college and SAT scores.

Recently, however, certain initiatives undertaken by the Indiana Commission for Higher Education have moved the state's college-going rate closer to the nation's median. These will be the subject of a later column. Hence, while Indiana's college-age population is steadily declining, enrollments are increasing state-wide.

Unfortunately, the SAT story has not improved: the 1989 study continues to rank Indiana low--47th among the 50 states and the District of Columbia. Indiana students averaged 871 this past year as compared with a national level of 903. The gender gap was close to the nation's point spread: males 900 and females 846.

Fr. Bryan, our prayers are with you.
Netters hoping for first place in conference

by Lee Ann Bessler

Despite a hard five-game battle, the Lady Knights volleyball team was defeated by a scrappy Huntington College team Saturday, October 7.

The Lady Knights started the afternoon out strong, winning the first game 15-6. Huntington fought back hard, picking up nearly everything Marian hit at them, to win the next two games 15-12 and 15-1.

Again, the Lady Knights pulled their team together and were victorious in the fourth game 15-12. Kate Murphy played a respectable front line while the defense, too, became more alive. But once more, the hard fighting Huntington team displayed much consistency in their middle hitting and was able to defeat the Lady Knights in the fifth game 15-12.

Coach Molly Totten was complimentary about the Huntington team, "They are just a good overall team. Their players are very fine athletes and their middle hitters are consistent."

Even though Huntington is a good team, they are far from being unbeatable. Coach Totten commented that lack of communication and good solid team play were the main weaknesses in Saturday's game. Marian has a strong volleyball team this season and they are in the running for first place in the conference. Their conference record stands presently, at 3-1 losing only to Huntington.

The Lady Knights were back in action Oct. 10 and 12, in what may decide whether or not they make it into the District tournament. By defeating Oakland City here on Tuesday and another victory at Franklin on Thursday, coach Totten's "Netters" have a for sure spot in the District playoffs. A loss to either team could shorten the Lady Knights 1989-1990 season.

Totten made the last comment concerning student body support at home games. She noted that the team has performed to their highest potential when more positive reinforcement has come from the student body attending the games. Hopefully the crowd will gradually increase before the district tournament.

University of Detroit administrator presents seminar at Marian

by Tami Woodring

On Oct. 5 and 6, Marian College got a breath of fresh air as Kathy Bush, Director of Support Services and Special Admissions, from the University of Detroit, came on campus to describe a special admissions program named Project 100/Challenge (P100).

P100 is a project used at the University of Detroit since 1970 and has become a major contributing factor to the retention rate at U of D. Students are screened through the Admissions Office and applicants who do not meet regular admissions standards but have an ACT not lower than 11 or SAT not lower than 650 and whose GPA is a 2.5 or better (and they do take exceptions) are then reviewed for admission with P100.

P100 students participate in regular college classes, receive personal curriculum advising, academic tutoring, and are not separated from other college students. A Project 100 student is limited to no more than 15 hours of weekly employment during the first two semesters.

The students accepted into P100 (and their parents) sign an agreement requiring the student to spend a minimum of five hours weekly in tutorial or quiet study in the Learning Center through their freshman year or until they are judged to no longer require the Learning Center services. The freshmen's attendance is then tracked weekly and the students are phoned at home if they have not met the five-hour tutoring rule.

The 1986 award winning project's success factor at the University of Detroit is a 85 percent student retention rate into the sophomore year. Last year 28 percent of P100 students were on the dean's list, and overall, 50 percent of all P100 students are expected to graduate.

Bush was on campus to share some more information on Project 100 and help interested faculty and staff, along with a few students, explore the possibility of a similar project for Marian College. The two day seminar was attended by a variety of faculty and professional staff including Sister Claire Whalen, Dr. Rosalie Rohm, John Hill, Dr. Faye Plascak-Craig, and Dr. Ray Craig, along with Dr. William Woodman, Sister Monica Zore and Mary Lou Gheen, with invitations for other faculty, staff and students to drop in and listen to Bush.

While at Marian, the Detroit native got to take a tour of campus and was impressed with the one-on-one contact and commitment to students of which Marian is so proud. She looks forward to possibly returning to Marian to attend the inauguration of former U of D dean, Dr. Daniel Felicetti, a former colleague. She feels he will be a great asset for Marian.
Felicetti reveals final flickers

by Tina Kunkler

Doctor Daniel Felicetti, Marian College President, presented his final two pilots of light at the Open College Forum held on Oct. 6.

Under the first pilot of light, strategic planning, Felicetti proposed ten goals to be achieved during this next year:
1. Develop a Marian Mentors Training Program proposal by Spring 1990 and implement it by this summer.
2. Explore the financial aid structure needed for an all-honors student program by Spring 1990 and install it by Sept. 1990.
5. Propose a few new academic and social programs to be studied this year with an eye toward probable start-up in Fall 1990.
6. Begin national searches for a dean of enrollment management and for a director of continuing education, with candidates to be hired by Spring 1990.
7. Lay the foundations for comprehensive enrollment management efforts in admissions and in retention by Spring 1990.
8. Complete a review of affordable professional support opportunities by Summer 1990.
9. Make key decisions about planning the future physical design of our campus before the Summer of 1990, perhaps by January 1990.

Felicetti's other pilot of light involves resources. Focusing on a public relations campaign and fund-raising, Felicetti suggested the following steps: sending one central message to the community of which Marian is a part; expanding on the inaugural theme "Thanksgiving and Renewal;" and publicizing a clear message through the media that features all members of the Marian community.

In relation to fund-raising, Felicetti stressed that it is a campus-wide responsibility, but lies primarily with the president, the Board of Trustees, and the president's staff. He said that the college must mobilize, attract the interest of donors, calculate goals and network insiders to reach outsiders, and satisfy outsiders who are concerned about the college.

New staff on campus

by Dallice Hesselgrave

Originally from California, Dennis Eggers had an interesting time getting his degree from Butler, "I was on the 15-year program." He went on to say that he went to school, decided to become a truck driver, and then later on finished his degree.

Eggers is the new Hardware/Network Manager for the computer center. Also keeping him busy is working with Jeff Cain on the computerization of the campus.

The computer buff decided to work at Marian because, "It was a nice environment and presented the challenge of a new project [computerization of the campus]."

In his spare time, Eggers likes to race dirt bikes, ski, and work on his home computer.

Scott Fleming has had an interesting summer. Recently chosen to work in the Admissions Office, the 1989 graduate found a challenge in changing his role from student to staff.

The sports fanatic related his experience of going to his first Faculty Development Day, "It was really weird walking to the gym and seeing all of the teachers I've had." He went on to say that all of the faculty have tried to make his transition smoother.

When asked why the Noblesville native decided to work for Marian College he reflected, "I love it here. I want to help other students have some of the experiences I've had." Fleming also talked about the difference of being a student assistant in the Admissions Office and being a counselor.

In his spare time, the counselor likes to travel and run.

Rehearsals continue for the fall play, Phedre. The show opens Thurs. at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium.
A speaker from the National Association of Accountants will be at Marian Oct. 25 at 7 p.m. in room 313 of Marian Hall. The Accounting Society is sponsoring this event and will provide refreshments. Scholarship applications will be available. Contact Sarah Back, ext. 192, or Jenny Wesseler, ext. 187, for more information.

Plans are being made now for Family Day. The campus-wide event will be held Oct. 14. Anyone interested in helping with the activities should contact the Office of College Relations at ext. 222.

Information on Fulbright grants for graduate study abroad is posted on the main bulletin board and has been distributed to department chairs. Application forms and further information can be obtained from the assistant academic dean. The foundation has also established a new undergraduate scholarship program, the Samantha Smith Memorial Exchange. Application deadline is Oct. 31, 1989.

Faculty Recital scheduled for Oct. 8 is rescheduled for Sunday, Nov. 5 at 7:30 p.m.

Graduate Record Examinations (GRE) dates: Dec. 9, 1989; Feb. 3, 1990; April 21, 1990; June 9, 1990. The application takes over a month to process. Forms may be obtained in the Registrar’s Office.

Oct. 27, 1989, is the last date to withdraw from a class with a W. After that time, an F will appear on the transcript. This is a change in policy from last year.

The next MCSNA meeting is this evening at 7:30 p.m. in St. Francis Hall. Topics include Fall Conference, upcoming activities and fund raising. Orders for sweatshirts will also be taken at this time. So take a break from studying and join your fellow nursing students for a fun evening.

For the 5th consecutive year, the Marian College Admissions office will co-host the 1989 Indiana School Counselor Association Workshop on campus Oct. 13. Special tours will be conducted by the Golden Knights and the Music Department will provide special music. Dr. Daniel Fellicetti, Marian College President, will extend official greetings to more than 120 school counselors.

There will be an important meeting for all students who will be going on the Stratford, Canada Theatre Trip at 7 p.m. in the Marian College Auditorium, Monday, October 23. The meeting will take about a half hour. Contact Dr. David Edgecombe, ext. 292, if you are unable to make this meeting.
