WEDNESDAY February 14:
- Basketball game--8:00pm against Rose Hulman in I.C. gym-- 4s. Hulman looks in great shape from Jack LeLane's coaching.
- M.A.A. basketball game in I.C. gym at whenever.
- Meeting of Central Indiana Council of Teachers of Math in rm. 251 from 7:00-10:00pm; included by Sr. Florence Marie doing a mathematical equation of smoking significance.

Editorial

The Alcoholic Beverage Policy which would permit the use of alcoholic beverages on campus under certain circumstances will be voted on in Faculty Council this Tuesday. At this point it does not appear to have a chance of passing.

The widespread support among the Faculty for continued "prohibition" at Marian proves the fact that many of our Faculty are unable to treat students as adults. The present alcoholic policy makes no distinction between responsible or irresponsible drinking. This is an infantile regulation which society in general does not recognize as valid for (cont. p. 2 - col. 1) adults. But it seems that the faculty who support it at Marian don't think the students know the difference between responsible and irresponsible behavior. (Or, even worse, maybe they don't know the difference.) At the age of 21 (and probably much earlier) students believe they have the ability to make mature decisions.

They know the problems and implications involved in the use of alcohol. This does not always mean the decision will be the correct one, but this human imperfection also extends to the faculty. Still the college persists in placing responsible behavior in the same category as irresponsible behavior and doling out equal amounts of discipline.

One of the goals of the college as stated in the handbook is to enable the students to "develop a capacity for judgment". If the alcoholic beverage proposal fails I strongly question the sincerity with which this goal was established. Why state the goal if there was never any intention to implement it? The perpetuation of the present policy on alcoholic beverages is an admission that many faculty members are more concerned with disciplining than educating.

There is considerable controversy in many states over the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. This bill is presently before several state legislatures, including Indiana's, for action.

In light of the strong feelings both for and against the passage of this bill, this past Monday there was an open hearing on the ERA at the Indiana State House downtown. The latter half of this meeting, devoted to the opposition, bordered on the humorous—save for the fact that they were actually serious!

The arguments presented by those not favoring the ratification of this amendment ranged from "We already have adequate safeguards for women in this state" to "God gave us distinct roles in the family."

As to the second statement: When and where?

As to the first: Perhaps Indiana does have rather progressive Civil Rights legislation, but more is needed (A married woman may be refused an auto insurance policy for herself even if the car is in her name.). And what of the women in other states who are not protected through their Civil Rights or Equal Pay legislation?

As if these bases for opinion aren't surprising enough, many people are hung-up on the question of toilet facilities. Now really, is it so crucial to the principle of the ERA to ask if it means that men and women will share the same restrooms? (Incidentally, for those who are concerned about this, No the ERA does not call for shared restrooms.) How absurd to think that this is the major concern here. Yet this is always raised as an objectionable point to the bill. (The Louisiana legislature failed the amendment on this issue of toilet facilities)

At Monday's meeting, one woman stated that the ERA makes no allowances for physical differences between men and women, and that if it were ratified women would have to lift heavy objects. What can I say? If you don't want the job, don't take it! She also said: "the passage of the ERA demands that men and women be matched physically and mentally." I think we are all aware that nothing short of major surgery will ever match men and women physically.

Contrary to what opponents to the bill believe, the question is not "Does the end justify the means?" The question is: "When are we going to start living by the principles on which this country was founded?" We have the opportunity to wipe out one more block to the "liberty and justice for all!" right now. I hope we take it. If we don't, then we should deny the ideals of the Constitution as valid lest they be made a part of the hypocrisy of "The American Way."

From the Masses:

Dear Carbon:

I'm sure that the residents of Doyle Hall have noticed the deplorable conditions of the Doyle Hall rest rooms are presently in. Broken shower spicketes, torn shower curtains and clogged shower drains are but a few of these deplorable conditions. Clogged shower drains make the floor of the shower an ideal place for a fungus colony but not so ideal for one's feet. It starts one wondering where his room and board money is being spent when he notices that only half of the showers on his wing work. I'm sure that once the maintenance department finds out about the conditions in the rest rooms they will do everything possible to get them in working order, as soon as possible. Obviously, the two gentlemen who clean the rest rooms at Doyle every morning haven't noticed the broken fixtures or they would have reported them to their boss and they would have been fixed by now. I'm sure that they will notice the broken fixtures in my wing Monday because they will be pointed out with signs. I hope that the maintenance department will recognize that students paying room and board are entitled to adequate restroom facilities and at the present time the restroom facilities at Doyle Hall are far from being adequate.

Dear Carbon editors: Here's a Carbon-copy of a letter I sent to William Shakespeare just today:

Dear Bill,

When I heard that you had said, "Look what they've done to my play!", I couldn't refrain from asking you to elaborate - audacious as that sounds. Thanks for your quick reply. So you liked the Marian Catholic production? - I knew you would!

"Wondrous" that was an apt word you chose to describe Marcia Dubois' interpretation of Lady Macbeth, low-key and captivating, she surely did portray the "monster" without betraying the woman.

"Revreint" - I'm forced to agree with you, Bill. Denis Kelly did see, enflame and portray Duncan in a way that reflected the respect he had for that person.

"Consumed" - Odd, that that word should have come to your mind as descriptive of Bob Jefferson's version of MacDuff, and I liked how you compared the way passion consumed MacDuff with the way MacDuff consumed Jefferson.

"Restrained" - that's a word packed with meaning. It implies there's something to be restrained, and in this case it was the same strength and violence that Peter O'Connell would naturally have brought to this role. The restrained did reveal, as you said, the controlled power and force as well as the sensitivity Peter displayed. (I'm not going to tell the rest of the cast this, though.)

Bill, I thoroughly enjoyed these and all your comments on each aspect of the production, I must take time, though, to add that I especially concur with your opinion that Jack O'Hare's production was "Inspired". You are, as a playwright, completely indebted to each director who undertakes to produce one of your plays, aren't you? Don't you wish more of them would be held enough talent enough to combine the same degree of imagination, variety, dash, and brilliance that Jack did, so that what you had to commit to a script, printed page of print, in order to preserve it, could be released once more for another audience to relive and enjoy?

Peace,
Sr. Helen

P.S. I'm glad I had the chance to see 'what they did to your play'.

STUDENT BOARD

The allocation of $150 for a concert to be sponsored by the Freshman Class was taken off the table and passed 12-0-0.

The letter on Dynamic Catholicity, to be sent to the Steering Committee, was discussed. No objections were raised to the letter so it will be sent, as written, to that Committee for reply.

Margaret Platt made a motion to send a letter to the Indiana legislature stating the Student Board's support of the Equal Rights Amendment. The motion passed 12-0-0. That letter is typed elsewhere in this edition of the Carbon.

OSERVATIONS BY THE PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT CONCERNING SOME INTERESTING CORRELATIONS--

There is a correlation between a student's performance in class and the following variables:

(note: ICTTTB = I couldn't take the test because)

1. reliability of student's car (ICTTTB my car wouldn't start)
2. quality of student's alarm clock (ICTTTB my alarm didn't go off)
3. health of student (ICTTTB I was sick)
4. health of student's family (ICTTTB my mother was sick)
5. health of student's pets (ICTTTB my goldfish was sick)
6. number of emergencies in student's family (ICTTTB my brother was arrested for exhibiting a shoe fetish in public)
7. reliability of student's roommate (ICTTTB my roommate didn't wake me up in time)
8. bad weather (ICTTTB it was snowing)
9. good weather (ICTTTB it was too nice to be indoors)
10. availability of books in library (ICTTTB I couldn't find the book)
11. petty crime (ICTTTB somebody stole the battery out of my car)
12. good movies in town (ICTTTB I had to go see The Godfather for the research paper I'm doing in Sociology class)
13. student's memory (ICTTTB I forgot it was today)
14. good causes (ICTTTB I was raising money for the Society to help Crooked Albanian Dwarfs)
15. bad causes (ICTTTB I was protesting the testing process in education)
16. questionable causes (ICTTTB I was protesting the use by SAGA of non-union rutebogas)
17. the willingness of teachers to allow such correlations to exist (you can make up the test whenever you like)

This is the only correlation for which a clear cut cause and effect relationship has been established.

CONDUCT APPEAL BOARD

The Student Services Committee met last Monday to discuss a proposal to change the Conduct Review Board into a Conduct Appeal Board. The Board would have the power to sustain original conduct action, modify it to a lesser degree, find the original disposition inappropriate and dismiss the case, or direct the case to be reheard. The proposal passed 7 to 1.

Sr. Francesca asked the Question of the Week:

Do onions REALLY matter?
STUDENT BOARD TAKES A STAND ON EQUAL RIGHTS

The following letter is to be sent from the Student Board to the chairman of the Indiana Subcommittee on Constitutional Revision and the House Committee on Human Affairs.

Recognizing our responsibility to voting citizens, we would like to express our viewpoint on the Equal Rights Amendment, which is before this session of the Indiana Legislature.

It is our belief that this country ought to strive for those ideals expressed in our Constitution. We see the Civil Rights Act as having been one step in the direction of accomplishing this goal. It is in this same light that we view the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, if this country is truly founded on the principles of justice and equality, then the enactment of the Equal Rights Amendment is to provide legal protection for those rights which women should already have, according to the Constitution, just as the Civil Rights Act granted protection of the rights of non-whites. We are convinced that the only way to insure free exercise of the rights all citizens of this country supposedly share is to act as if the ideals of the Constitution are attainable. They will be more fully realized through the passage of this bill. It is for this reason that we urge you to vote for the Equal Rights Amendment.

WOT'S WATT

Doyle Hall is in the process of forming a Conduct Review Board for next year. Student Services Activities Director Linda Kopl was being inaugurated for Zip Trip program with a visit to the Black Curtain for dinner and show, Canterbury Tales.

Faculty Council on Tuesday will vote on the Alcoholic Beverage Policy.

Kathy ORourke and Peter OConnell are preparing for their student directed productions of Capetown and Wait Until Dark, respectively.

Student Services Committee passed the Appeals Review Board proposal and it is now before Faculty Council.

Sister Francesca is now in the process of casting roles for her upcoming production, In White America.

John Cater is recovering nicely and is hoping, as well as his friends here at Marian, that he will soon be released from the hospital.

A number of business majors are in the process of studying for their CPA. They have been known to hold classes for 5 or 6 hours at a time.

Bill Petke, instructor at Marian, is currently on sabbatical at the University of Colorado and will soon be taking his pre-lims. His subject is Bertrand Russell (analytical philosophy). If he flunks these he will be back sooner than we think.

THE RETURN OF:

YESTERDAY'S HEALTH

By Dr. Von Dullea

Greetings, health fans! For those of you who may have wondered, I've been on my monthly two week vacation which was spent doctoring up Macheath casualties. Now for those who would require my humble services, you'll find my shrine of healing in the middle of the legendary tunnel connecting Allison mansion and the priest's residence, approximately 6.297 feet beneath the former birdbath in Allison's front yard. In this way not only is your privacy insured but also your spiritual welfare due to close proximity of the clergy, should the need for them arise.

Today's Topics: EXERCISE FOR THE BUSY STUDENT.

1. Be seen feeling tired lately? Run down? Sick of Geritol? In this common case, I would prescribe EXERCISE! Here are a few simple exercises that are sure to make you feel like a new person.
   1. Practice looking cross-eyed while eating and wall-eyed while drinking. Great flexible eyes.
   2. Touch your heels to the back of your head.
   4. Try walking on your hands instead of your feet. After all, variety is the spice of life.

Well that's all for this week. Tune in next Friday when our topic will be the Cold and its derivatives.

YOUR FRIENDLY,

KENNY ROGERS MEMORIAL BASKETBALL GAME

Alumni vs. WTLC Fellows
Intramural Basketball:

One of the most dramatic events in 1973 Intramural Sports will take place this Sunday at 5:00 when White Lightning tackles U.W.I. in a battle of the unvictorious. Both teams sport a fancy 0-10 record and have been readying themselves for this game for weeks. White Lightning has been erratic this far and will be playing without Joe Martin or former great Louis Coomes. However, Big John Purcell will be carrying his 14 plus scoring average into the contest and will be supported by such others as Jay Farm, Tom Cabulko, and "Stunning" Charlie Kissman. This shows that White Lightning has speed, but their real strength lies in their bench strength. When a team can lose with such stalwarts as Don Karran and Don Ven, you know they're bad. Coach Stinger's U.W.I. also has much to say nothing about. They do possess one of the finest guards in the league in heady Ken Hornbeck. Larry "Studs" Markel and newcomer Scott Vanderheide have given U.W.I. the muscle needed to remain in last place. If Tom Schnebly makes this year's the outcome could be greatly effect

In other events of note, the Dry Heaves posted their second straight win on Wednesday night by tripping The Birdman, 35-32. The highlight of the week was the announcement of Dan Buett's engagement. Dan has denied any such move on his part, but Courtly Few spokesmen remain mum. This could mean the end of a brilliant basketball career. Only time will tell.

Intramural Basketball:

With the Women's Intramural Basketball at its halfway mark, no major upsets have characterized any first round games.

Monday night saw second place Beaver Shooters, paced by Gini Gerhuldt and Karen Fliesel, run over the Jocks, paced by no one. Comedy of Errors handled the Amazons another loss while the big battle of the evening took place between No.1 Sex-tet and No. 3 Double Shots. It was clearly a defensive victory for the Sex-tet as they beat the Jocks to 5 points to 22. The Snatches captured their second victory against Family Plus One, an outstanding win considering the amount of membership turnover for the Snatches - never knowing who'll be on the team next - or if there'll be a team. Daughters of Shaft kept Bell Bouncers rolling in the loss column.

Wednesday proved to be a surprise for women's basketball fans throughout the country. The Amazons, 3-4, managed to win their first game, the other two being the result of forfeits. Lynn Linkback sparked the Amazons to victory over the Bell Bouncers while the Jocks captured their first win against Daughters of Shaft. It's really too bad that a forfeit had to break the Jocks perfect record of 0-0. Despite Pecky Kissmann's splendid attempt at guarding her guard, the Sex-tet defeated Family Plus One while the Beaver Shooters stopped Comedy of Errors. The Snatches had their hopes up at the end of the first quarter when they trailed 3rd place Double Shots by only 2 points. But the rest of the game was dominated by the Double Shots paced by the combined fantastic forward combination of Collete Stark and Pat Arnold, whose unselfish efforts have been a huge contribution in a number of the Shots victories.

The Volunteer Bureau is to help you, the members of the Marian College Community, to attain relevant activities, career experience, and awareness of the problems within the community and beyond it. In other words a chance for you to go beyond books and interact with the problems and people of the city for mutual benefits.

There are several projects already established on campus for you to become involved in. These projects consist of working with the mentally ill and retarded, volunteer work at Boy’s and Girl’s School, Upbeat, tutoring intercity kids and the teaching of Christian doctrine.

These projects can give you a chance to help people less fortunate than you or give you a first hand chance at trying to solve problems of today. If these activities do not fit you, perhaps we can find something that will. We would like to know what you are interested in and any suggestion would be appreciated.

Your involvement in volunteer projects can be long term or short term depending on the project and your availability. If you do not have time to dedicate to one of these projects we would also appreciate your help in organization and transportation.

If you are interested, fill out the questionnaire below and return it to either Clara Hall desk, Doyle Hall desk, or the Information Office in Marian Hall. We will contact you. For more information call Ann Burnett--Ext. 510, Rita Kirchgasner--Ext. 419, or Mary Pflenz--Ext. 427.

For those who have been too lazy to walk their letters to the Carbon up to the mail box in Student Services, or too impatient to figure out which mailbox is ours when they get there, a box for letters has been placed in the Parc. (You can’t miss it, it is clearly marked and has a faint resemblance to a shoe box with a slot in it.)

All letters, poems, thoughts, gripes, etc. will be printed to the best of our ability and amount of space (whichever comes first). The Publication Constitution requires that we know the names of all contributors and the use of pseudonyms, initials, etc. after that point is up to our discretion.
