FROM THE MASSES

I would first like to congratulate both U.B.I. and the Sophomore class on the success of their activities and dances of the past week. It is my understanding that both "Sweethearts" and "Put Your Hands Together" were highly successful. Its unfortunate however, that we weren't able to enjoy them both.

Has Student Board taken a position in support of our much discussed segregation of students and student activities? The scheduling of conflicting events budgeted through Student Board is against both present Social Council policy and the economic reality of a school Marian's size. As much as we act like it, we just can't afford separate social activities for every group that claims distinctiveness on campus.

Although U.B.I. was not budgeted for a dance last Saturday, it was approved by Student Board without going through the proper budgeting and social planning procedures.

Over the past few weeks we have read much writing of the chest-pounding variety, by graduating Board members, of their great endeavors (continued page 3, col. 1)
Dear Carbon,

After reading two letters by the famous paper knight bragging of his sports ability and calling for universality of extra-curricular organizations, I feel a rebuttal is in order. First of all on the point of the great opportunity offered to Mr. Farrell, opening up his reserve basketball career; couldn’t Coach Schilling have chosen one of the better intramural ball-players to fill this open slot. Also if the team is so universal as Jay explains how come some players run their glutious maxims off to get cut from the team and why couldn’t I, a 5-8, 115 lb. female, work into the center position?

On the point of separate but equal clubs, I agree with a recent Phoenix article by Jay. As Farrell said that the paper knight should follow these two simple instructions, 1) open mouth, 2) insert foot. Drum & Bugle Corps is not a discriminating organization. We might do our own thing but anyone white, black, yellow or Farrell is welcome to join us. If all clubs merged together, then I would say that-inividuality was taken away and the whole point of their existence, banished. —Paper Knight

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

by John Parcell, as told to him by Jay Farrell

Tuesday February 19, Coach Ed Schilling announced the signing of another top recruit, Jay Farrell, Farrell, former star of Birds of a Feather and White Lightning in the intramural league in a rare case in that he has been recruited as a senior in college rather than a senior in high school. Coach Schilling explained the reason for this was the extremely slow development of Farrell’s basketball skills. Farrell was given a tryout in a J-V game two weeks ago and proved he could play with the big boys, as he compiled a net worth of -3. His fine performance and ability to cut-off the hot man on the other team with his butchering tactics is part of the reason Farrell was signed at this time.

In exchange for his poor ballhandling, sleepy defense and Helen Kelleristic shooting ability, Farrell has been promised a free sack lunch from the canteen, a trip to Louisville to sit the bench against the University of Louisville B team, and the rental of the Marian College basketball uniform for two hours. There was no mention made of Marian providing him with a return trip to Indianapolis.

When reached for comment Farrell, alias Paper Knight, put it this way; "A lot of people put me down for four years of holding out but I feel finally I deserved." In response to this Aast. Coach Mike Riessen, who started this whole mess, said: "We finally get someone to carry our equipment for us on road trips, we only hope he doesn’t butcher up the equipment the way he butchers people on the court, including our own team."

P.S. Please don’t blame this on me I was forced to do it.

FROM THE MASSES:

Dear Jetaun,

In response to your letter in the Phoenix February 19, I would like to share with you the letters and reactions I received from Black Culture Week, and also explain my whereabouts during the various activities offered.

I did not attend the play. As is my habit at all Marian theatre productions, I sit in on rehearsal during the week to get an idea of the production, to see if I want to spend two hours or so watching it on Friday or Saturday night. However, I missed this play because I have a class during this time. I did not go because I felt it was a poor production, not because it was done by the black students.

Monday night, Soul Night in the cafe, some black students really "opened themselves up to me". That night more than double the usual number of dirty trays were left on the tables by black students for cafe workers to clean up.

Tuesday afternoon I was at Faculty Council from 12-1:20. Consequently I missed the reception for Gwendolyn Brooks. I did attend Miss Brooks’ convocation that evening and enjoyed it immensely.

Thursday evening I attended Gospeland—a very rare opportunity to enjoy a professional theatre production for $5 instead of $15. And Friday night, I went to work at 7, I went first to the Mug Shack to relax and then on to the skating party. No rejection intended here—just like to have fun.

I would like you to know Jetaun, that every year during Black Culture Week, I feel more alienated, rejected and scoffed at by blacks at Marian more than any other time of the year. Personally, I feel I have treated you as I do anyone else I know— as human being, period. I never realized before that you were black—until you kept reminding me. And one other point—my black neighbors on the third floor of Clare Hall remanded me louder than ever at 2,3,4 am during Black Culture Week that I live with them. But then I suppose that was nothing out of the ordinary since the noise is continuous night after night.

Jetaun, I am from the same generation as you. That means I was born in the 50’s, not in the 1700 and 1800’s. I am white—and am not going to apologize for it. I did not have slaves, nor do I believe in slavery. Unfortunately, man can be very ugly and prejudice is one of these ugly results. I hate it. To try and combat it is very difficult indeed. Yet I firmly believe you are my equal and think of you as such. I will not treat you better that any other person for that is as wrong as treating you as an inferior. We are equal—no more—no less. As a person, I try to live according to the ideal that every man deserves to be loved—for himself to be loved. "If I love one, I love all." I for one am damn sick and tired of being treated as if I were reasonable for all the wrong-learings against blacks. I try to respect each person as himself and ask only the same in return. In a small community where black-white prejudice could be practically non-existent, I find it thriving stronger than ever. Who is to blame? For now all I can overcome our immature attitudes and start acting like human beings. Why strive for black identity or white identity? Why not try HUMAN IDENTITY next year?

It is my sincere hope you will once again talk to me after you get over your anger. —Pat Arcady

Next Week: Last Carbon before break.

From the Masses continued from page 1 col. 2, of their wing on a matter of fair importance since the beginning of the academic year. To me, executive voting members of the Board should be objective and unbiased but Clare Hall Board seems to be a minority clique that is both unobjective and very blessed. I hope my five dollars will prove to be a more worthwhile investment next year.

A Member of Clare Hall?

MARIAN MANIA VISITED!

Yes, it's true. Brought back by popular demand and a running series of Carbon Hisses is the quiz that earlier in the school year the had the campus buzzing with excitement. Rejoice those light-hearted, cleverly, contrived questions which baffled and amazed us with us once again - to the delight of all, no doubt.

Now without further ado and in the spirit of the dynamic catholicity which makes us unique let us take up this new offering.

1. Sports Trivia: Who are the two leading scorers in White Lighting's history?

2. What was the seasonal lake of Marian College? Who was it named after? Where was it located? What caused it to occur?

3. What Marian College maintenance man is a Square Dance Caller?

4. Faculty Question: What present faculty member was once co-editor of the grape sheet for a small minority of very vocal but disgruntled students, THE CARBON?

5. Class of 74 has seen how many:
   a) Presidents
   b) Dean of Student Services
   c) Directors of Counseling
   d) R.D.'s of Clare Hall
   e) R.D.'s of Doyle Hall
   f) Alumni Directors
   g) Directors of Development
   h) Food Service Directors

THE MEN

With only one week remaining in the intramural basketball season, eyes are now turning toward the playoffs. The Remaining Few has clinched the League A title while Omar's Bar & Grill is assured of a playoff berth. The other two spots will more than likely go to the slumping All The Marbles and Toney’s Turkeys. The Turkeys almost blew their chances in losing to the poorly Half-Courters Sunday, but bounced back with a win over the Golden Halls on Wednesday. In league B, Mazuri has virtually clinched the title. Bell’s Ding Dong and the Stoned Ragers are also assured of playoff births. The Golden Halls are currently lodged in 4th place, but the B-Baller’s still have an outside chance of nudging them out for the fourth spot. More important to some than the post-season playoffs is the showdown this Sunday between White Lightning, who has had bad teams in the past, has outdone itself this year. As a coach and General Manager Hag-Javis Morse commented “You have to see us to appreciate how bad we really are.” The Sisters of Love, on the other hand or nothing to write home about. A combination of freaks, pathetica, and John Boric, the Sisters are undoubtedly one of the worst teams in intramural basketball history. It is the opinion of this writer however, that the Sisters of Love will triumph on Sunday. They have been bolstering their lineups with new players throughout the year and their improvement is evidenced by the fact that they scored 60 points against the unbeaten Few only a week ago. White Lightning, on the other hand, started off the season badly, and has gotten worse with every game. Whatever the outcome, this Sunday, it is certain that from the 6:00 time a desperate battle will ensue, as two teams fight for their very pride. As senior White Lightning member Hobbit Ryan put it, “We must win, there is no tomorrow.”

THE WOMEN

After another week of women’s intramural play only two teams are left in the undefeated rank -- The Team and The Beaver Shooters. The Pygmies or rather the Virtuous Pagans forfeited to the Cool Ghoules and the Amazons forfeited to Marian Maniacs (last week’s article must have gone to their heads - just kidding, just kidding!)

General Electric fought a close battle with the Team as the two teams went into two over-times until the Team finally pulled through with the aid of a remarkable foul shot by TA-TA who was filling in due to lack of interest by the original Team. Thanks Ta-Tal! The last game provided the rest of the evening in Clare Hall with Choice remarks -- The Beaver Shooters came out on top to the Fruits (to whom we owe an apology for their undefeated rank of last week - Really, we are sorry but we didn’t have the results in front of us)

It seems Intramural games are extremely difficult to ref. And due to lack of experience some bad calls can and will be made. It is during these times that we must remember INTRAMURALS ARE FOR FUN!!

This is little Map, Starkie and Main making another bad call as we leave the gym amidst many boos and hisses.
