This November, a young, handsome, articulate politician will be elected to the Senate by the voters of Indiana. He is so promising that he may eventually wind up in the White House. This is not the bold prediction it sounds like, as the description fits both candidates: incumbent Democratic Senator Birch Bayh and his challenger Republican Mayor of Indianapolis Richard Lugar.

The race has become one of the focal points of American politics. It is attracting attention because it not only involves the top issues of the day, the economy and Watergate, but also three others: busing, abortion, and gun control.

Although considered the favorite, Senator Bayh thinks he will lose votes on these three emotional issues. He favors a law restricting the sale of small firearms (Saturday Night Specials). He is presently playing-up an amendment that will ban cross-district busing. He hopes this action will convince voters he is not as strong an advocate of integration as his opponents make him out to be.

Abortion is the toughest on Mr. Bayh. He backs abortion because he feels it it would be wrong to impose his will upon the public. Bayh would almost certainly permit abortion in case of rape, incest, likely genetic disorder or danger to the mother's life.

Mayor Lugar takes a different stand on all subjects. He wants no more laws placed on firearms. He has never been a backer of busing and backs abortion only when the mother's life is in danger. Although his platform was strengthened by his more conservative stand, he has been seriously crippled by two events: corruption in the police force and the ever present Watergate.

When Nixon resigned he hurt every Republican's chances (except Jerry Ford's) but the damage done goes deep in Lugar's case. During the height of Nixon's popularity, Lugar gained a reputation as being "The President's favorite Mayor," a distinction he would now like people to forget.

Mayor Lugar's campaign was somewhat damaged by a police scandal last spring. The Star ran a series of articles exposing widespread corruption throughout the department. He eventually fired the Chief of Police and several other top officers, but it threw the campaign off stride and appears to be still hurting his chances.

The traditional Republican platform has been to attack Bayh by accusing him of over-spending. Mayor Lugar is following this custom in style. Lugar accuses Bayh of voting to increase federal spending $25 billion more than the rest of the Senate. The attack stands as a good chance of success as inflation continues to spiral.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of the race is the promise of the candidates. Whoever wins could be catapulted into even more prestigious jobs. With success behind them, a Vice-Presidential or Presidential nomination could be awarded to one of them in either the 1976 or '80 elections.

A final piece of irony concerns an image I received from the tone of that letter. The tone reminded me of how a Flat-earther might have reacted to pictures of the earth from the moon.—Bob Morse

To Drew Appleby

I am writing you in regard to your published conclusion that you may be somewhat inadequate as a teacher in psychology. I would like you to consider an alternative. Some people are inherently inadequate as students. If you were to ask me why it sometimes seems that the only prerequisite to college admission is tuition, money in hand—I could only quietly remind you that even at such prestigious institutions as Cambridge and Cal Tech, the light bill must be paid.

Dear Jack,-------(And I don't mean security)

Upon visiting a dear friend in Clare Hall, during visitation and with my escort, I was enjoying the boredom, when the Carbon hit my eye as enlightening reading material. I proceeded to read the articles and was thoroughly entertained.

However, one article that really left me astounded and completely flabbergasted, was the one from the "Shadow". I am not tall enough to think that someone from this institution would be so closed minded as to discredit a literary piece of work.

I think that if people really believed in what they are doing and think that they are doing it right, they would have no qualms to what a media would say about them or their organization.

After all, if it wasn't for the media, we would still have Nixon for president and would not be aequated with the policies of Mr. Ford. Although, I am probably younger than you, I feel that these articles are just a bit more refined then those of the Indy News, or Star. Of course the Carbon doesn't have the tact that they do, but it also doesn't have all that bull shit either.

It's a big world out there, buddy. As soon as you leave the security of this campus and someone tells you that you think, what are you going to do then, write another obnoxious letter to the Attorney General?

If you do not wish to clutter your mind with the Carbon's articles, then we will get the person who has forced the paper into your hand and tear out the tongue that has read this material to you. We don't want any hard feelings.

I Can't Believe It!

Last Sunday morning, the basketball team gave up their precious sleeping time to ride on a 24 mile Bike-A-Thon for the Diabetes Foundation. This was a good cause and I am glad that I went through with it. Besides being fun, each of us made money from pledges to help out those less fortunate, plus we got a free meal out of it. But as the course of the ride went on, we came across some very unreasonable citizens.

Riding along north Westfield Blvd., a young high school kid couldn't wait to get over a hill, so he hit the horn and floored it, just about scaring the little boy in front of him to death. Not to mention myself. Going along 116th St. back in the sticks of Carmel, Ind, a typical farmer redneck couldn't believe his eyes when about 30 cycles blocked his side of the road. So with one quick action he floored it, blow his horn and gave us all a obscene gesture with his middle finger.

Proceeding down Allisonville Road and across Kessler Blvd., we met many more horn blowers. Let me say they weren't warnings, but threats.

Finally the ultimate came as we neared toward the finish. Pulling onto N. College, some of us didn't make it through the intersection before the light turned red. So a friendly Indy cop said, "Get the -- out of the way." That did it. We answered in the expected way. "-- off pig."

The Bike-A-Thon was great, but the public was unreasonable to a good cause.

One more thing. Tuesday night the same basketball team, what a coincidence, had a roller skating party sponsored by the alumni. The proceeds were to go to help the team on its trip to New Orleans in December. Well, the students came through, the team showed up, but where were the alumni? Makes you wonder what happens to us when we graduate from this great American institution.

Yours till we can enjoy life together—The Yellow

To the Marian Community,

As President of Booster Club, I cordially invite all of you to take an active part in this year's Homecoming by participating in all preparations of the Upcoming Festivities as well as attending the events themselves. The Marian College Homecoming is for and by Marian College, not merely Booster Club members. Although we organize the week, we welcome any ideas, help and suggestions. You, the Marian College Community, are the reason for Homecoming. You can make it memorable by your help, enthusiasm and attendance.

Next Wednesday, October 16th, is your first opportunity to take part in Homecoming when voting for homecoming candidates will take place in front of the Marian Auditorium. All students are urged to cast a vote for the two girls of your choice. A final voting to determine the two candidates to represent each class, will be held the following Wednesday, October 23rd. Voting for your Homecoming queen will be held at a later date.

As a final note, many activities are in the planning which revolve around the Mardi Gras theme of this year's Homecoming. Keep your eyes open for times and places. See you there. Sincerely,

Patti Lampkin
Booster Club President

Dear Carbon:

What do you think of when someone says Halloween? Ghosts, witches, pumpkins, and speaking of pumpkins, the Marian Drum Corps has another little project brewing in their cauldrons. A PUMPKIN SALE!!! How Halloweenish can you get? Pumpkins, South Indian Corn and other autumn type decorations can be obtained at the Corps Display on 30th and Cold Springs, starting October 14th, at terrifyingly reasonable prices. All profits go to the Corps trip to the Mardi Gras and to really boggle your mind, there will be a special treat. A cash prize will be given to Clare and Doyle Halls for the most ghostly decorated rooms in the true Halloween spirit.

There will also be pumpkins etc. on display and for sale in the Corps Annex if you want to save the trip. So join in and get into New Orleans. Any questions, contact Rich Moon at Ext. 230 or 340.

To Whom it may Concern:

I do not expect people to change for my sake, for I try not to fabricate molds intended to conform people's attributes and actions so that they might conform to my idea of friendship; likewise, I definitely will not change myself in order to coincide with your childish notions of ideal behavior. Be less critical, accept people for what they are; eventually those people will find more enjoyment in your presence, and maybe you will find more satisfaction and pleasure in the experience of life.

Jones by 12

The Red Joses play the Stoned Rangers Sunday, in what probably will be the best game of the Intramural season. Sunday, the Red Joses put together a big defense to go along with their already impressive offense, and demolished the MFIC, 25-0. The Stoned Rangers smoked the Bootstrappers, 33-7 last Sunday, but the Red Joses look better overall. I'll have to pick the Joses by 12. (Sorry Mel and Chuck)

In other action last week, the NADS handed the Day-Hope a 27-6 set-back, in a real walkaway. The only other game scheduled was between the Harvey-Wallbangers and the Leftovers. It was a close contest that ended 15 to 17, with the Leftovers on the short end— or was it the long end? Well, I know it ended, so that's all that counts.

Security Service

Doyle Hall has volunteered its men to escort any woman during the hours of 7:00 to 11:30 on Sunday through Thursday nights, from anywhere on campus to her destination. This service is offered so that women of Marian don't have to walk alone at night. Any woman may call Doyle Hall desk Ext. 277 and tell the worker where she is and would like to get an escort. The worker at the desk will notify the young gentleman on duty at the time and he will harken to the call. We would like to remind you that safety is in numbers. This service is brought to you by concerned Doyle Hall members. We encourage you to use it. It is to be in effect Wednesday, October 9.

Women's Sports

Three teams remain undefeated as the second week of women's intramural volleyball came to a conclusion, Wednesday night. Tough competitive matches developing into team rivalry, characterized the week's activities.

After a successful beginning season Wazuri faced defeat on Monday by the Pit and Wed. by a team that we hear consists of all freshman! Wazuri looked tough though, and displayed their true championship form in their bout of 15-0 before the frost came back and won the next two games.

Up until Wednesday, the Amazons were undefeated. The Tweed Hearts proved too much for them and scattered their record.

The Fruits Plus-minus Ace Auberry due to injury-bowed out to the Pit. (Speaking of the Pit, they wrapped up two wins this week and are potentials for the play-offs.)

The Fruits seem to have gotten off to a slow start-winning one and losing two. However, their competition has been tough so they have a chance to finish in good standing.

The Bad Habits seem to display their habits only on Wed. with a 2-2 record, all their losses fall on Wed. The question is—who plays Mon. that doesn't play Wed? or better yet, who plays Wed. that doesn't play Mon?

League B seems to have two teams shooting for the top—Whatsitboys who they are? Meanwhile, Cool Ghouls put up quite a fight on Wed. night against Schuck's Garden. However, Schuck's Garden remained cool as the Cool Ghouls got shook and lost after a tire-some three game contest.

The Kids and Shoot the Shit are having a "slow start" that's putting it mildly isn't it Susie? We hear your better Euchre players than Volleyball—so take your pick.

That's it for now. This is Starke, Main and Little Wap staying on base while Main heads for home.
