Student Board Elections

Elections for the 1975-76 Marian College Student Association will take place on Monday, March 24, 1975. However, before there can be elections, there has to be candidates.

Self-Nominations for the following offices will be open on Monday, March 10 and close on Friday, March 21. A box will be provided in the Information Office in which you will place your name and the office you are running for.

Positions Open

President
Vice-President
Secretary
Treasurer
Student Services Rep.
Academic Affairs Committee on Social Planning-Chairman
Day Student Rep.

Each job takes up some time but it's worth your efforts to see things get done which will benefit Marian College now and in the future. Every full and part time student is a member of the MCSA and we know that there are followers and leaders out there. We need those followers to support the leaders and the leaders to guide the followers. It also looks good on a resume when you begin applying for a job.

Some of the following are achievements which the Student Board of the MCSA has played as an essential role in the past three years:

- Students as members on the faculty-college council
- Guest visitation in Doyle and Clare Halls
- Revision of the Code of Students Rights and Responsibilities
- Formulation of Conduct Appeals Board and Judicial Panel

Anyone who runs, must meet the following criteria:

a. They must have a full time status (minimum of 12 hours) at Marian College Student Association.

b. Membership in the MCSA for at least one full year. Freshman excepted.

In good academic (cumulative GPA % of 2.0 or above) and social standing.

We need a few good people. We also need competition. Last year, all but 2 offices were unopposed. Think about it but don't stop there. ACT NOW!!!

Sincerely,

Elections Committee, MCSA'

Dear Marianites,

It appears timely that an individual should offer some feedback to some of the dimensions of Marian College, especially with respect to the administrative and governmental perspectives.

Myself, and the vast majority of my contemporaries, are of the opinion that those who dictate "college policy" are exercising an almost terminal, maternal instinct. I say this as I have been spending the greater part of four years at Marian College, and observing a dropping enrollment that warns me that the institution may, of necessity, close its doors for lack of interest by the population of prospective students.

When a legal adult (a person who is 18 years of age or older and is legally responsible for his/her actions according to the judiciary) chooses the option of attending Marian College, he is immediately informed as to who, what and when he may have in a room that he pays rent for. At the same time, that young adult is attempting to conform to a legal system that he is responsible for, he is again met with the "policies" which are construed at Marian to imply "law".

I sat in on the Faculty Council's Self-Study Commission reports,(73) and I heard what (I feel) amounted to so much a political power struggle between the clerical and lay faculty factions. It seemed the only loser in the struggle would eventually turn out to be the student, who was never considered as a meaningful factor. My reaction to that is to only ask, who is the college for? If it is primarily for administrators and faculty members who apparently need to have some sort of security fulfillment, then why waste the money housing, feeding and educating students who pay for the experiences, goods and services that they consume or achieve.

When the people of Marian College realize what amazing potential lies within this small, pretty place, they can enjoy innumerable advantages over static, run-of-the-mill, midwestern college. Communication avenues are immense, as long as all of us "shoot straight" with each other. We can't grow socially or personally without at least trying to tell the truth everyday. False attempts at prestige will only serve to disenchant future students from attending Marian. These endeavors simply do not work.

Marian can't improve in any aspect until those who run the place can eliminate the navel-gazing on their parts.

Hopefully Submitted-The Man From Grad.

To Whom it May Concern,

Two weeks ago, today, I hung a pair of blue corduroy overalls in the laundry room to dry—never to be seen again. Besides the fact that I do not have clothes to spare, these homemade overalls were a Christmas gift from my mom. After posting signs around the dorm, requesting their return, I have decided to make one last plea. Please return them to the laundry room or hang them over the stairway railing by the sun-deck entrance.

Thanks--Cindy Frey
FROM THE MASSES
To The Marian Community

Can somebody please tell me where I've gone wrong? For years I've been under the notion that I am responsible for my own actions and everyone else is responsible for their's. (You know, "I do my thing, and you do yours, I am not in this world to live up to your expectations, And you are not in this world to live up to mine...." F.S. Perls)

And now I seem to have discovered that this is not true. Some folks out there in Marvin U. consider themselves their brother's (or sister's) keeper.

I for one (and I doubt that I am alone) do not want you for my keeper. I am an adult, legally responsible for my actions. Therefore, I believe I have the right to choose these actions for myself.

I do not claim infallibility, I have been wrong before. But I know that I would not turn you in for any "illegal acts" you commit; it's your problem if there is any problem at all, and I would appreciate the same consideration in return.

The Old Question of Double Standards or Pick two an I'll stab your eyes

Last Friday, I entered the Marian College Cafeteria in the morning in search of a fellow student, about which to discuss a test occurring later in the day. Upon entering the "Caf;" I found that he was not present yet and sat down to wait for him. Not being a resident student this semester, I realized that I was not allowed to eat without paying and, I should add, had no intention of doing either. Suddenly! out of nowhere (which is where his head is at), Dave's voice said, "Klemens, (he knows me a little) what are you doing in here?" to which I replied "Waiting for a friend." To this he replied, "Did you pay to get in?" Of course I said, "No, I'm not eating." (Don't stop now, it gets better!) Dave replied, "Did you pay to get in?" (a little more sternly this time) to which I replied, "This isn't a dance, man." (Smart eh)

Well I was booted out and told that Marian College rules say that I have to pay to get into the door of the cafeteria if I do not possess a meal ticket.

Now I would not have minded had someone turned in a complaint on my being there or had I been attempting to pilfer food from the said premises, but neither was present to warrant such drastic measures. Perhaps it was because Dave's boss was sitting next to him. Anyways that's unimportant. What is important is that I faithfully buy my meals (sometimes more than one a day) from Minnie at the Perc. In no way, had intentions of ripping Dave off for food but what about Dave ripping us off. Some of you might be tired of this gripe but two weeks ago, I saw Dave walk into the Perc and fix himself a nice big (I mean BIG) bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich which had more bacon than any student would see in three weeks.

sandwiches. When asked if he were paying for that sandwich, he replied, "No," and walked away. I had originally intended not to say anything about this but, gee-whiz Dave, why bite the hand that feeds you.

Dear Carbon,

On Monday, March 17, the Psychology Club will present Dr. K. Khemka speaking on "Hypnosis." Dr. Khemka received his Ph.D. in Experimental and Physiological Psychology from the University of Hawaii and is engaged in private practice here in Indianapolis. The program will begin at 8:30 pm in the Library Auditorium. All students, faculty and their guests are cordially invited. Refreshments will be served afterwards. Hope to see you there.

Junior and Seniors,
The time is soon approaching for this year's Junior-Senior prom. Elections for the court members are being held earlier than normal this year, since Spring Break actually breaks in a few weeks before the prom. And this way the girls have plenty of time to find dresses and dates here or wherever (Florida)!! The random elections are being held this Monday March 17, from 9:30 am to 2:30 pm in front of Marian Hall's Auditorium. Since the student teachers won't be able to vote then, there will be another hour from 4:30 to 5:30 in front of the Cafeteria for them to vote. Each class Junior and Senior picks any two girls they would like seeing on the prom court.

The actual election of the three court members of each class will be held, Wednesday, March 19 at the same times and places as Monday's elections.

So Juniors and Seniors come and cast your ballot on Monday and Wednesday. Queen elections will be on a later date.

Juniors and Seniors,

The time has come once again for this year's Junior-Senior Prom. In the past there has been a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed about the elections of the various courts for the annual dances. Apparently very few guys ever vote in these elections, thus leaving it wide-open for the girls to pick whoever they want (that DAMN CLARE HALL BLOCK). Well, we feel this is wrong, and the guys on this campus SHOULD vote in these elections.

Therefore, the Carbon is going to try set a precedent and endorse our own candidate for prom queen. Our candidate is Chuck Taylor. That's right, Chuck Taylor. We feel Chuck is perfect for this year's prom queen; he's likeable and not too bad looking (even with his haircut). He is eminently qualified too, just read his resume, he has an extra hundred copies laying around somewhere.

The random elections for the court will be held Monday March 17 in front of Marian Hall Auditorium. The election of three court members from each class will be held Wednesday, March 19 at the same place. So guys, get out and vote on Monday and Wednesday. Let's all try to make this year's prom an affair to remember.

The Editors.

To those who fail to realize what art really is:

Artwork, no matter what shape or form it takes, is a visual expression of the artist's feelings and opinions. Changing or destroying this artwork in any way is, in reality, forbidding the artist his freedom of speech—-a right guaranteed by the constitution.

Some men and women feel this right has been violated when their snow sculptures were destroyed by ignorant and unappreciative people. Whether or not the subject matter was appealing to them, they should have realized that the artists had their own rights to express what they wanted, how they wanted, where they wanted.

These people should have at least appreciated or taken into account the time and effort put forth to create such artwork.

We feel that several people here need to take a Humanities course immediately so that they can learn to appreciate and respect any opinion put forth in any way regardless of whether or not they agree with those opinions.

The Snow Sculptors
When I assumed the MCSA presidency last year, I experienced intense ambivalent emotions toward my newly acquired leadership position. I was proud of my accomplishment and confident that I could serve the students as well as or better than any of my predecessors, yet I simultaneously experienced both humility for my colleagues and embarrassment for myself; these feelings were elicited by a phenomenon known collectively as student apathy.

This obvious attitude surfaced during the student board elections, for two executive officer nominees ran unopposed. (It may be significant at this point to interject that of those candidates who did run for board offices other than day-student representative, only one was a day student. In addition, all the candidates but one were white.)

I made a meager attempt to resolve the situation by publishing a derogatory letter in the final issue of last year's Carbon. It was aimed directly at those "apathetic" students (the type that sit around, complain, and that's it.) In essence, I equated those students with lethargic leeches, but I now believe that this opinion was somewhat spontaneous and naive on my part, for I too was once a leech. Fortunately, I have seen how getting involved can be rewarding.

Today, my philosophy of individual self-actualization is synonymous with those ideas which I held last year. Most students have solid beliefs which are stagnated or stifled because of either their unwillingness to act upon those beliefs, or maybe just a naivety of the means that they can use to achieve those beliefs. I think that everyone will agree that if you believe in something, be it large or small, the most important contribution that you as a student and a member of the Marian community can make is to take action. For unified knowledge incorporating action is much more valuable than dissipated knowledge without a foundation. The first and perhaps the best place to start such a process is within your student government.

Nominations for Student Board offices have been open for a week, and there have only been four names placed in the ballot box. Is this going to be another year of apathy? Remember, the Student Association is YOUR voice in the Marian community. YOU are responsible for its well-being and YOU provide the power behind this voice; it needs you for its existence.

Nominations will be open for another week. The positions open were listed in last week's Carbon, and may also be found on the main bulletin board in Marian Hall. If you have any questions about any aspect of these positions or the Board itself, feel free to contact me or any other MCSA executive board member (they are listed in the back of your calendar). I encourage you to nominate yourself today.

John Klemen, President
Marian College Student Association

Remember—Volleyball starts Monday from 7:30 to 10:00. Tom Schroth will post the schedule soon. Also, a reminder to get those softball rosters ready. The deadline is coming.

Mellow

Frustrated

Tuesday, after purchasing a new pair of Converse All-Star tennis shoes, some of my FRIENDS asked me if I wanted to play some basketball. Being psyched up about the new shoes, I obliged them. After getting to the I.M. gym, I noticed a game already in progress. Then it struck me only five of the ten players were Marian students. Only half. Then I discovered that two more teams were being picked for the next game. Since I am a student I thought for sure I would be picked by a FRIEND. But, oddly enough, four more outsiders got the bid ahead of me. I sat down frustrated and listened to the outsiders pick up another team. Since I'm not 6'5", I was again overlooked. If I had stayed, I would have sat through four games before being able to play.

May I say I was not the only student who was not picked. I saw three other Marian students sitting, waiting to get their chance to show their stuff. Also may I add that none of the outsiders were black. Many a night I have sat in the I.M. gym and watched blacks being turned away from playing. But what about tonight? Was it because these outsiders were white? Or because these were friends of Marian students? Probably both.

I think it right to say I was angered at what I saw. More so because I am a student here at Marian. I do believe something should be done.

One who pays for the use of the gym,
