Dear Billy,

I read your letter in the Carson several times. I'm sorry if I made you feel bad. I'm also sorry I came across to you that way. You don't know me very well, do you?

True, my grades are good; my parents enjoy them, I care less. I've grown above the high school attitude of knowledge for the sake of grades. I simply want to learn, and my desire for knowledge does not stop in the classroom. I like pastime, I could easily slip into the anonymity of the large university. But here at Marian, I feel constantly scrutinized for my "shortcomings." I won't change my ways until I find a better way. I'm not a brute, but your reasons for wanting me to make love with you are far overshadowed by my romantic, prudish, personal, and superficial view of society, I'm sure this will make me more mature. I'm sure this will make me more mature. I'm sure this will make me more mature.

Billy, I experienced freedom and new, different thoughts before I came here. This place, much of the time, is comparatively backwards in many respects to what I have experienced. If I went to a large university, Billy, it would be a lot simpler to hold to what I believe in. When I got married, I could easily slip into the anonymity of the large university. But here at Marian, I feel constantly scrutinized for my "shortcomings." I won't change my ways until I find a better way. I'm not a brute, but your reasons for wanting me to make love with you are far overshadowed by my reasons for not doing so. I'll admit my reasons are a bit idealistic, but not removed from our realistic worldly society or times. You say that losing my virginity will make me more mature. Billy, you certainly are no good example to prove that. I don't think that an adult person would look at someone so superficially, plus being void of reason, understanding and sensitivity to their ideas and feelings.

Look, Billy, I don't go to parties "fashionably drunk." I don't drink a few in order to be a cocktasse. When I drink, I drink casually. It's relaxing and anyway, I have no heartfelt desire to get drunk in the manner that I have seen you several times.

I thank you for the compliment on how I look. It's true that I know a lot of guys, but I don't turn them on just for kicks, or to build up my ego or whatever you may think. If I didn't socialize with you guys, I suppose I would be labeled as stuck-up, too good for Mariran guys. Billy, it seems the only way I can be acceptable is to go to bed with you. To put it in the open, you don't have the personality I'm interested in, even in a passing relationship.

I'm sure you disagree with a lot of what I have said, Billy, though my feelings are aching to speak, I'm trying to write this so you can understand me.

I don't put down others because of their promiscuity and I don't expect that treatment for my lack of it.

Billy, your major problem is that you have all the answers, it's just that you don't have all the questions.

Jill

I was truly pleased to entertain the possibility of my being mistaken about you, Jill. Your letter and comments are the first time that I have misconceived your motives. One thing I was guilty of was underestimating your level of thought. Your letter gave me the impression that it was written by someone of some intelligence. I could attempt to excuse myself by pointing out that my conclusion came from observing the way you act, but I should have known that you were smarter than that.

Jill, I was heartbroken to read such a personal attack coming from you, especially in your comment about my personality. You have always been more than friendly toward me, and if you didn't like me and you are not the type of "tease" you said you weren't, I just can't understand why you would act that way toward me, that it just doesn't make sense, Jill, can you make it make sense?

I was stunned when I discovered you misperception of my motives for writing the first letter. Of course I was insulted merely by the fact that anyone would think I would have the type of relations in question with you, but even more by being accused of being jealous. Again, I am sorry if I got the wrong idea about you. I am pleased if I was wrong. It wasn't the case that I thought you didn't really believe in anything. But if the thoughts in your letter are really your beliefs, I respect them.

---Billy

Dear Jill,

I have just read your letter; it was good to hear from you. It's just that I was confused by the tone of your letter. Although it was a clever play on your part, Jill, I have always thought it unfair and incorrect to answer a letter (argument) in such a completely different mode as the first was intended. But now I realize you are right, and we should communicate on a more serious level, as your letter has obliged me to do.

CRUEX CORNER
Once again, another exciting week of I. M. football with more of the unexpected, than of the expected.
First on Sunday, The Outlaws forfeited to Bad Company. Outlaws all-star receiver, Bill Platt had this to say about the forfeit, "We really hung one on Saturday night and didn't want to come to the game." Next, the defending champs, Bad Joses battled the I ETA THI to a 6-6 tie. This was definitely one of the best played games all year. The last game of the day saw the PRO-PHYLS upset the NADS, 7-0. Again, this shows how important the point after touchdown can be, although Woody Hayes hasn't had a chance to find out.

On Wednesday, the animals hit the field again. The NADS fell again, this time to the ever-improving I ETA THI team, 6-0. The OUTLAWS once again decided they had better things to do and were a no show to the PRO-PHYLS.
Last Friday, our gallant and poor soccer club took off to do battle with their arch rivals, Butler. In the usual blood and guts game, Marian came out on top, 4-1. The teams leading soccer player, Tom Srooth, added another goal to his tallys, but he had help from the Arabs. Jimmy had a goal and Habib added two for the cause. The win boosted their season record to 3-2.

STANDINGS

A DIVISION       B DIVISION
Bad Joses       2-0-1       Bad Company     2-1
I ETA THI       3-0-1       The NADS        1-3
PRO-PHYLS       2-2         The Outlaws     0-4

WOMEN'S INTRAMURAL VOLLEYBALL

Good day, all you women sports fans.
Due to the Beach Boys appearance at Market Square Arena (which incidently I hear was a fantastic concert) Monday nights intramurals were cancelled. But Wednesday, we were back on the courts, some of us victorious and some of us not. We now have 4 remaining teams that will battle it out to the finish on Monday night.

Wednesday's results were very startling, indeed. The all time favorite Schuck's Garden were wiped out of the tournament by Mixed Bag, in an exciting 3 games duel. Unfortunately, Schuck's only had 4 players and try as they might, they just couldn't come up on top. (I am O.A was the main cause--could it be?)

The Mirchits only 5 players, tamed Wild Women in another 3 game battle. Wild Women outscored Mirchits in the first game but Mirchits came back to claim the next 2 games and the match.

The Klutzes were victorious over R.A.P.I.D. in still another 3 game match. Klutzes slid out in front of R.A.P.I.D. the first game 1-0, but R.A.P.I.D., not willing to give up without a fight, beat Klutzes in the second game, 1-1. Klutzes then put an end to R.A.P.I.D. in the 3rd game with a final score of 1-0.

The B.S. Bombers eliminated Fruits in the only 2 game match all night. Nothing much to say just the expected B.S. Bombers are great!
So far this Monday night, here's how it looks--Klutzes vs Mixed Bag and B.S. Bombers vs Delites, both at 7:00 p.m. Winners of these 2 games will play the championship match at 7:30 p.m. Looks like the Klutzes with only 2 losses will face the favored B.S. Bombers, Who will be the Women's new Volleyball champs? Well, come on down and see for yourself. We'll be looking for you--don't miss it!

---From The Masses---

To a Certain Editor and Advisor:
It has come to the attention of two Senior English and Mass Comm people, that there is something grossly wrong with the editorial policy of the above-mentioned individuals and their newspaper. Therefore, a list of grievances has been compiled:
1. One of these staff members has not received an assignment since raising hell with said editor over a certain article.
2. The policy of running articles to shred after promising otherwise, i.e. giving neutral characters sex, moving paragraphs around, and adding unsolicited paragraphs.
3. Printed the damn thing carelessly.
4. The lack of underlining or otherwise, emphasizing words for the purpose of clarifying meaning.
5. Marvin Mumbles is uninteresting. Drop the mumbles as these make the column hard to read.
6. Insufficient advising.

The above list of grievances is intended merely as constructive criticism and not as a vendetta against the Phoenix. It is our suggestion that these be given due consideration in order to improve the quality of the content and composition of the official college newspaper.

---Disturbed Staffers---

I was thoroughly amazed by the numbers of stories going around about our Saudi Arabian visitors. Never have I known facts to be so blown out of proportion. I didn't realize the number of decadent minds roaming about our campus. I heard tales of rape and attempted murder. Seems to me we have some Bilberry Queen's in our midst.

Well, I have not presented my main point, but merely presented one revealing aspect of our attitude toward these students. It is obvious we do not understand or accept these individuals with ease. I believe there has been little attempt to communicate.

It is natural for us to be suspicious of ways unfamiliar to us, but let us also consider the position these students hold. We are the majority, yet we are all individuals trying to find our place in the Marian Community.

I was thoroughly amazed by the number of stories going around about our Saudi Arabian visitors. Never have I known facts to be so blown out of proportion. I didn’t realize the number of decadent minds roaming about our campus. I heard tales of rape and attempted murder. Seems to me, we have some Eilery Queen’s in our midst.

Well, I have not presented my main point, but merely presented one revealing aspect of our attitude toward these students. It is obvious we do not understand or accept these individuals with ease, I believe there has been little attempt to communicate. It is natural for us to be suspicious of ways unfamiliar to us, but let us also consider the position these students hold. We are the majority, yet we are all individuals trying to find our place in the Marian community.

They have been brought here from a country so totally different from ours, that perhaps our culture meet at the opposite end of the poles. Think how they must feel in their minority, and also their feelings as “individuals”. Is it so difficult to think of them as people because they are dark, and speak a tongue foreign to us?

I do not wish to reprimand behavior in such a critical tone, but merely point out our mistake, and what we have failed to do.

I do not thoroughly blame the students here for the imposing atmosphere about, but also the Saudi Arabian. They are our guests here. We have opened our facilities here to share with us on invitation. It is their choice to come into our country and expose themselves to our culture. They must be able to realize our differences and accept us as we are. We do not expect them to accept our ways and opinions as their way of life, but to respect it, and adjust to the environment.

An example I point out to you, is the difference in the role of women in our society as compared to theirs. They must accept women as their equal here in the U.S., but we do not expect them to take this attitude back to their country. That is their choice. We only expect them to adjust to this system while they are here. If our roles were reversed, and we were in Saudi Arabia, we would be expected to do the same. It is mere courtesy. I don’t know what form of orientation the Saudi Arabian were given before coming here but I certainly do hope the student here at Marian will be a little more understanding and give a helping hand. All of a sudden “Saudi” jokes are popular. What happened to the Poles and Jews?

I extended my thanks to Rick Jacobs for attempting the first move toward a little universal understanding. ————D.H.

EDITORIAL CONTINUED

The Carbon began as a newsheet reporting the Student Board activities to the student body. It still performs this function and has developed several other weekly columns. Each week we try to include an editorial, men’s and women’s sports from The Masses and several others. Perhaps the most important is the column by Rick Jacobs, “The Masses in this publication are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect the policy of Marian College”. It means the people writing to the Carbon are saying what they feel.

One of the creative tools people use to express their feelings is called language. In the case of the Carbon it is the House’s version of the English language. This particular dialect includes words that some people consider profane and therefore should not be used. It’s too late for that now as these words have already become part of the language. People use these words every day, but to close one’s eyes to their existence invites ignorance. Tramps can be heard yelling these words when they’re drunk. Pres’td to can be heard to whisper these words when they’re lying. Whatever their position in life, each time a person utters a four-letter word, it is the expression of an emotion.

The list of creative tools is extensive. If a person looks hard enough, something new can be found in each one. Occasionally, a word or drawing with some people considered normal can be found in the Carbon. They are meant to convey the feelings of the author or artist to the reader. They are primarily students. The Carbon staff attempts to communicate on a level which can be most readily grasped by students. People who write or draw for the Carbon feel that “profanity” is sometimes necessary in order for the correct feelings to be transferred.

To Profane or not to profane is a moral question each person must decide for themselves. If a person chooses not to make use of profanity, they deserve respect for wanting to express themselves while neglecting a vast area of life. However, they cheat themselves out of a large supply of material open to reality. When they go one step further and condemn people who choose to be a little more with their thoughts, a grave sin is committed. It is wrong for one person to impose their own morals and sense of decency upon another. To tell the truth, it stinks of an "I’m holier than thou" complex.
