To all Marian College Students,

Hopefully, you have heard of our nationwide campaign in the cause of temperance. Each year, for the past fourteen years, I have made a tour of the nation, delivering a series of lectures on the evil of drink.

In the past, on these tours, I have been accompanied by a young friend and assistant, Clyde Lindstrom. Clyde was a pathetic case, a young man of a good Boston family and excellent background, but he indulged in demon rum, whiskey, gin, vodka, not to mention beer, acid, marijuana and other hard drugs.

Clyde would appear with me at the lectures and sit on the platform, slobering at the mouth, mumbling foul oath, fidgeting and scratching in the most vulgar manner and staring at the audience with blood shot eyes. I would, on occasion, point to him as an example of what drink and drugs do to the human body.

Last summer Clyde died—his body, reeking of gin, was discovered face down on a drawing room floor of the MERCHANTS LIMITED upon arrival in Boston’s South Station.

The name of your school was given to me by a mutual friend in Indianapolis, and I was wondering if any of you would care to accompany me on this trial this winter and take poor Clyde’s place?

Your sincerely
Reverend Calvert Fitzgerald

Dear Carbon,

I was wondering if anybody out there in Marian land had ever taken the time to ponder on whatever happened to the counter culture? Many a time I’ve longed for the days of revolution. Back in my high school years, we used to protest the war through demonstrations and civil disobedience. We picked up some revolutionary habits such as smoking pot and growing long hair. We thought we were going to change our commercialized system into something beautiful where everything wasn’t for sale or rent.

A few years have gone by. It has been a while since I went to a love in or a demonstration. The only activists left are groups like the SLA. Not too many people are attracted to shootouts with NYPD so it’s obvious the movement is hurting. Remnants of the old revolution still linger through “Mod Squad” can be seen on Channel 4 at 7:00 p.m. Long hair is in fashion and so are faded blue jeans. Either one can be purchased for $7.50. A bag of pot, that strange narcotic which lured so many, can be bought for roughly $25.00. It is both ironic and sad, but the counter culture has been consumed by the commercialism it opposed.

The Bad Joses ended their career the same way they started it, with a bang. For the third straight year, the championship was decided by a single touchdown. And, for the second consecutive year, the Joses were on the winning side. Thus ending an amazing three year record of 23 wins, one loss and one tie compiled by the Bad Joses.

In Sunday’s game, I ETA THI received the kick off, but was unable to go anywhere and were forced to punt. On the Joses first play from scrimmage, a new razzle dazzle play paid off. On a half back option, Steve Barrett optioned
