With the introductory issue of the CARBON out of the way we feel we should let the new students, freshmen and veteran students know what the CARBON will strive for this year. It will be our aim to present to all students news of interest, both sides of a talked-about issue and to present Student Board news in a way that the student can understand and be up to date on all campus activities.

If you have something to gripe about and want to be heard write a letter to the CARBON and after critical analysis of its content it will be printed along with our separate comments, pro or con.

If you have any criticism of the CARBON itself please express yourself in writing, for our memories are poor, and we are not able to remember all the interesting things that you have to tell us.

ATTENTION VIOLATORS

Parking on campus is a privilege, not a right, given by the Administration to the students. However, it has come to our attention that this privilege is being abused.

As stated in the rules, adequate parking for the dorm students is provided behind the dorm in the Sophomore lot, and behind the gym in the Freshmen lot. This does not mean that parking in front of the dorm or the school is permitted. The reason for this is, that on the week-ends especially, a "bottle-neck" is caused when dates are being picked-up and dropped-off in front of the dormitory.

The front of the school is reserved for Faculty parking only.

Contrary to the popular opinion that rules are made to be broken, the reward for breaking this rule will be a $2.00 parking ticket.

CYNIC'S CORNER

People wouldn't worry so much about what others thought of them if they knew how little they were thought about at all.

A WORD OF WARNING

It might be well if the visible manifestations of alcoholic consumption were confined to places other than our campus. At present this seems to be other than commonplace but remember the CARBON, the STUDENT BOARD, and THE DISCIPLINARY BOARD cannot ignore such on campus happenings.

THE CARBON APPLAUDS:

The Sophomore class for the Beanie Bounce.
The Perc management for action wisely taken.
Saint Rock's grade school for production of Donna Tatroe's short story.

THE CARBON HISSES:

People who hiss the CARBON.
Yankee fans.
The overly attentive weekday policeman.

As you may or may not know, the Student Board had a closed meeting last Monday. On Tuesday, our humble campus was swarming with authorities on the pros and cons of the subject matter of this meeting.

Isn't it strange how the news of a closed meeting gets around faster than that for an open one? Have the members of the Student Board violated the very right which they voted for themselves or have Marian students stooped to listening outside of closed doors? Whatever be the case either would be a sad commentary on the student body.

News has been flying rapidly this week and two incidents attest to the accuracy of the above statements. First, several student board members have been reproached publically for Monday's meeting and the particular action they took. These reproachers were not members of the Student Board but seemed to be in possession of a few facts which they didn't mind making quite public. Secondly, the CARBON received an editorial from a non-board member who wished to have his views on the closed meeting made public.

Where did these people get their information? Did they receive enough information to be so heavily opinionated or did they receive opinions?

Marian College is small but its students don't have to be. D.T.

IS THIS RIGHT?

In the midst of the controversy over Mondays closed Student Board meeting it seems necessary to reduce the situation to its least common denominator. Should the Student Board close its meetings to the student body?

The fact that a closed meeting may promote a more candid opinion seems to be irrelevant. The fact remains that the students should have the right to attend all sessions of their Student Association. A special meeting, in closed session, removes the watchful eye of student opinion from Board decisions. It could in effect, at some future date, provide a means for an influential individual furthering his personal ideas uncensored by the majority of students. No Board member with the student welfare in mind should call or submit to a closed session.
