STIMULATION?? Can you spot it?

The second step in the Indiana Research Study which Marian College is working on this semester is ready for your cooperation. This time the committee would like to test your powers of observation a little more.

Very frequently we all make judgments about people. We see one person and decide very quickly that he is a "live wire" that he is intellectually alert, that he is a stimulating person. Or we meet another individual and decide equally quickly that he is dull, lacking in intellectual sparkle and not much influenced by the flow of ideas. Such judgments rest, although frequently we don't realize it, on something that the person did. This behavior cues us to think of him in some more general terms.

We would like to find out what some human actions are which lead us to make these judgments. Will you therefore respond to the two questions furnished you. You can get your copy of the questionnaire in the information room until Thursday noon. It must be returned by April 15 at 4:00 p.m. All Marianites are invited to participate, thus helping the committee to make a valid study and reach some workable conclusions.

And the rains came . . . . . . .

Due to the overwhelming amount of precipitation that descended in our locale during the last week the first two games (of which there are only nine!) of the baseball season have been postponed. We hope to play Franklin there on Thursday April 25. The Rose Poly game has also been washed out and there will be a double-header here on May 8. This Saturday we open our season against Huntington (barring any floods of course) on the Park School diamond. Let's back the team. Admission is reasonable. (Free)

SECRETS!! And why? PROM!!!

The Juniors are plenty busy these days getting ready for the annual prom on May 10. Traditionally the theme and the name of the queen are kept secret until the big night. Traditionally, only seniors and juniors are eligible to attend (of course their dates can come too!) But juniors are reminded that class dues must be paid before they can attend.
