

Marian College: alive and doing well

by Ellen Dugan

In his state of the college speech, Thursday, September 14, in Marian Hall auditorium, Dr. Louis C. Gatto, president of Marian College, reiterated that Marian "is alive and well and living at 3200 Cold Spring Road and will continue to do so for many years to come." Before a handful of students and a number of faculty members, Dr. Gatto held what he called a "Rumor Dispelling Convocation." Dealing with the current problems in higher education: namely, declining enrollments and mounting financial burdens, Dr. Gatto pointed out that Marian College, despite the difficulties of the small, private institution in the midst of the crisis of higher education, emerges as a sound institution ready to face many years of operation.

Dr. Gatto surveyed the overall problems assailing higher education and possible solutions on a national, state, and local level.

Nationally, the president pointed to the Higher Education Amendment of 1972 passed by Congress but not funded at this time. The governmental action comes as a result of the Association of American Colleges' estimation that unless action was taken, 210 colleges will have been closed at the end of the 1972 academic year and at the end of ten years 50% of all colleges will be on the verge of distinction. Dr. Gatto emphasized that the double pinch of rising costs and declining enrollment has affected all colleges, even those prestigious universities both public and private such as NYU, Fordham, Cornell, and Columbia. While the basis of financial aid is there as a result of Congressional action, Dr. Gatto feels the effects would be short-range. "The problems of the colleges and universities must be solved on the individual campuses not in Washington, D.C.," he maintained. On the state level, Dr. Gatto explained the function of the Governor's Commission for Higher Education. A committee of the 31 private colleges and universities in Indiana is preparing a Tuition Equalization Proposal for the Commission and eventually for the Indiana legislature that will give a student attending a private institution in the state more aid.

Local situation

In reference to the local situation Dr. Gatto affirmed "Marian College has, I believe, a position of strength not commonly shared by many colleges today." He substantiated this statement with the fact that Marian was unanimously admitted as a member of the Associated Colleges of Indiana, an association of private colleges in Indiana which attracts funds from contributing individuals and businesses. The admittance of Marian College as the eighteenth member of ACI completes the goals of 1968 that were set down by Marian. These goals were:

1. a sharing in the annual giving program of the Lilly Endowment
2. a successful annual alumni drive that saw 39% of those who are alumni and those who have attended Marian contribute to the drive
3. membership in ACI.

"From the goals of 1968 we must proceed to the goals of the '70's" said Dr. Gatto. He enumerated encouraging signs for Marian College in the coming years as:

1. Marian's revision of the general education requirements in philosophy and theology
2. the addition of two alumni trustees to the Board of Trustees of the college
3. last year's establishment of the Student Service Committee
4. limited guest policy in the dormitories as a sign that the college is amenable to change and contingent upon the students' claim of responsibility,
5. the quality of the faculty, 36% have Ph.D.'s; 40% will obtain theirs at the end of the year.

In turning to student concern regarding declining enrollment, Dr. Gatto called attention to this problem as it affects all higher education at this time. "According to a recent article in U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT there will be 300,000 college vacancies this year," he said. Dr. Gatto also pointed out that enrollment fluctuation is not new in higher education, indicating that wars and depressions affect student populations.

The present decline in student population is influenced by a declining birth rate, the rising costs, a questioning of the value of a traditional college education versus a vocational one, and the stopping out of upperclassmen. Catholic colleges have been affected because of the identity crisis following Vatican II.

In talking of Marian's recent but small decline in enrollment Dr. Gatto indicated three factors:

1. the local program of IUPUI
2. the decline of enrollment at Oldenburg

Miss Karen Marsh joins the Marian staff as R.D.

Many new faces have inhabited the Marian campus for the past two weeks in the form of students, faculty and administrative members.

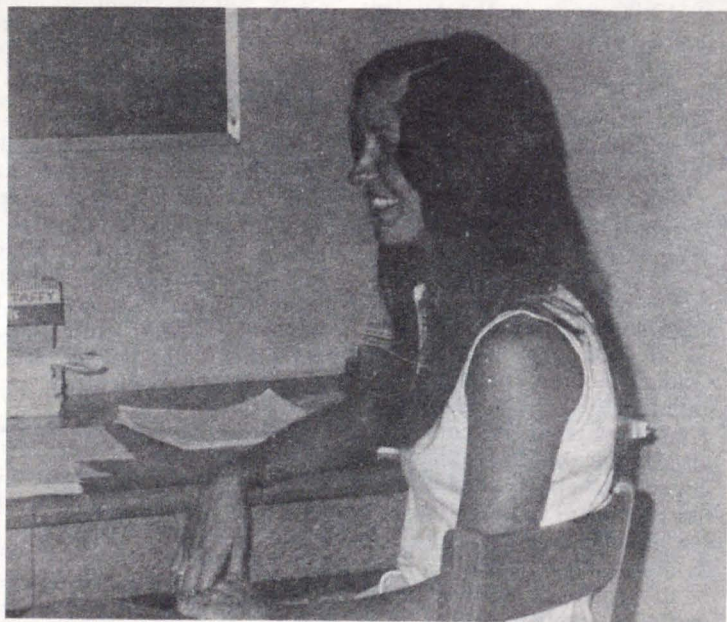

Miss Karen Marsh, the newest member of our community, arrived Wednesday, September 13 to take over her duties as Clare Hall's Residence Director.

Karen comes from Indianapolis, Indiana where she graduated from Southport High School. She then went on to further her education at Indiana University and obtained a B.A. in Psychology in May, 1972.

She is one of three children including a twin brother, a medical student who hopes to specialize in neurosurgery and a younger sister who is pursuing her career as a housewife.

From visiting the campus several times, Karen stated she is impressed with both the campus itself and the people. She likes the fact that people are so friendly and have been saying "Hi" to her even though they haven't the faintest idea who she is. "Quite a change from the I.U. campus", she said.

An avid sports lover, Karen is partial to swimming and tennis and spent the summers during her college years as a lifeguard here in the city. She has a vast collection of Mark Spitz articles and pictures. The intramural sports program at Marian interests her a great deal.

Keeping people wondering about her identity, Karen Marsh is ready to take on her responsibilities as a residence director.

Karen also has a vast interest in the artistic side of life as she paints, draws and sculpts in her spare time. All kinds of music appeal to her and she enjoys reading psychology books.

In the future, Karen would like to obtain her master's degree in guidance and counseling and pursue her career on the college level. She feels counseling in general and vocational counseling are important because as Karen stated, "Most college students are not aware of what they want to do when they graduate and if they can be made aware of more information and opportunities available to them, and this is the job of a counselor, then they may be able to figure out where they are going."

Karen feels that "the role of a residence director is to be a counselor and a friend. I don't feel as if I should have to check up on anyone."

Enrollment remains stable

Although many universities and colleges around the country have announced that student enrollment has dropped anywhere from five to thirty per cent, the Marian College population has remained relatively stable. At the present time the college has approximately eight hundred students, with the freshman class contributing two hundred and twenty three.

According to Gary Yohler, director of admissions, reasons for the decline in college enrollments are varied. He feels that due to financial strain, military service requirements, and the availability of good technical training, many prospective college students are steering away from the commitment to a four year program. Most importantly, he feels that "Young people are just not interested in working hard for four years to get a degree, when the possibility of finding a job in their chosen field is so small."

Although the outlook for gaining a greater percentage of students is against very depressing odds, the admissions office is already starting a campaign to interest new students.

The Admissions Office is planning to repeat some of their more successful campaigns to gain students this year. Mr. Yohler revealed that students, administrators, and faculty members will again be visiting Indiana high schools. Also one visit to the eastern part of the United States is planned.

Along with the already successful programs, several new ideas are going to be utilized. As an experiment last year, any well-written letter received by the office of admissions from a prospective student was answered personally. Of the fifty students that were answered personally, thirty five applied. This program is going to become a regular occurrence this year.

Mr. Yohler is also trying to solicit more alumni help in gaining new students. The MAGNET, the Marian alumni magazine, is going to be used to advertise ways that the alumni can help refer students to Marian.

Testing procedures will be a key factor in interesting students. SAT scores will be scanned very carefully and high school students with high scores are going to be contacted personally by a representative of the admissions office.

Since Marian is a center for the CLEP test, many students will be interested in Marian since good grades on this test can exempt them from at least ten hours of classroom study.

Mr. Yohler is very optimistic about his plans for the coming year: "We're in great shape for next fall."

Editorial

Indifference: a logical result of individualization?

Observers of the atmosphere Marian projects have often commented on its being "personal" and "friendly". And that's why we are here.

In the day of computers, microfilms and social security numbers, some people, more than others, find the need for self-identity important. And that's why we are here.

The size of the college and its faculty: student ratio does not provide for students who want to fade in with the wall. The students themselves fulfill each other's needs of being recognized individually by the mere gesture of saying "Hi!" to each other. This person to person basis does bring out personality differences more clearly but it is in knowing one another as a unique person that we can fully realize what we are. In letting others be themselves, we go beyond self-realization and into self-growth.

But there are hazards to all this self-searching. Sometimes we get too involved with ourselves to respond to the needs of the community and in doing so, end up in the same kind of stereotype that we are trying to get away from. The organizers of college activities recognize the need for the individual to relate to others and tries to provide for this in the best ways they know how. There are other motives to having dances and coffeehouses besides making money. (Although there is no possible way money can be made from admission rates). At its best, all these social activities can only hope to achieve fellowship between students and fulfill the desire for self-expression.

Too many events have failed from the lack of concern of the very people who fight for individuality. It is up to us to make sure that we are not accused of hiding ourselves behind the curtain of self-awareness so that we can close our eyes to the rest of the world.

Marian provides its students with endless opportunities to develop themselves while helping others directly or indirectly in its clubs and volunteer programs. It is in our making use of these opportunities that we can truly realize our purpose for being here.

The real in us is silent; the acquired is talkative.

A reader's opinion

What's going on here? by Bob Morse

A ping-pong competition was held, and the best player was not the victor. He had not been properly informed of the time for his semi-final match, so some "higher up" decided that he had forfeited. In short, he did not win, although in practice he had won handily over the two who won the honors.

If you suspect this incident is just one more example of the incompetence exhibited at the Olympics, you are absolutely wrong. It took place in America last year at Marian College to be exact.

The forfeiture was no accident. The two players, and their buddy "Commissioner Litmer" knew they could not beat Felix Wong fairly, so they had to resort to other means.

I used to kick myself in regard to this injustice. I felt I should have run up during the awards ceremony at Christmas, grabbed the trophies from Santa, and deposited them deep in the waters of Lake Marian, perhaps giving the ducks something to quack about in the process.

NO MORE. I realize now what once escaped me. The two men who won the trophies deserved them. They tried harder. Felix was merely the best player. These victors used their American ingenuity.

That is my point. The ping-pong tournament is a small example of what is really wrong in America today. The ideals of human dignity, excellence, and fair play are all right only if they pay off. The American ideal has changed. If you are born here you can grow up to win a ping-pong tournament or to become a U.S. Senator if you have the audacity, the pull, and the willingness to prostitute your ideal objectives.

What were the objectives in the tournament? Well, Felix wanted to win the championship of Doyle Hall. Those who "beat" him wanted to win a trophy. Somewhere along the line, one of the two seems to have been misguided. Somewhere along the line, baseball became just another big business. Somewhere along the line, truth and justice became excellent campaign slogans. Finally, somewhere along that same line, paperwork became more important than a person's word and dignity.

The last "somewhere" scares me. Since the ping-pong "winners" have their trophies, and news of their "victory" appeared in the PHOENIX perhaps by this reinforcement, they really believe they did win! Perhaps there are college graduates who think they are such because they have a diploma. Perhaps there are teachers who think they are simply because they have a license. The same can be true in many walks of life.

Some day, in the not too distant future, I must sit down at my desk and write something. It will all be lies. I will write a composition which might be called, "What Strict Conduct Probation Meant to Me." I will not venture too far from the "How I Spent My Summer Vacation" syndrome. It will be a step by step explanation of how I saw the light. It will say that good clean living has changed my misguided ways. This "trophy" of my rehabilitation will be handed into the Office of Student Services. If I don't, the mark stays on my record for good.

I am not sorry for anything because I did nothing wrong. I am essentially not a changed person. Yet, if I write it, it will be the record of that writing that will stand as the truth.

Maybe I should have written on a lighter subject, like a rubber crutch in a windstorm. Oh well, think I'll go write that composition.

Psych department welcomes Sr. Olga and Dr. Appleby

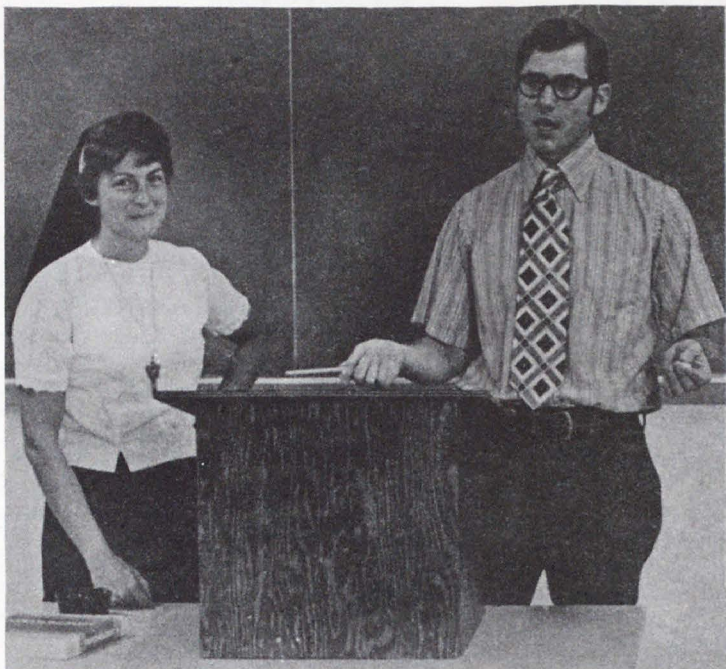

Two faculty members, who find themselves a part of the Marian College community for the first time, are pleasantly surprised at the genuine friendliness they have found here.

Sister Olga Wittekind is a "first" to the psychology department-she is the first and only nun to serve the psychology department. Sister is also the only clinical psychologist on the staff. Currently, Sr. Olga is working on her Ph.D. in clinical psychology. She has completed her studies at the Saint Louis University and now needs only to complete her dissertation to earn her doctorate degree. When her degree is completed she will be the first MC graduate in psychology to gain a Ph.D.

Sister Olga's studies at St. Louis University included a one-year internship where she gained practical experience in marriage counseling and mental therapy. Sister also spent one year in special education.

But Sister Olga has not been a psychologist all the years of her career. Sister Olga taught in elementary schools for eight years.

When asked about her first impression of Marian, Sister said, "I've met so many interested students who really take their work seriously-they are academically geared to get an education. Students here seem to use their talents to explore, through discussions and real thinking processes."

Because of Sr. Olga's experience and studies as a clinical psychologist, she will be working with the counseling department as part of their staff.

A second new member of the psychology department, Dr. Drew Appleby, hails from Iowa.

He earned his BA at Simpson College in Indianola, Iowa. At Iowa State University, Dr. Appleby earned his master's and doctorate's degrees in experimental psychology. "I've been a doctor one month," exclaimed Dr. Appleby.

Dr. Appleby was born in England where his father was working in the American Embassy. However, only six months were spent in that country.

At the age of 26, Dr. Appleby remembers years of studies mixed with "summers as a common laborer."

Dr. Appleby finds the change from Iowa State to Marian College most agreeable. "At Iowa State, the students see themselves only as numbers. They don't take advantage of the teachers as individuals-there is real value in learning outside the classroom. Marian students, aware of their own individuality have stimulated me to work in a one-to-one relationship."

Dr. Appleby will be teaching Developmental Psychology. In conjunction with Sr. Olga, he will be teaching General Psychology and a Readings in Psychology course.

Doyle presents "Wild Bunch"

"The Wild Bunch," a Warner Bros. release which will be shown on Friday, Sept. 22, at 8:00, is a story of outlaws in the cruel terrain of the West. It takes place in 1913 when the world was about to plunge into war and Mexico, where much of the action takes place, was being strangled in a bloody counter-revolution.

William Holden, Ernest Borgnine, Robert Ryan, Edmond O'Brien and Warren Oates star in this explosive adventure drama about the last of the legendary lawless breed who lived to kill and killed to live.

Pike Bishop (William Holden) and his gang are outlaws of a sort whose exploits 10 or 15 years before might have been considered heroic.

"The Priest's Wife," originally planned for Sept. 22 showing, cannot be shown until sometime in October.

Frolic planned for Sat.

The second annual Fall Frolic, sponsored by Clare Hall, will be held Saturday, September 23, on the baseball field next to Lake Marian.

All girls are encouraged to participate in the activities planned for the day starting with the softball games at one o'clock. The freshmen will compete against the sophomores while the juniors will challenge the seniors' skill. The winners of these two games, of five innings each, will vie for the championship. Even those girls who don't play are urged to come down and cheer their classmates on to victory! A tug of war is also scheduled. For those who are less sports-minded, a scavenger hunt has also been scheduled. Prizes will be awarded to the winners in all the events.

A bonfire and hootenanny, the highlight of the day, are being planned for eight o'clock in the evening. Open to the whole school, everyone is invited to share cider and donuts with friends around the fire.

Voters register now

There are many new voters this election year, new in that many will be voting this year for the first time and would not yet be of voting age had the law not been revised. Most of us here at Marian fall into this category. Because we do, and because many states, including Indiana, require students to vote where their parents live. All potential voters should make sure that they are registered in their home precinct and should take the necessary steps to obtain an absentee ballot if they do not wish to make a trip home just to vote.

The procedure to follow, if you are an Indiana resident, is to write to your home county seat, and ask for an absentee ballot.

This application should be completed and returned to your Election Board. Your absentee ballot will arrive sometime after October 30.

Residents of other states should check with their local election boards for the proper procedure for them to follow.

3. after having graduated the largest senior class in Marian's history last year, this year's senior class is the smallest to present.

Meeting the problem

"How can we react to these problems?" queried Dr. Gatto. "We must accept and adjust to the pattern. We at Marian College are in an excellent position to do just that," he went on. He do just that," he went on. He added that Marian is one of nine colleges and universities in the U.S. participating in Operation Bootstrap. In connection with Fort Benjamin Harrison, military personnel will attend Marian to complete their degrees. Currently 20 men participate in this program with numbers to increase in the next year. Additionally the president pointed out that Marian is a pioneer by allowing new students credits in general education requirements by successful completion of the CLEP tests. "Currently Marian is exploring the possibility of awarding Associate Degrees. We are not passively accepting the decline as inevitable," he said, "The decline is bottoming-out. Marian College is stable.

We did not go into our endowment as a result of a small deficit of $54,000 last year. We are a competitive college. We will remain so."

Art museum volunteer program benefits students

The Indianapolis Museum of Art will, for the third year, coordinate its student volunteer program with Marian's office of Student Services.

Mrs. Pat Lowe, Coordinator of Special Services at the museum, will be speaking in the library auditorium on Thursday, September 21 at 4:00 p.m. on all the advantages of being in the program.

Student volunteers are entitled to a 20% discount on items in the Museum shop, craft shop, and rental gallery, as well as invitations to receptions, opening art shows, museum parties, films, and lectures. Volunteers will perform such tasks as curator assistants, receptionists, hosts tour guides, etc. while putting in only 2-3 hours per week.

Take GRE now

Educational Testing Service announced that undergraduates and others preparing to go to graduate school may take the Graduate Record Examinations on any of six different test dates during the current academic year.

The first testing date for the GRE is October 28, 1972. Students planning to register for the October test date are advised that applications received by ETS after October 3 will incur a $3.50 late registration fee. After October 10, there is no guarantee that applications for the October test date can be processed.

The Graduate Record Examinations include an Aptitude Test of general scholastic ability and Advanced Tests measuring achievement in 19 major fields of study. Full details and registration forms for the GRE are contained in the 1972-73 GRE Information Bulletin. See the Registrar for more details.

SS offers study skills workshop

Starting this week, the office of Student Services will be conducting a reading and study skills workshop for students who are interested and feel the need for such a program.

The workshop, scheduled to last for approximately ten weeks, will consist of meetings held twice a week. Anyone interested in attending the sessions should complete a form obtainable from Student Services and return it by Friday, September 22.

The program is based on the controlled reading process which is geared towards rapid reading with accuracy and thoroughness. Not to be confused with speed reading, controlled reading is done with the aid of a projector which presents material in a special way. Regular and systematic training will eventually bring about better comprehension with faster reading.

Intramural football teams previewed

PIGSKIN PREVIEW

It's that time of year again. The time of year when Marian's favorite intramural sport gets underway. Yes, sports fans, intramural football is here again. And we're glad it is.

Now here is a rundown of what to expect in the upcoming intramural season. The teams are in no special order.

THE GODS OF HELLFIRE

We thought we finally got rid of them after last year, but once again the ever-present Gods of Hellfire have returned to wreak havoc on opposing teams.

Led by the returning quarterback-end combination of Bill Doherty and Jim Herbe, the Gods are a threat to score from anywhere on the field. Add to this combo the speedy Fornuto brothers and you have the makings of one potent offense.

MOTHER TRUCKERS

To put it mildly, the Truckers look like they may be in for a long season. The Joe Stockram-

Steve Bickley team may be able to dent the scoring column, but a leaky defense looks like it will doom them to the cellar bowl.

Louie Gomez and George "Animal" Ambro are solid vets, but there are too many spots to fill for them to move up to championship calibre.

THE ELDERS

The only all-freshman team to enter the intramural picture this year, the Elders may have the potential to spring several upsets.

We'll not make any predictions on this young squad because of our unfamiliarity with their personnel, but several names to remember are Paul Liebel, Lynn Shumaker, and Joe Putz. We wish them luck and hope they don't get hurt too bad.

THE NEW INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL TEAM

The only drawback of this talent-laden team is its inability to take the games seriously.

Rick "Rifle" Martin is the quarterback who throws to talented receivers Fran Ketter and Joe Kuznitz. Jerry Kretchman and Tom Cebulko will try to hold down the line and if they do the I.M.F.T. could surprise.

HOBBIT'S HEROES

Ever since Dennis "Mad Stork" Kline was awarded a coveted intramural franchise, he has been wheeling and dealing to beef up his club to championship status.

He may have failed miserably. Featuring such over the hill stars as Mark Mauer and Dan Ryan, the Heroes only hope is in younger players like rookie Steve Whitsett.

THE LONE RANGERS

VICE LORDS

Last year's surprise champs, the Lords climb to the top featured aggressive team play and a total unselfishness that molded them into number one.

New quarterback Pat Zapp is the key figure in this year's chase and a large load rests on his shoulders. Center John Purcell and backs Paul Gerth, Coyt Walters, and Moose Morse are all terrific blockers that know what it takes to win.

BIRD MEN

The Bird Men may wish they had flown the coop this year as it looks as if it could be a long season. But this squad has several stars which could lift them right into contention.

Mike Wilcox has the size and strength to be one of the league's top lineman. And his strong kicking leg has booted many kickoffs in to the end zone.

THE LONE RANGERS

The Lone Rangers, a combination of last year's Wild Bunch and IMFT, will once again be trying to catch the fleeting championship.

Kenny Tyrrell, famous for his perennial second place finishes, will pit one of his slowest teams ever in conquest of the elusive crown. Rabbit Roy Bufington, Dale Hemmelgarn and Steve "Hemmaroid" Hammerle, all league for three straight years, provide a formidable rush. Chris Everett, Vince Ryan, and Jerry Whalen will contain the opponents pass receiving.

Good luck to all teams and let's hope nobody gets hurt.

They're off and running

The Cross Country team will trot off to a flying start Thursday the 21st of September when they meet Rose Hulman here. Dan Puckett, the wing-footed Junior, will hold the captain's position on the team. Puckett has a positive outlook for this year's team commenting that "Coach Reynolds has taken considerable interest in the team, and all the guys have enthusiastic attitudes and are hoping for a run-away season."

Tom McIlwee, a veteran on the team followed in Dan's footsteps in saying, "We have worked especially hard on our weaknesses and hope to have a great season."

The other members of the team include Dean Morgan, Senior; Dave Martini, Junior; Randy Porter and John Hostetter, both Freshmen. With all the potential these striders have, Marian can look forward to more than just a ordinary season.

The schedule is a vigorous one, including competition with some of the school's greatest sports rivals in the area. Marian wishes its Cross Country team the best of luck in '72.
