EDITORIAL....

1 ANDERSON - 80 - MARIAN - 62

Having seen the ball game last night, I have arrived at several conclusions. First of all, concerning the game. Two factors were prominent in causing our defeat. 1) Anderson's height put us in a "rebounding defensive hole". It would be asking a little too much to have our boys stop the opposition's height once they get under the basket. Naturally, the tall boys had the advantage on the rebounding. 2) Too many mistakes. Basically we are a good ball team. I could tell this. But, first game jitters or whatever made us look quite bad at times..... We were obviously the classier of the two teams. We were beaten ~~not~~ by a better team, but by a team that played better yesterday...

CECILIAN MUSICALE

The NCMEA and the Marian College Music Department will present its Caecilian Musicale this coming Sunday, November 23, at 8:15 P.M. in the auditorium. The program is planned in commemoration of the centenary of the birth of Puccini, famous opera composer. Excerpts from Puccini's La Boheme and Madame Butterfly will be featured.

Piano solos and duets, vocal and instrumental selections, folk dancing, and a semi-classical ballet are included in the highlights. The Love and Death scene from Madame Butterfly will be dramatized by Marguerite Branaday and Robert Kistner.

All students are invited and a special incentive can be found because nowhere else can you get so much entertainment without an admission charge.

WE WISH IT WERE POSSIBLE FOR THE
STUDENT BOARD TO APPROPRIATE ENOUGH
MONEY FOR SOME SCHOOL SPIRIT!

SENIORS:

I apologize. It was a good dance without Junior assistance. bm
