Stokely named Show House

"Our hosting the Show House will be a real shot in the arm for Marian College, easily the biggest community awareness project in the ten years since I've been here," commented Alan Lisle, director of public relations.

St. Margaret's Hospital Guild chose the Wheeler/Stokely Mansion as its 1990 Show House. An estimated 25,000 people will be on campus between April 28 and May 13. Lisle mentioned that for some of these people, it will be the first time they have been to Marian.

Lisle commends the maintenance staff who have been putting in extra effort to work on the mansion. They have been doing "hidden work", like repairing wooden floors and painting the exterior of the mansion and cottage.

He also sympathizes with the music department for their sacrifice in moving to Alverna temporarily.

"Hawkeye", the Wheeler/Stokely Mansion, has an interesting history. It was completed in 1913 for automotive industrialist and sports promoter, Frank L. Wheeler. Wheeler owned the Wheeler-Schebler Carburetor Company and the Langsenkamp-Wheeler Brass Works. He was also a partner in the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Architect William Price of Philadelphia was engaged to design a "...home that was luxurious without being ostentatious." With those instructions in mind, Price developed an impressive plan for an estate that included a large Mediterranean-style villa, a 320-foot colonnade that led to a heated 7-car garage, a four-story water tower, a man-made lake complete with island and a Venetian gondola, a gazebo, a Japanese teahouse, two small homes for gardeners and servants, an orchard, and other landscaping elements that contributed to a very elegant setting.

Of these features, the water tower (which contained an office, apartment, and hand-

MC Jamboree announced at MCSA meeting

At the March 6 MCSA meeting, Tina Kunkler, Social Planner, announced that Little Brother/ Little Sister Weekend will be April 6-8. Activities are in the planning stages, but will include games, movies, and the knightly music awards. Anyone wishing to help should contact Kunkler at ext. 677.

The Academic Affairs Committee Representative, George Spaeth, reported that a mild learning disability minor and a reading minor have been added to the education department.

Booster Club President, Mikki Poynter announced that "Field Day" has been given a name change to the "M. C. Jamboree." The revised event will be the host of competitions between various campus groups, a cook out, and a dance. Any club or individual interested in sponsoring an activity should contact Poynter at ext. 145.

The Tim Kuehr, junior class representative, reported that the Spring Formal will be held on March 24 at the Hilton on the Circle. The Hush will perform. Pictures will be taken at 7:00 p.m., dinner begins at 8:00 p.m. and dancing is from 9:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.

The board finalized election procedures, particularly the candidates forum. They allotted $100 to be used to supply pizza and drinks for the event.

Jim Meer, treasurer, reported cash on hand as $17,059.06. The MCSA general fund contains $1140.93.

ball court), the garages, one servant's house, and the man-made lake no longer remain.

The mansion is built of buff-colored brick with a green Spanish tile roof. Both the exterior and the interior are accented by the use of Mercer tile from the Moravian Pottery and Tile Works of Henry Chapman Mercer in Doylestown, PA. The home has 8 bedrooms, 9 fireplaces, 2 living rooms, solid oak and walnut woodwork, leaded glass windows, wide staircases, herringbone parquet floors, and beautifully tiled bathrooms.

Following the 1921 suicide of Frank Wheeler and the death of his wife, Estelle, in 1924, the property was sold in 1927 by Douglas, their son.

The new owner, G. Monty Williams, was chief financial officer of the Marmon Motor Company of Indianapolis. He lived at "Hawkeye" until 1934, and during those years he made several significant changes to the grounds, including filling in the man-made lake and building a large swimming pool.

In 1937 the estate was sold to William B. Stokely, Jr. of the Stokely-Van Camp Company. The Stokelys lived on the property until 1963, when the estate was sold to Marian College.

The Wheeler/Stokely mansion is now on the National Register of Historic Places and represents a valuable asset to the college. It is unique for its architectural merit and for the history it represents.

The philanthropic group that is refurbishing the mansion also has a rich history. St. Margaret's Hospital Guild was organized in 1907 by a few young women wishing to aid the nearly 50-year-old City Hospital (now the Wishard Memorial Hospital).

That dream is still being carried out by 70 energetic women who raise monies for the benefit of Wishard Memorial Hospital through the Decorator's Show House. This most successful fund raising project was started in 1961 and has raised over $3 million dollars for the tax supported hospital. Profits from the Decorator's Show House have been used to fulfill a number of Hospital dreams.

The proceeds from this year's effort will be dedicated to the creation of the obstetrics and gynecology high risk/prenatal testing area to help lower the high infant mortality rate. Over $100,000 has been earmarked toward this guild project.

Over 70 rooms and areas of Stokely mansion, the swimming pool, the cottage, and the grounds will be decorated. Advance sale tickets can be purchased in the College Relations Office until April 13 for $7.00. At the door tickets will be $10.00.

The Carbon, a source of news and information as well as an open forum for the Marian College Campus community, is not an official publication of Marian College and does not necessarily reflect the views of the college administration, faculty, or editors. Readers are invited to submit timely and relevant letters of opinion to the editors. Such letters should not exceed 150 words and must include the author's name and phone number. For verification purposes the letter must also be dated and signed. Telephone numbers will not be published, nor will anonymous letters be published. Letters may be edited for clarity and brevity. Editors have authority to reject any letter they feel to be potentially libelous, obscene, inflammatory, or in poor taste. Ordinarily such letters should aim to address issues, clarify events, promote understanding, or clearly identify what is going on in an event, issue, or scene. No guest editorials will be accepted unless explicitly solicited by the editors. Unsolicited pieces will be treated as letters to the editors. Letters to the editors must be turned in to the Carbon's mailbox in the faculty mail room by 12:00 noon, Friday, the week before they are to run.

Any campus club or organization sponsoring an event can advertise in the Carbon at no charge by submitting a 4"x5" ad to the Carbon in the Carbon mailbox in the faculty mailroom one week before the ad is to run. If typesetting is required, the ad must be submitted two weeks in advance, and a fee will be charged. The Carbon will run the ad for the two weeks preceding the announced event.

Events or informational notes can be submitted for the Knightly notes by campus organizations or persons. The text must be 50 words or less. The deadline for Notes is Fridays at 12:00 noon in the Carbon mailbox. The editors reserve the right to edit all advertisements and notes submitted.

Senior profile

by Susan Schuppan

"I'm glad I had the chance to get to know Diane through the last four years of school and I know she has the personality, patience, and talent to be a great teacher," praises friend Jenny Wessler.

If senior Diane Raver could go back to the beginning of her college career, she would try to meet more people within Marian.

This elementary education major is currently doing her student teaching in an Immaculate Heart fourth grade classroom. For the next six weeks, however, she will be teaching a first grade class at Garden City elementary.

An Immaculate Conception Academy graduate, Raver is the oldest of seven children. Her sister, Elaine, is a junior at Marian. One sister and two brothers attend high school, one sister attends junior high, and her youngest sister is in third grade.

The parents of this big family have been Raver's primary support.

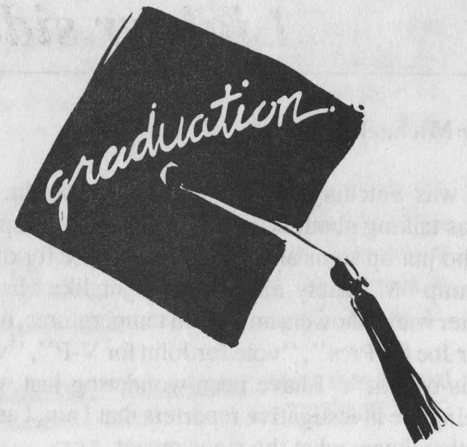

Currently the president of Clare Hall Board, she is also secretary of FCA, Student Board representative for all residence halls, and a member of the newly-formed education club. The softball enthusiast is a member of Who's Who.

Raver's plans for after graduation include finding a teaching job back home.

Raver chose Marian because it is small and "everyone seems to care." The friendliness of the people and their willingness to help is what kept her here.

Raver's hobbies include spending time with friends and family, and her only advice to underclassmen is "get involved and have fun while in college."

She would like to thank the education teachers for all their help and her friends "for being there when I needed them."

EATING RIGHT CAN HELP REDUCE THE RISK OF CANCER.

It can also help you reduce your weight.

And since a 12-year study shows that being 40% or more overweight puts you at high risk, it makes sense to follow these guidelines for healthy living!

Eat plenty of fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C—oranges, cantaloupe, strawberries, peaches, apricots, broccoli, cauliflower, brussel sprouts, cabbage. Eat a high-fiber, low-fat diet that includes whole-grain breads and cereals such as oatmeal, bran and wheat. Eat lean meats, fish, skinned poultry and low-fat dairy products. Drink alcoholic beverages only in moderation.

Lighter side

by Michael Rinard

I was watching 60 Minutes the other night, when Andy Rooney was talking about how things are today. Especially about people who put up signs and billboards to vote for other people. Around Camp "M" lately, almost overnight, like when mushrooms pop up after warm showers and warm temperatures, have been signs "vote for Joe for Pres", "vote for John for V-P", "vote for so-and-so for this-or-that". I have been wondering just what this meant. So, being the investigative reporters that I am, I asked several campers if they knew what the signs meant.

Sally, who is a first-year camper said, "Gee! I guess I have to vote for somebody. I don't even know who I'm even voting for."

Along with Sally was her friend Jane, who stated, "Yeah, man. Like who do I vote for? I transferred in last week from Southern Colorado and I don't know anyone!"

Senior Camp Counselor, Peter Cottonpatch, advised me that about this time every year, people are always putting up signs and billboards to vote for this or that person for this or that office. "Around here, people take their vote real serious. They pour over the candidate's qualifications with a fine-tooth comb just looking for flaws and asking questions like:

"If you were elected, what would be your first task?"

"If you were elected, would you lower the fees for camping?"

"If you were elected, would you legalize alcohol?"

Cottonpatch continued, "These may sound like trivial questions to you, but these are real concerns of our campers. More qualified people should seek nomination, and more people should vote for the candidates of their choice."

And the Head Counselor looked on.

Alumni Association plans activities

by Dallice Hesselgrave

Although a seemingly quiet office, Alumni Relations houses a very busy organization, the Alumni Association. Kurt Guldner, a 1981 Marian graduate, directs the association.

Current activities planned for alumni are volleyball in March, an Easter egg hunt in April, going to a Red's game in June, softball in July, and a golf outing in August.

As a fundraiser, alumni and current seniors can have their diplomas laminated. Guldner said that this is actually more of a service to the alumni than a fundraiser.

Guldner's main goal is to "have students realize that the alumni are available to them." As part of that goal, the alumni and admissions staff are working towards alumni being available to recommend the school for the admissions staff.

Alumni also participate by going to inaugurations that Dr. Felicetti is unable to attend.

The Alumni Association does many things for Marian students. Last fall, alumni helped students in an interview workshop. They evaluated interviewing techniques and made recommendations for improvements.

MCSA and the Alumni Association bought tickets to the men's district basketball game in order that the first 100 students got in free.

The Friday before graduation, the alumni will host the senior party. It is the associations way of welcoming the new graduates into the program. Guldner stated that Marian College Alumni Association is one of the few that graduates are automatically a part of the program without paying an annual fee.

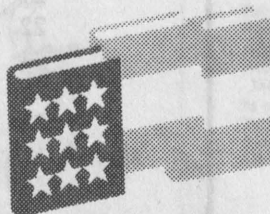

During finals week the association sells "survival packages" to parents and delivers them to the students.

The alumni also select the recipients of the distinguished senior and distinguished alumni award.

Guldner maintained that he is "trying to get alumni more involved with the student and the school." This year, for example, an alumni was elected to the booster club. MCSA has an alumni representative, a student who attends both MCSA and alumni meetings.

The association sponsors the Magnet, a publication received by both parents of current students and the alumni.

Currently Marian has 53000 alumni, 2300-2400 living in the Indianapolis area. Guldner believes that the school depends on the alumni not only financially (last year alumni donated 23% more money to the school than the previous year), but as volunteers.

Circle City named America's hot spot for sports

Mayor William H. Hudnut, III announced on February 23, that a poll of 72 sports officials from around the country names Indianapolis as the hottest sports city in America, beating out competitors Los Angeles, Minneapolis, and Seattle for the top spot.

"Indianapolis was one of the first--if not the first--city to target amateur sports as a growth industry for the city and state," said Hudnut. The survey results are published in the February issue of Sports Travel magazine, which asked 72 sports officials to rank the U.S. cities that were "becoming hot, getting hotter, or had become the hottest in attracting major sporting events."

Those polled included event organizers from professional leagues, amateur federations, and the U.S. Olympic Committee. College administrators, city sports commissions, and executive of sports marketing firms were also included in the survey.

Since 1980, Indianapolis has hosted over 200 national and international sporting events, including the 1982 National Sports Festival and the Tenth Pan American Games in 1987. Over $142 million in world-class sports facilities have been built in the Indianapolis area since 1974, including the Hoosier Dome and Convention Center Expansion, which have helped boost Indianapolis Convention and Visitors Association bookings by over 580% since the Dome's construction.

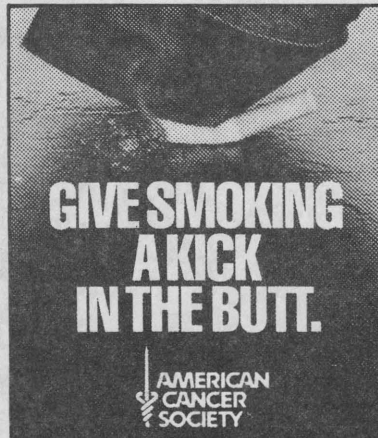

In addition to the International Baseball Association, seven national amateur sports governing bodies call Indianapolis home: track and field, canoe-kayak, rowing, diving, synchronized swimming, gymnastics, and water polo.

Major sports events planned for Indianapolis in 1990 include the NCAA Track and Field, Basketball, and Swimming and Diving Championships in March; the USRowing National Championships in June; the U.S. National Canoe/Kayak Sprints in August, the Circle City Classic football game in October, and the U.S. Swimming Open in November.

Those events are in addition to the playing schedules of the Colts, Pacers, Indians, Ice, and other professional sports events such as the Indianapolis 500 and GTE Men's Hardcourt Tennis Championships.

In 1991, the NCAA Final Four will tip off at the Hoosier Dome, and the college track and field championships will return, as will the annual USRowing national contest. The World Gymnastics Championships play in Indianapolis in September 1991 and the World Rowing Championships will be run here in 1994.

"Being named the hottest sports city in the country confirms our role as a competitive player," said Mayor Hudnut. "Indianapolis is a city that's entering the 90's in the first place--and we're working hard to stay ahead!"
